HYMENEAL

ARGUE--LOWE.

A pretty Xmas wedding was enacted in Zion Methodist church, at Ross, Man., Dec. 21, when Rev. G. McCullagh united in the holy bonds of matrimony Miss Caroline E. Argue, of Christopher Argue, of Win- nipeg. The church was appropriately decorated with flowers, white bells, and silk draping. The bride, who looked handsome in an ivory dress and semi-princess gown with pointed overskirt trimmed with Irish lace and yoke and sleeves headed net and carrying a bouquet of cream roses and ferns, was given away by her father, and was accompanied by her cousin, Miss E. Lowe, dressed in pale blue silk voile trimmed with same shade satin and silver braid and large velvet hat and carrying a bouquet of pink roses. The groom was assisted by E. M. Jones, of Winnipeg. C. W. Climie and Stanley Jones were the ushers. After the ceremony the guests, repair to the bride's home where a dainty wedding luncheon was served. The tables were prettily decorated with carnations, ferns and ribbons. The groom's gift to the bride was a handsome set of mink furs, to her assistant a solid gold brooch, to the organist a pearl and amethyst brooch, to the groomsmen solid gold pearl set tie pin. The young couple left via St. Paul, Chicago and Detroit, to spend their honeymoon in Toronto, Lindsay, Peterboro and other eastern cities. The bride travelled in a pretty suit of ashes of roses broadcloth lined with cream silk serge and trimmed with silk and braid to match and wearing a large velvet hat of the same shade.

SUCCESSFUL CANDIDATES SPEAK TO ELECTORS IN TOWN HALL

As soon as the election of Mr. R. M. Beal as Mayor and Mr. H. Dobson as first deputy reeve was announced, their friends gathered around them and carried both of them in triumph through the streets of the town. Loud cheering was the order of the night, and the enthusiasm that had been worked up must have been very flattering to the successful candidates.

Both were borne in triumph to the town hall which was soon filled by a wildly excited throng. Cries of "Beal! Beal!" rent the air and that gentleman mounted the platform and addressed the audience.

In opening, Mr. Beal said he had nothing to say particularly for the press. He was glad the people had not only learned a lesson, but had also realized their power and when once they had done that, they would own the earth. There was one thing he would like to say, and that was the fight was a straight and honest one, both on the part of himself and his opponent. The people were going to show that this town was safe and that the people were able to run it. Nine years ago, he said, the people elected a council and demanded that the books be audited. If that demand had been carried out, the town would be in better shape than it was to-day. The people were not prospering, and there were too many empty houses. Mr. Beal said he had no desire to say anything wrong or rash, but would endeavor to make the town better. It should be filled with factories and he would do his best to secure them. He would endeavor to show that men of no experience could use their brains for the good of the town. Mr. Beal desired to thank all who had brought the conditions about. They had voted for better conditions and he was only a figurehead. He had never seen more faithful work performed than was done in his behalf. He would not say a hard word against any citizen. The local press was against him and had not a favorable word to say but he would overlook all this and show them that he knew how to use the power given him. He would legislate for the town and would represent all the people.

MR. HUGAL DOBSON.

