

THE DUNSFORD ASSAULT CASE

OTHER EVIDENCE BEING TAKEN TO-DAY AT BOBCAYGEON.

County Police Magistrate Moore left Bobcaygeon Wednesday to hear fresh evidence to be offered in assault charge lodged against Kent, alias Moon, who is accused of having broken into the home of William Jas. Robertson, of the Willow Line, near Dunsford, on Friday night, the 20th, inst.

The youth has not yet been sentenced, as was erroneously stated by the town papers. The Magistrate will probably announce his decision next Saturday, after weighing the evidence given Wednesday, as to age and habits.

It is learned, is a posthumous child of the late David Kent, a former resident of this town, who died here in 1893, after meeting with an accident in Buffalo. He had married a woman named Moon, and the child born after the father's death, some years later the mother went to Bobcaygeon, leaving the boy, who has grown up in Dunsford neighborhood, to be subject to epileptic attacks.

"The King of Diamonds," the new story lately commenced in The Free Press, is taking like wild fire. A number of new subscribers have already been secured on its merits. Back numbers may be had at this office.

The Orono correspondent of the Newcastle Independent says: George Bigelow is reported to have instituted a suit against the Clarke Threshing Syndicate for some $2,500 over and above his insurance, for the recent destruction of his buildings and contents by fire said to have originated from the threshing engine.

Peterboro Examiner: While Mr. Fred L. Roy was in the northern woods with the hunters last week he visited Mr. Jerry Ford's camp in Burleigh, owned by the McDonald Estate. He tells of a peculiar scene he observed there of a deer which had been caught in a crevice of a rock, which position had resulted in death.

At a special meeting of the Board of Works of the Town Council Monday, of which the press was not notified, several applications for snow plow tenders were read. The following were the successful tenders:—East Ward, north of Queen-st.—Alf Robinson, $50; south of Queen-st.—John Chambers, $50. South Ward, west of William-st.—Hilliard Armstrong, $80; east of William-st.—Hilliard Armstrong, $70. The North Ward will be handled as usual by the town employees.

On Friday a young man named English appeared before Magistrate Moore at Omemee, charged with assaulting Thomas Mitchell, also of Omemee and using abusive language towards Mitchell. The matter appears to have been more an exhibition of horse play than anything else. The magistrate therefore only imposed $3 of a fine for the assault but found the accused guilty of having used abusive language and fined him $5 for this, and intimated that any person using bad language would be severely dealt with. I. E. Weldon appeared for the accused.

For the information of those who have not seen the Ozone filtration plant, recently installed in Lindsay, the Free Press wishes to state emphatically that the plant looks in no wise like certain pictures of it published in a local contemporary. To print blurs and call them pictures is a small matter perhaps, but to picture the first municipal ozonation plant in this hemisphere as a succession of blurs is to carry the slurry-blurry business a little too far. If real pictures of the Ozone plant are desired, readers are referred to the files of the Free Press in the public library, the local printing offices where the paper is religiously preserved, or to Mr. J. Howard Bridge, the expert who installed Lindsay's fine plant.

The Chief of Police has been authorized by the chairman of the Board of Works to permit the spreading of clean ashes on the side streets alone.

The many friends in town and county of Mr. R. H. Walks, formerly of the L.C.I. staff, but now of the Kingston Collegiate Institute, will sympathize with him in the loss which he has sustained in the death of his mother, Mrs. Walks, of Brooklin.

Lindsay has only a few minor drawbacks as a town when measured by other places of even larger size. One of these minor drawbacks is the alleged mud that is supposed to be prevalent here. Lindsay has improved wonderfully in this respect, and to-day is, if anything, a little better off than Peterborough and a number of other towns and cities.

The Warder, however, though deriving its support from Lindsay, has taken occasion to advertise extravagantly the presence of mud here, and, of course, the papers of neighboring jealous towns are taking advantage of the mud fouling of its own nest by the paper that christened itself in its second daily issue "The Daily Waily Warder." As the Daily Waily Warder truly says in its mud article, "the melancholy days have come." Surely they have, when a local paper gives outside evasive ones opportunity to defame this town. Stratford may be a wonderful town, but Lindsay ought to be good enough for men who are asking support from this place. They may have no mud, perhaps, in saintly Mud-slingers.
