AT HALF PRICE.

During the Last Week of Our Big Stock Reduction Sale.

Yes many lines of good, bright, reasonable goods are marked down to actually half our regular low prices.

No telling how much you have that you don't want, till you'd move or clean house.

Well, same with a store-- and we're cleaning house with all vengeance; rummaging stocks and pulling out all we won't need in the fall.

There's a big part of the summer days ahead yet, but it's time in these goods had wearers, and they shall have.

We bought too much in some lines, because we have to plan liberally to deserve and get business. A store-the successful store--must do as Nature does--and Emersion describes the procedure this way: "When Nature wishes a thing done, she overloads the tendency."

Now for the greatest and last bargains of the season; now for us to take the loss on our overplus and to be ready by August to estimate our stocks and see how much real money our work has yielded.

There are many things you can use now. Come and see them.

DEATH OF THOMAS GILLOTT

Another of Millbrook's Most solicit your patronage. Highly Respected Citizens Called Away.

A Large Concourse of Sorrowing Relatives and Friends Gather at the House of Mourning to Pay Their Last Respects to the Deceased.

Death has again vistted Millbrock and taken another of her charge of the funeral. oldest and most highly esteemed citizens, in the person of Mr. T. years. Deceased had been ailing for the past few months, but was able to take a drive a few days before his death, which took place on Friday last, at his late home. It is only about three years ago since he retired from the undertaking business, which he turned over to his son, Mr. Wm. Gillott.

Deceased had built a fine new home for himself and his beloved wife, and expected to spend many more happy years together, and in which home they celebrated the 50th Anniversary of their wedding last fall, but death came and parted these loving hearts until the last great trumpet shall sound.

Deceased was born at Lou.h, Lincolnshire, Eng, and came to this country 53 years ago, com mencing business at Welcome, stopping there about 3 years, and about 2 years in Port Hope, afterwards moving to Millbrook, where he carried on a successful undertaking business for upwards of half a century. He came here by stage, there being no railroads at the time, showing the vast chang es that have taken place in that

In religion he was a Presbyterian, and in politics a liberal.