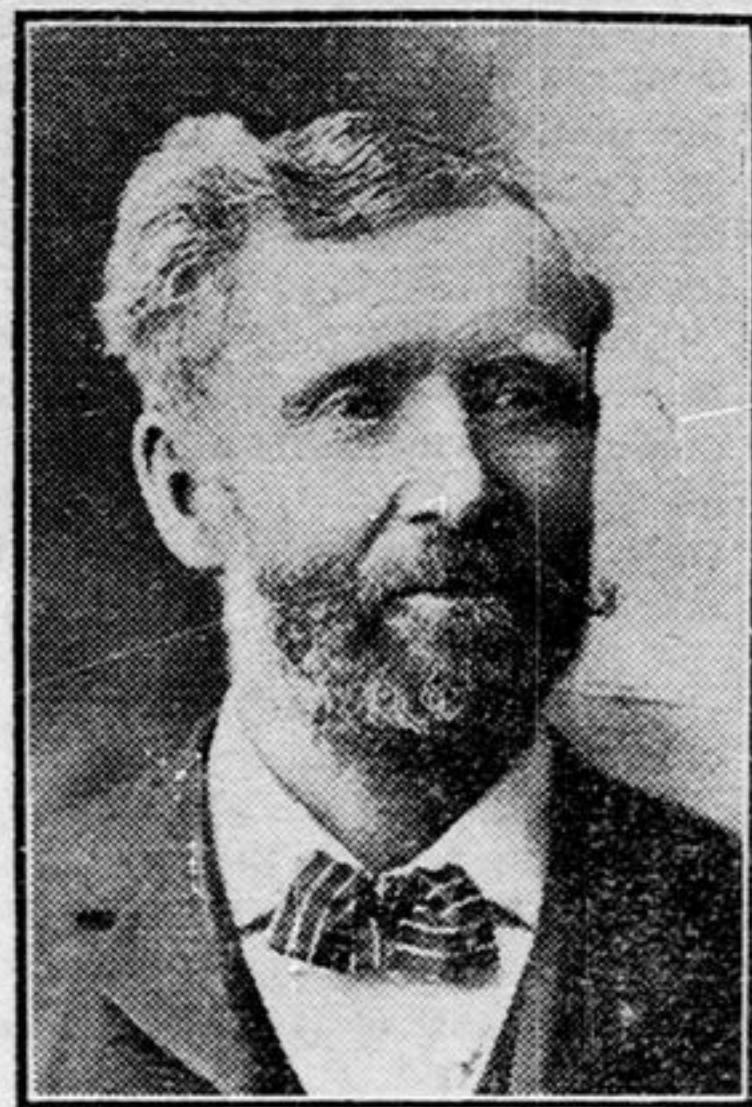

Mr. Dobson got a great reception and he spoke as follows:—"I wish you all a happy new year. I understand we had an election to-day. Now a year ago I was not successful in my fight against Mr. Kyle, but by your help I have won out. I have had two years in the council and if we want to help Lindsay we must work hand in hand. I am willing to let old sores go by. I was grieved to see what one paper said of me. I hope we are all British subjects and I think every man should get a fair shake and if he is a man he should not be written down. Probably the writer could not run as well himself. I hope that the electric lights and good roads will go on. We have a council behind the Mayor that will do the best they can. I hope you will not be sorry one year hence. As far as I go I will represent you in town and county council to the best of my ability. I thank you for your support and am willing to give the right hand to those who vote against me. I trust my record for the year will be such as that those who opposed me will be found supporting me."

ALD. McCRAE.

Mr. McCrae said the successful candidates got such a reception that he was sorry he did not run. They would all do their best for the town. —to build it up and try to work in harmony for its betterment and in an endeavor to secure more industries. The electric light proposition must be considered intelligently, and give the people an opportunity to express their opinion. Mr. McCrae was satisfied with the council elected, and personally he would try and satisfy the ratepayers.

DEPUTY-REEVE LEWIS

Mr. Lewis was called on, and in opening he thanked the citizens for electing him First Deputy-Reeve and next congratulated the town on the good Council selected. They would endeavor to prove as faithful as the retiring Council. It was always important to elect a good Council every year. Mr. Lewis extended congratulations to the Mayor elect, and said he believed the town had a brainy Council for 1911. What was wanted was not altogether clever men, but honest men. The retiring Mayor was due considerable praise, as well as the Council, which had to shoulder the wrongs of former years. Mr. Lewis said he felt that the town as a whole did not altogether support them in their trying ordeal. The settlement made in the Clerk and Treasurer defalcation case was the best the Council could do. Mr. Lewis referred to the era of prosperity which was before the town.

EX-REEVE MCKAGUE. Bexley's representative in County Council, defeated Monday

MAYOR BEGG.

Mayor Begg said he did not feel like speaking, as he was a back number. He hoped that Mr. Beal's statement that the 1911 Council would be honest was no reflection on the retiring Council. The Councils in the past always did the best they could. The retiring council was up against it in bringing about reforms, and personally he was glad to be relieved. The new Council will realize that conditions will not altogether be most pleasant. The past Councils should not be blamed for conditions brought about by dishonest officials, and by other conditions, such as appointing a new chairman of the Board of Works, each year. He was surprised that the town had stood what it did, and its affairs required careful handling in the future.

Mr. Begg then paid a tribute to Mr. McNeillie, county clerk and treasurer on the manner in which he assisted the County Council, and pointed out that the late Town Clerk did not render similar assistance to the Council. Mayor Begg closed by thanking the citizens for their kindness during his incumbency of the Chief Magistrate's chair.

MR. BEAL OBJECTS.

Mayor-elect Beal said he did not agree with the Mayor that any town clerk should run the town. If that was the case, there was little need in electing the Council. Mr. Begg, he continued, had also given the impression that there was nothing for the new council to do. There was never any council from which so much was expected as the Council of 1911. The town never was in such bad shape as it was to-day.

A. D. MALLON

Mr. Mallon said he had great respect for both Dr. Wood and Mr. Beal, but of the two evils he chose the least. He was proud of the east ward stood by the principles of the working man. It was a hard fought, silent fight and a difficult one for Mr. Beal to win, but the House of Lords must go. Mr. Beal had in his favor the hard working, industrious laboring man.

