IN GREAT VARIETY

GROCERIES,
BOOTS & SHOES,

We have been very successful with our Mantles this season. If you have not purchased yet give us a call. In the Mantle and Dress Department Miss Trevarrow is up to her eyes in work, testifying to her ability in her particular line. Our stock of Millinery is being constantly added to, keeping it always fully up to the times. Give Mrs. Whyte a call. If you are in need of carpets at any time you can be suited here as our stock never was as well assorted.

The Grocery department is constantly replenished with choice, pure goods. Goods that we are always able to recommend. Goods that are fresh and clean, and if you give us your trade you will bear us out in these remarks. Our prices are right.

Our stock of Boots and Shoes is complete. We keep nothing but first-class at all the different prices. From ladies finest goods to men's coarsest wear, we have them in great variety. We are also prepared to supply the wants of the little ones. In trunks, valises, etc., we have them in all dimensions and styles and at prices to suit the closest buyer. Don't fail to see our stock, as we are in a position to suit you.

In making your fall purchases you cannot do better than by giving us a call as we are prepared this season to compete with any house in the district. In every line we are to the front and will be pleased to see you.

REPEAL OF THE SILVER BILL.

After an obstinate contest, extending over two months, the American Senate has passed the bill providing for the unconditional repeal of the silver-purchasing clause of the Sherman act. The vote was 43 to 21. In the affirmative there were 23 Republicans and 20 Democrats, and in the negative 8 Republicans, 22 Democrats and 2 Populists.

THE FIRE BELL.

Now that the question of a fire alarm is a recognised fact and only a question of time, we would like to draw the attention of the committee and citizens in general, all of whom are interested to the desirability of "killing two birds with one stone" and have a town bell that will answer all purposes. It is very noticeable to a stranger when first coming into our village that seven o'clock in the morning or twelve or one o'clock noon, rolls past with no audible intimation that the hours flitted away. It can all be done with the one bell and at only a cost of an extra rope and a stroker, say $5.00. Put the bell upon the town hall which is as convenient as the fire hall and its greater altitude will herald the alarm to a much farther distance. If the cupola on the town hall is not now suitable it can be made so by very little change and let us hear the sweet refrain of the morning and evening bell to welcome us as the hours of toil or rest come upon us. So certain are we of the advisability of this plan that we venture these remarks after being informed of the set plan of the committee, still we apprehend their desire to be to consider the best interest of the town, and if they will look into the matter with the above plan in view we know it will also receive their acquiescence.

THE CHICAGO ASSASSINATION.

The taking of the life of Chicago's chief magistrate by the hand of a madman or crank, or disappointed office seeker, brings before us very vividly the too frequent rewards of official position. Although in our own fair Dominion we have very few such outrages to look back upon with sorrow or with shame, (for after all it is but the legitimate outcome of loose moral and political teachings and practices) yet we would do well to stop by the way a little, and moralize upon the causes and cures. The striking down of two of our able public men by the villains hand is within the memory of most of us. De Arcy McGee, an orator who was "par excellence," the Burke of Canadian debate was shot down by one of his own faith at the capitol, for reasons that were only in the culprits deluded imagination, and a few years later that pioneer of Canadian responsible government and Father of Confederation, Geo. Brown, met with the coward's bullet and passed into what truly may be said a premature grave. In both of these deplorable cases however, explanations may be given that place the responsibility outside of the pale of national imbecility. Looking across the border again and taking a retrospective glance, with sadness we bring to view Lincoln the noble president who was taken out of the harness to satisfy the mania of the warabond Booth, also Garfield a future occupant of the White House who was too much of the man to suit the greed of a deluded crank, and now Carter Harrison succumbs to a bullet from the hand of a Prendergast. It is not necessary to recall further for their names are legion, prominent men of the great republic who have gone down under the murderers hand to satisfy some supposed grievance. Whether the elevation of Harrison to office, accomplished as it was by the worse class of that great cities electorate, whether the machinations and manipulations incident to, and almost inseparable from the success of any candidate and also him who now awaits an untimely grave had any deeper connection than ordinary with the inevitable "hangers on" for office we have nothing to say. The same sad happening might have taken place had the opposition candidate been chosen to the position. What occurs to the distant onlooker, and certainly "The distance lends no enchantment to the view" is, that in the great battle for office, the promises of rewards and emoluments for services performed are continually held forth, the great and only desideratum being to bring in the votes by hook or crook, so that an election may be secured and then after the smoke of the the engagement has cleared away, those who are looking for the fulfilment of pledges find they cannot be all provided for, and thus begin to look around them for that revenge which is to sweet. Added to this the lack of work and the unusually straightened circumstances of many of the residents of that city, the desparation that starving penury put into the bosom and some answer may be tendered for the distressing affair in connection with the close of the great World's fair at Chicago.

Attention

In time to any irregularity of the Stomach, Liver, or Bowels may prevent serious consequences.

Indigestion, costiveness, headache, nausea, biliousness, and vertigo indicate certain functional derangements, the best remedy for which is Ayer's Pills. Purely vegetable, sugar-coated, easy to take and quick to assimilate, this is the ideal family medicine—the most popular, safe, and useful aperient in pharmacy. Mrs. M. A. BROCKWELL, Harris, Tenn., says:

"Ayer's Cathartic Pills cured me of sick headache and my husband of neuralgia. We think there is No Better Medicine, and have induced many to use it.

"Thirty-five years ago this Spring, I was run down by hard work and a succession of colds, which made me so feeble that it was an effort for me to walk. I consulted the doctors, but kept sinking lower until I had given up all hope of ever being better. Happening to be in a store, one day, where medicines were sold, the proprietor noticed my weak and sickly appearance, and, after a few questions as to my health, recommended me to try Ayer's Pills. I had little faith in these or any other medicine, but concluded, at last, to take his advice and try a box. Before I had used them all, I was very much better, and two boxes cured me. I am now 80 years old; but I believe that if it had not been for Ayer's Pills, I should have been in my grave long ago. I buy 6 boxes every year, which make 240 boxes up to this time, and I would no more be without them than without bread."—H. H. Ingraham, Rockland, Me.

—The following mathematical problem is now going the rounds of Toronto papers:—"A buys a number of barrels of apples for $300, of which 12 were unsalable. He sold two thirds of the remainder for $240 at the balance at what they cost him, and made a profit of $40 on the whole transaction. How many barrels did he buy?"
—An exchange tells of a woman who bought a new-fangled coffee pot from a pedlar. In the evening she showed it to her husband, a hardware dealer, who told her he kept the same thing in his store for half the price she paid. "Well," she said, "why don't you advertise? Nobody ever knows what you have for sale."
