Kemptville Agricultural School Preparing For Big Enrolment

This summer has been a busy one at the Kemptville Agricultural School. Enrolment for the junior year in agriculture is the highest since the immediate post-war period when veterans of World War II used their gratuities to acquire a more scientific knowledge of agriculture.

Accommodation was stretched to full capacity at that time and this year the residence will be taxed to the utmost to make room for both junior and senior boys. Registration day is October 15th, and it is expected that over 100 students, boys and girls, will come prepared to settle down in residence for another year.

Carpenters and painters are busily engaged in renovating and repairing the classrooms and residence and partitioning the basement to make available additional rooms.

While this work is being carried out, bricklayers and masons of the Public Works Department are completing an up-to-date modern equipped Poultry building in another part of the campus. This new building which is two stories high, 54 ft. by 84 ft., will contain an incubation room, a processing plant and refrigeration room. Located on the second floor will be a large lecture room and laboratory.

BEAVERS A NUISANCE IN MOST AREAS

The following clipping taken from the Renfrew Mercury and sent to us by one of our subscribers, is proof that our local millers, Attwood & Sheppard, are not the only ones tormented by these industrious little animals. It says:

"Not only are beaver becoming a nuisance in some localities, but bold and lazy. At the close of the recent trapping season, a farmer and trapper in the Plevna area, one half mile from the nearest water, reported the following story to us.

Towards the wee hours of the morning, the farmer was aroused by the excited barking of his two hounds. Several attempts to quiet the animals failed. Finally at 4 a.m. when it became apparent that there would be no further sleep unless something could be done about the noise, the farmer went out to investigate. Here the owner found both dogs looking toward their dog-house and the presence of their master gave them added courage to approach closer and to snarl and bark more viciously, but it was quite obvious they would not enter or even get too close to the entrance.

Very cautiously the farmer peered into the dog-house and low and behold, there sat an extremely large beaver on the skinned-out carcass of another which had been placed there as food for the dogs.

It is any person's guess as to whether the beaver was looking for ready-made lodging or attending the wake of a departed friend!

While we believe the first one, we will let you decide on the next. A farmer from near the same area was having some beaver trouble and reported same to the local Conservation Officer. He was told he could destroy the dam and then to hang a lantern nearby and to place tin cans along a wire which would frighten the animals away.

This was tried and several days later the farmer reported the following story.

After the lantern and tin cans were strung along and over the creek where the dam had been, the farmer waited for a couple of nights to see what effect they had. When
