KING TO REVIEW THE BOY SCOUTS

His Majesty Will Visit the Boys at Windsor Park on July 4th

It is announced that the King will hold a review of the Boy Scouts at Windsor on July 4. It will be remembered that His Majesty last year became president of the Boy Scouts. The late King honored the movement as long ago as September, 1909, when he sent a message of congratulation to 11,000 of the boys gathered at the Crystal Palace. The review at Windsor Park will take the place of the one which King Edward intended to have held last June, and the arrangements provisionally made for this assembly will probably hold good. One of the features was to have been a "Scouts' rally." Thousands of boys were to have rushed, cheering, from various parts of the parade ground until they joined in a deep circle round the inspecting officer. Then they were to have sung their song, "Hail to the Chief." As the last lines died away it was arranged the scouts should sit on the ground in silence to hear the officer's address. The late King also proposed to make a speech to the boys. A "rally" of this kind will probably take place during the coming review, which will be the most important gathering of scouts held since the movement in its practical form began, some four years ago, in the experimental camp formed at Brownlee Island, Bournemouth.

SANG AT HIS FUNERAL

Ficco's Voice Sounded from a Phonograph Record

We hear now and then of a man reading his own obituary in the papers, but it is a rare thing for a dead man to sing at his own funeral. Pietro Ficco, a shoemaker and amateur musician, had a very great fondness for the phonograph. He purchased a good many records and occasionally sang into his own phonograph and kept records of the songs. He was taken seriously ill. He realized that he could not recover, and being a poor man and unable to afford much of a funeral he requested that his phonograph should be utilized to furnish the music for the funeral service.

He picked out the "Angel's Serenade" and Gounod's "Ave Maria," sung by himself, and these were used, and thus the dead man took an important part at his own funeral service. He instructed that his phonograph and seventy-two records, a number of them his own, should be sent to his mother in Italy.

PUBLIC MEN AND HONEYMOONS

Allan Studholme Wanted to Subtract From Mr. McDougal's Pay

Mr. Allan Studholme says it is up to the member for East Ottawa, Mr. D. J. McDougal, who is on his honeymoon in Southern Italy, to return a portion at least of his indemnity. When a resolution was introduced to pay the full indemnity to Hon. Dr. Reams, Mr. Fox (Victoria), Dr. Godfrey (West York), and Mr. McDougal (East Ottawa), excusing their absence for a portion of the session as the result of illness or the demands of public business, Mr. Studholme objected to Mr. McDougal being included. "He is not on public business (laughter); he's on pleasure (more laughter). They can laugh and take all the fun they like," he retorted, "but when a man who is elected takes unto himself a partner and absents himself, he is not on public business." The resolution passed.

THE KING'S HABITS

His Majesty Will be Kept Hard at Work Until the Coronation is Over

King George is at the moment one of the busiest men in his kingdom. His Majesty is kept hard at it early and late. This is a condition of things that will continue until the Coronation is over. Like the late King Edward, his Majesty is an early riser—a very early riser for London and Mayfair—and after a brief walk in the grounds of Buckingham Palace, sets to work upon the business of the day, so that by the time his private secretaries arrive he has many matters ready for their attention. The King has chosen as his work-room a large and airy apartment on the garden fronting the Palace, where he can gain charming views of the extensive grounds. His Majesty has now engagements of one description or another for every day until well on into July, and it will be a matter of the greatest difficulty to crowd any further appointments in. Indeed, several of minor importance have had to be cut out just lately. According to the usual custom, his Majesty's State portrait should have been hung in the Royal Academy this year, but the King is finding it a matter of great difficulty to give the necessary sittings to the artist, and it is now a matter of some doubt whether the picture can be completed in time.

