LAZY DRIVERS

Some people believe they are indifferent, others call them careless, but a Victoria, B.C. man thinks the drivers who cut corners, ride white centre lines and dawdle along at slow speeds are lazy drivers.

It's a good term. Lazy drivers. They either neglect to signal a turn or make the signal after the turn has started. They swing slightly left to make a right hand turn. They spurt into a moving traffic line then hold their speed down to an erasperating low. They park so a space beside them is untenable. They blind others with high - beam headlights either approaching or following. In fact, it seems they go out of their way to be aggravating.

Not much can be done to help these afflicted people except to keep constantly before them a list of their failings. It does no good, and may do harm, to get angry with them. Reprisals are too dangerous in themselves. They laugh at legal authority and since their infractions are usually minor, their penalties are small.

One thing motorists can do—avoid the lazy drivers. Let them go their way and they will hurt only themselves; we hope.
