ANOTHER VICTIM REJOICES.

IT is not an uncommon thing by any means for a sufferer from Sciatic Rheumatism to become completely helpless from the disease, in fact more helpless than a child.

The effects of a long siege of rheumatism is apt to be very severe on the constitution, so that the patient should be prompt in obtaining relief the moment the opportunity presents itself.

"Legislative Duties"

A Sermon Preached in Christ Church on Sunday, Oct. 28th, 1900, By Rev. E. A. Langfeldt.

I, Timothy, II: 1, 2: "Exhort therefore, that, first of all, supplications, prayers, intercessions, and giving of thanks, be made for all men, for kings, and for all that are in authority; that we may lead a quiet and peaceable life in all godliness and honesty."

I purpose to-day to ask you to dwell with me for a short while on the thoughts which a political event, such as our Country has before it, in the coming Elections, suggests.

A man may speak the thing he will, "A land of settled Government, A land of free and old renown, Whose freedom slowly broadens down From precedent to precedent."

We then—more than any other nation under the sun—owe this debt of thanksgiving to God, of which the Apostle reminds us, "for Kings, and all who are in authority."

And if we have such large reasons to offer those thanksgivings may not this be due, in no small degree, to the "prayers and supplications" which St. Paul tells us that we ought also to offer.

All that there is among us of progress and prosperity is due to the collective wisdom of the nation, as guided by the voice of her Parliament; and if that wisdom have produced rich results, must we not believe that God has heard the prayers of His people? If "every good gift, and every perfect gift," to nations as well as to individuals, is from above, must it not be due to God's goodness that so many statesmen have been raised up among us whose great example is the heritage of the world?

shield the innocence of the young, to diminish the perils of the tempted, to repress the violence of the criminals, to protect the independence of the thinker, to see that none grow rich on profits drawn from the nation's ruin;— by fearless repression of wrong, by wide encouragement of right, by high moral influence, by strong sanitary legislation, it is their to secure the righteousness of our land, and the health of our people.

And how is it, that often in the very teeth of the most determined opposition—good legislation has been given to the Country? Chiefly because God has given us statesmen with the insight to perceive their blessedness, and the courage to enforce their necessity, and Parliaments with whom reason has been stronger than prejudice.

And in the face of all this, how necessary it is that every one take the most serious interest in having honest men elected to represent the voice of the people.

measure, to make Canada a greater and better, or a weaker and a poorer land. May they always be on their knees asking God that they may use the power entrusted to them, not for private interests, nor for factious triumphs, but always with sternest integrity, and in God's faith and fear. So shall we be able to hold our own against every force which can be brought against us; so shall we realize more and more the Psalmist's golden picture of national prosperity, that "truth shall flourish out of the earth, and righteousness look down from heaven. Yes the Lord shall show loving kindness, and our land shall give her increase. Righteousness shall go before him and He shall direct her going in the way."