COUNTRESS OF GRANARD

Formerly Miss Beatrice Mills, who has become one of the leading entertainers in London's inner social circle. Her bi-weekly dinners have become quite famous, and are attended by many statesmen as well as society leaders, including such prominent figures as Lord Knollys, Private Secretary to King George, Earl of Crews, Secretary of State for India, and Mr. Richard B. Haldane, the Secretary of State for War. The Countess is the granddaughter of the late D. O. Mills, of San Francisco, from whom she inherited a large fortune.

Rush for Flats

Nearly 4,000 applications have been received for the dwellings that have been erected at the corner of Old Street and City Road, E.C., at a total cost of about $825,000, by the trustees of the late Mr. W. R. Sutton, the carrier, who left nearly $10,000,000 for model dwellings in London. Only 284 families can be accommodated, at rentals of 75c to $2.25 a week.

HE SAW WARTS

"On the one hand," said the teacher, pointing a long finger to the map on the class-room wall, "we have the far-stretching country of Russia. On the other hand, Tommy?" "Warts," hazarded Tommy, hopelessly with fright.

ZIONISTS ACTIVE

The Federation Has Awakened From Its Drowsiness and Has Taken On Vigor

The English Zionist Federation, which has been very somnolent of late, has awakened from its sleep and has just held a conference at Manchester. The Federation, which by the successive secessions of the two contending parties broke up about a year ago, is, it is understood, about to be revived, or rather revived. At the conference at Manchester the Young Zionist Party, which has never been in full sympathy with the policy of federation, although it accepted representation on its council for a short time, was well represented, and from now on the movement in England will be completely reorganized and will pass virtually under the control of the Young Zionist Party, the English Universities' elements in the movement. As this party is rather severely critical of the policy pursued from the headquarters at Cologne, English Zionism is again likely to make itself heard in the past. In the arrangements for the renewed organization no room seems to be provided for the great protagonists and mutual critics of English Zionism in the past, and presumably therefore, the leaders, Dr. Gaster, Messrs. Greenburg, Cowen, and Herbert Betinck, of the movements within the movement, will remain in their present retirement. Mr. Herbert Betinck, however, is still at the head of his independent Zionist Friendly Society organization, the Ancient Order of Maccabeans, but so far as the public is concerned this also remains quite quiescent.

DELIVERY OF HATS

Dresden Postal Authorities Have a Special Equipment for Big Head Gear

Ladies' hats have always been a source of annoyance to the postal authorities, who find that the gigantic, yet fragile, cardboard boxes, in which the fashionable headgear is packed, shake down badly with other parcels conveyed by post, their size and number making it difficult to stow them away with proper care. Of recent years the Dresden Post Office has been called upon to handle an ever-increasing number of these cardboard boxes. At last the problem has been solved, however, by the Postal Secretary, Herr Kratke, who has constructed a special type of light van covered with brown sail-cloth, which occupies itself exclusively with the collection and delivery of hats. Although few German Ministers have been the subject of more general attack than the Postal Secretary, he has at least enlisted on his behalf the sympathies of the fair sex by so adapting his department to the caprices of fashion.

LASSOED THE LAWYER

The Daring Act of a Woman Found Guilty of Murder

After sentence of twenty years' hard labor had been passed on an elderly widow for the murder of a relative, an unprecedented scene was witnessed in the Montbrison Assize Court. The woman had no sooner heard the words than she drew a lasso out of her dress and flung it with such unerring aim in the direction of a barrister acting for the family of the murdered man, that the noose encircled his neck, and as she tightened it he was pulled to the floor. Had not several of his colleagues and the gendarmes in the hall hastened to the rescue, the unfortunate man would have been strangled outright. As for the excited and too skillful widow, a tremendous struggle ensued before she could be mastered.

Temperature For Baking

The temperature of flour at the time of working has an important influence on the baking. Expert bakers realize this, and a ways aim to have their flour at a uniform temperature. Flour should be warmed for fully twelve to twenty-four hours before using, as flour absorbs heat naturally, and cannot be forced. When yeast is added to cold flour it is chilled before it has a chance to begin work.
