her sister, Miss Ada, was attired Bethany, in a beautiful costume of white Omemee, silk, prettily trimmed with knife pleated chiffon, and ribbon over white taffeta silk. A large bouquet of cream roses, carried by the bride, and a beautiful wreath of lilies of the valley in her hair, enhanced greatly the beauty of the costume.

The bridesmaid wore a costume of pale blue silk voile over blue taffeta silk, and carried a boquet of white and pink carnations.

Rev. Mr. McCullough, Pastor of the Methodist Church, conducted the marriage ceremony in his own able and pleasing manner.

The groom was supported by Mr. James McCaffrey, brother of the bride.

OBITUARY.

The news of the death of the late Mrs. William Bradburn, which sad W H Lehane, for gravel used on event took place on Friday morning last, came quite unexpectedly to her large circle of friends.

Though Mrs. Bradburn had been in failing health for a number of years, yet few imagined the end to be so near. With perfect confidence in the Redeemer's finished work, she passed peacefully away on the beautiful dawn of a perfect summer day, just as the birds were tuning their voices for their morning songs. When God's time came she was ready to go, receiving from her Pastor's hand the pledges of her Saviour's dying love. Falling quietly asleep on earth she has awak- the following accounts, that is to say : ened in the caln, and peace of the Paradise of God, and though her iriends mourn her early departure, yet they can bless and praise God for such a peaceful end, when,

"Like such a tide, as moving, seems asleep.

Too full for sound or foam, Did that which drew from out the boundless deep,

Return again home." The funeral, which took place on Sunday afternoon, at 2.30 o'clock, was very largely attended. The service Carried. was conducted by the Rector of Christ Church, the Rev. J. H. Teney, and beautifully impressive did that service seem. Two hymns, "Thy will be done' and "Why should I fear the darkest ity be borrowed from the Bank of Tohour," favorites of the departed were ronto for four months, at the rate of sung with much feeling during the six per cent per annum, and that the course of the service. The casket was completely covered with floral tributes, sent by loving friends, noticeable among which were two beautiful crosses, the emblem of salvation, and of which the departed was very fond. After the service at the house, the body was conveyed to its last resting place in Emily Cemetery, followed by a long cortege of sympathizing friends.

Among those from a distance were: Mr. Dickson Jewett and Miss Ethel Jewett of Cannington, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Jewett of Peterboro, and Mr. brother of the departed.

The whole neighborhood mourns the death of a quiet christian woman, whose Kindly disposition and guileless charity won the hearts of all, and for Mr. Bradburn and the remaining rela | troduced and read a first time. forced him to resign the Inspectorship. In Municipal and County affairs, as Reeye and Warden he held a prominent position being ever desirous of promoting the public interest independent of sectionalism, and in Church matters his official assistance and ready telp could always be depended on, but it was in the home circle and among his personal friends that the genuine qualities of his nature shone most brilliantly. As a last resort on the advice of his Physician, Dr. Graham, of Fenelon Falls, he was taken to Lindsay Hospital the Saturday preceding death, but in spite of medical skill and kind nursing he became weaker and was with difficulty brought home where he sank peacefully to rest at 3 o'clock on Wednesday morning the 6th instant. The Funeral was very largely attended by sorrowing relatives and friends, taking place from St. Paul's Church, on Friday last, where all had the opportunity of viewing the remains. Many beautiful flowers and floral designs were sent in by friends and Public Bodies, including a lovely wreath from the County Council, and a fine floral design from the Oddfe lows. who attended in a body During the interval between Dr. Curry's death and funeral, Flags floated at half mast from the County and School Buildings, as well as from the flagstaffs of many private citizens, and while the funeral cortege was passing through Minden Village, every business place was clos-
