LIANE'S CAREER.

When Liane de Pougy was at Ostend this summer, at least 200 people gathered nightly outside the windows of her hotel to watch her dine, and when she appeared on the beach she was follow ed by a long procession of idlers. To see her delicately chiseled face, crowned by a mass of golden hair, her large wondering eyes, her graceful figure, one would little suspect her of the career she has made for herself in less than 30 years. The daughter of an army officer, and the wife of a Captain in the navy, she was, before the age of 25, one of the most notorious characters in the French capital. Her husband, however, was so infatuated with her beauty that even after she had deserted him to plunge into a life of dissipation, ruche ornamented at intervals with he still refused to get a divorce, hoping for her return, until he died of a broken heart.

The work is entirely voluntary; no salaries are paid the workers, and no personal appeal made for funds, but the expenses are met by what is sent children to sustain this work of faith and love. Children are received from any part of Canada, the only condition being that they are in need of a friend. Great care is taken in selecting the homes for the adoption of them, and Mr. Watch keeps careful oversight of his charges until they reach their majority. At present there are about a dozen little ones awaiting homes. These Funds and clothing may also be sent to him to help support the work.
