

REBUKING THE EMPEROR.

Doctor Omori, of the University of Tokyo, tells a story of the Chinese Emperor Tsai. The favorite horse of the emperor died through negligence on the part of the Royal Master of the Horse. The emperor was so enraged that he drew his sword and would have run the offender through the body.

The learned mandarin, Yen-tse, struck the emperor's sword and said, "Sire, this man has not yet been formally accused of any crime. He deserves to die, but the accusation should come first. It is the law."

"Well," said the emperor, "tell him what he has done."

"Listen, you rogue," said the mandarin to the Master of the Horse, "listen to my account of your offenses: First, you have allowed a horse to perish that his master entrusted to your care. Second, it is on your account that he was about to stay you with his own hand. Finally, through your fault, our sovereign was on the point of disgracing himself in all his people's eyes by killing a man for the sake of a horse."

A Startled Mother Hears That Cough

She Thinks of the Consequences—Group, Whooping Cough or Lung Trouble.

That is a singular case which will shortly be heard in the Supreme Court of King's County, N.Y., in which Mrs. Anna Richardson is claiming heavy damages for the loss of part of one of her fingers. A short time ago Mrs. Richardson was attacked in Bostock's arena, Coney Island, by a certain wild and ferocious animal known as a hyena, which bit off half of the index finger of the lady's left hand. On the whole finger Mrs. Richardson places a value of $30,000; and as half of it has been appropriated by the defendant's hyena she is claiming a moiety of this sum—or $15,000.

A short time ago George A. Lovejoy, of Spokane, Washington, told his wife she was badly burnt, sued the doctor's for $10,000 damages, alleging that they removed more of his skin than he had stipulated.

MORE REMARKABLE STILL

was the action recently brought by Fanny E. Doxator against the Chicago and West Michigan Railway Company. Mrs. Doxator's husband was a switchman employed by the company, and in the course of his duty had been run over by cars and so seriously injured that both of his legs had to be amputated. The limbs were promptly cremated; and the disconsolate widow, who contended that her husband's legs should have been given to her for decent burial, sued the company and was awarded $2,750 damages.

In Paris, recently, a most curious case was heard. A young lady had met a gentleman in Montmartre who so admired her pretty teeth that he made her an offer of 60fr. for three of them. The lady accepting the offer, the teeth were extracted and handed over to the defendant, who declined to pay the promised 60fr., with the result that the aggrieved plaintiff set her remaining teeth and called in the law. Still greater was the grievance of Mrs. Houghton against Mrs. Gervaise Graham, a Michigan Avenue (Chicago) beauty-doctor, whom she sued for $200 for wages. Mrs. Houghton had consented to have one side of her face made beautiful, while the other side was allowed to remain wrinkled and ugly, in order to advertise for these preparations to hear.

"I obtained a supply of Zam-Buk and my very first application gave me ease. This pleased me, you may guess, but as I applied the balm each day I was more and more pleased with the effect. The pain was relieved completely. In a very short time Zam-Buk healed my burns completely, and my hands actually felt stronger than before I
