The Rev. Walter Henry Nugent is the associate rector with Bishop Samuel Fallows of Chicago. He is a Canadian by birth and brings with him to the lecture platform a number of years of practical experience seldom gained—having spent three years in the great Canadian Northwest, one of which was in Alberta—doing Missionary work. Added to his experience of pioneer life and his experience with men, he is a man of great natural endowments. He has a magnetic personality, a clear deep, resonant voice, a splendid appearance, and is eloquent, earnest and energetic. He has given us entire satisfaction. Reports of his work are always good and we commend him to the patrons of the platform. The people always want to hear him again.

The Late John Rea.

A man who served well and faithfully his day and generation, and was gathered to the great and silent majority in fullness of years and the esteem of his fellowmen, was Mr. John Rea, of Reaboro, who died on Monday, Oct. 24th, at the age of 87.

Mr. Rea was a native of the good county of Fermanagh, Ireland, and came to Canada with his parents in 1825. For one year the family lived in Toronto, and then moved to what is now the homestead at lot 7 in the 16th concession of Ops. There they lived the lives of pioneer and both they and their descendants have proved worthy of the best traditions of that noble band who subdued the primitive forest splendor of this great land and made it blossom as the rose.

Mr. Rea was a private in the local company that went to help put down the McKenzie rebellion of 1837. His father was a captain of the company. They did not get into action, however, for by the time the company had reached Oshawa the rebellion was over.

When he was 27 years old, Mr. Rea married Letitia Evans of Emily, who was a native of Cavan, Ireland, and they lived most happily together till Mrs. Rea's death two years ago at the age of 79.

The couple were born to them six children—three boys and three girls. Of the former, John the second son died six years ago. George lives in Lindsay, and David on the homestead, where one daughter, Sarah, also lives. The other daughters are Mrs. John Kerr, and Mrs. John Morrison, London, Ont.

Mr. Rea was a liberal and a Methodist. For many years he was a class leader in that body at Reaboro. He was also a J.P., and in all his relations with the community, both religious and civil, he was most highly esteemed. Until four months ago he enjoyed quite vigorous health. Then he was stricken by a slight paralytic attack, and never shook it off. He was quite conscious until a quarter of an hour before he died, and to him it was given to quit life as becomes one who has employed it well.
