wo Small Boys End Their Lives

One for Love and the Other for School Failure

New York, Feb. 2.-Following quarrel on Sunday with his sweetheart, Edward Gaffer, 15 years old, of No. 710 Hoboken Street, North Bergen, N. J., shot and mortally wounded himself at the corner of Hoboken street and Grand avenue yesterday afternoon. The bullet entered the boy's breast just above the heart and passed entirely through his body At the North Hudson hospital, Union Hill, it was said he could not re-

The boy for some months past had been paying marked attention to Elizabeth Cornelius, fifteen years old living with her parents at 1,864 Summit avenue, Jersey City. Parental opposition disturbed the youthful sweet hearts, and finally Miss Cornelius told Gaffer that he must cease to call upon her. He went to her home Sunday and protested. A quarrel followed and Gaffer told Miss Cornelius that she had seen him for the last time.

The boy returned home, and taking his father's revolver from the bureau drawer walked four blocks to Grand avenue. After firing two shots in the air he sent the third bullet into his

Unable to bear the disappointment of not being promoted with the rest of his class, Samuel Thompson, fifteen years old, a pupil in public school No. 92, Flatbush, went to his home at Winthrop street and Old Clove road, and committed suicide yesterday afternoon by hanging himself to a bed post. The noose was made of the strap which he had around his books when he came home.

Before going to his bedroom, Samuel, who was a son of Walter Thompson, engineer of the King's County hospital, told his mother that he could not stand the disgrace of his ing lags. failure and asked her permission to leave school and go to work. Mrs. Thompson told him she would like him to remain for another year.

The boy's teacher was Miss Anne Cox, who had charge of class 6A. Although Samuel Thompson was the largest boy in the class his marks advance him another grade. After of the room.

Wood Ashes

The ash dealer who makes his rounds through the country bartering soap for ashes should not be encouraged. Ashes that are valuable to him would be worth much more on the farm whereon they were produced. Unleached wood ashes contain a large percentage of potash. This potash furthermore is in a soluble form and therefore, quite available to plant roots. Wood ashes contain anywhere from five to ten per cent. Many farmers do not recognize the value of this fertilizer else they would never allow it to be wasted, as is often the case, or to be sold from the farm.

Experiments conducted by the Ontario Agricultural College shown that an application of potash to the soil has given marked beneficial results. Various authorities on agricultural chemistry recommend wood ashes as one of the chief cor-Following are the members of the rectives for soil acidity. Charges Against Jail Governor

Fourteen of Them are Probed at Cobourg by Dr. P.W. Bruce Cobourg, Feb. 3.-(Special)-Some thirty persons were examined here today before Dr. R. W. Bruce Smith. Inspector of Prisons and Public Charities, Toronto, in connection with fourteen charges made against Major H. J. Snelgrove, for fifteen years the governor of Cobourg jail. The inquiry was ordered by the Provincial Secretary to whom a memorial was sent by the County Council here. The investigation was held in the Court House and great interest in the progress of the enquiry was shown by the crowd that sought admission. The inspector sat all day listening to the evidence in support of the charges. As some difficulty was experienced in obtaining the presence of two witnesses, an adjournment until February 10th was made. Mr. F. M. Field, K.C., appeared for Major Snelgrove.