This closed the speech making and the audience dispersed.

Bexley Will Remain Wet

Local option was defeated in Bexley township on Monday. Cobocok village went four better for the measure than on the occasion of the last vote, but the measure received its death blow at Victoria Road. The vote was 94 for and 103 against—an adverse majority of 9 votes.

Reeve Tiers Was Defeated

There was a strenuous fight in Verulam township for the position of Reeve. Warden Tiers had as his opponent Mr. J. J. Devitt and that gentleman was elected Reeve by a small majority.

KOEPENICK AGAIN

The Prussian Town That Was Victimized Furnishes Another Startling Episode

Within three days of the fourth anniversary of the immortal exploit of the spurious captain, the little town of Koepenick in Prussia has been once more shaken out of its suburban repose by a strange drama of misused authority. In this case insanity, and not crime, was the actuating force.

For forty-five years, Wilhelm Doedel, station-master of Koepenick had performed faithful and constant services on the Prussian State Railways, but a few weeks ago his health broke down, and his doctor ordered him a change of scene. The other morning, when his leave had still some days to run, he reappeared at the station and resumed control over the arrangements. His subordinates now remember that his manner was strange and his orders a little perplexing, but the day passed without any critical development.

Towards midnight, however, Doedel, who had retired to rest, emerged from his official residence, very imperfectly attired, and wandered restlessly about the station till he found a ticket collector, whom he at once set to abusing with great vehemence for having "joined the French railway strike." One by one he tackled all his subordinates who were still on duty with the same accusation, and told them that as soon as he had taken the steps necessary to counteract the effects of their treachery, he intended to commit his complaint against them to paper and forward it to the Emperor without delay.

The staff of the station was at first completely nonplussed, but it gradually dawned upon them that their chief had taken leave of his senses, and they made efforts to propitiate him and induce him to retire to bed once more. Their persuasions, however, only heightened his mania, and the situation became really grave when he began to rush about, shouting crazy orders, which he declared were necessary to remove the disorder in the traffic occasioned by the strike. Fortunately, a police sergeant, who happened to be at hand, possessed not only presence of mind, but also ingenuity. Procuring a sheet of foolscap paper, he approached the demented stationmaster, and urged upon him the necessity of drawing up a report on the strike for the Emperor before the movement had spread further. At the same time, he pointed out that the place where he would be least likely to be disturbed in his work by the molestations of the strikers would undoubtedly be the famous Town Hall. The unhappy stationmaster fell readily into this trap, and allowed himself to be conducted thither. Though he calmed down after being placed under restraint, it has been found necessary to consign him to the local asylum.

LARGEST EGG PLANT

Largest in World is on Rhode Island—Great Output

The largest poultry plant in the world is at Little Compton, Rhode Island, and is owned by Isaac Wilbur, who ships about 150,000 dozen eggs a year from his hens. Mr. Wilbur builds his houses 8 x 10 feet in size and houses forty hens in a house this size. He has 150 of these houses and they are set 150 feet apart in rows over sloping fields. The food is hauled to each house in a wagon; twice a day this wagon makes the rounds, morning and evening. In the morning it is a mash made of cooked vegetables and different kinds of meats; in the evening, or rather late afternoon, only in this case, it is whole corn in the yard around. The eggs are gathered when the afternoon feed is given. Different fields are given over to these houses as the grounds need cleansing they are moved to renewed grounds.

WANTED COMPENSATION

The Home Secretary Denied the Request of an Ex-Convict

An ex-convict complains that he has been refused compensation by the Government. This man was undergoing a sentence of three years' penal servitude at Dartmoor when he met with an accident. Whilst employed building a wall he slipped with a stone in his arms and sustained serious injury. The accident necessitated his going into the infirmary, but the medical officer could not cure him, and on his release he had to undergo an operation at the Middlesex Hospital, where he still is. After the accident, he petitioned the Home Secretary for compensation, but was informed by the governor that Mr. Churchill saw no grounds for acceding to his request. Apparently, the Home Secretary declines to admit liability on the ground that the man was at the time of the accident serving a sentence of penal servitude.

FRENCH POLICE SYSTEM

The Case of Captain Meynier Said to Have Been Mismanaged

Quite an excitement has been occasioned in France by the deficiencies of the police system. The various reports are somewhat conflicting, but they all tend to show that the case of Captain Meynier was grossly mismanaged. He was wanted for murder, but he seems to have gone about quite calmly for a number of days without capture. Indeed, one paper publishes a picture of him carrying his own photograph in his hand, while a policeman is calmly looking on. It was revealed in town this morning and will spend the holidays with friends in town. He will take back with him a load of milk cows. Mr. Whitten is an enthusiastic western and says it is the place for the young man to make good.
