NOTINGS FROM FENELON FALLS

The attendance at the Women's and Farmers' Institute meetings on Wednesday was lamentably small, owing to the stormy weather. The delegates present were Miss Ethel Robson, of Glenora, Mr. Widdifield, of Galt, and Mr. J. T. Stewart, of Dalmeny. The address given were all good and the speaker was thoroughly acquainted with the subject on hand. In the afternoon Mr. Widdifield's subject was "The Destruction of Weeds." The subject Mr. Widdifield said was an old one, and was on the list of nearly every institute speaker, but of late years the Canadian West has been making new additions to the problem. He himself did not feel safe in feeding grain from the West unless it was very freely ground. In letting weeds grow on his premises a man could not be called fair to his neighbor. The speaker gave an outline of his methods in keeping the land clear, showing great faith in corn as an agent in his endeavor. Mr. J. T. Stewart, Dalmeny, Ont., followed with an address on alfalfa, prefacing his talk on this subject with a few telling remarks on weeds, especially the sow thistle, stating that sheep were very apt in killing it. He thought it was time legislation was brought to bear in order to prevent a man's farm from being seeded with weeds from a neighbor's fields, and that a change in farming methods would also have to be made. With regard to alfalfa, he had found it a good substitute for mill feed, for which he had paid high prices. He had had thirteen years experience in growing alfalfa, and stated that in Switzerland there was a field that had been in alfalfa, and was growing good crops yet. Up to five years ago he had not used nitro-culture, and had not very much success, but since using the culture he found a wonderful difference. It is foolish not to use it when a bottle of it can be had for 25c from the Experimental Farm at Guelph, enough to treat 60 lbs. of seed, with full directions. Directions must be followed closely in applying the nitro-culture. It must be kept dark, as sunlight will kill it, but is the only thing that will do so. Expert advice on the growing of alfalfa was then given by the speaker, who stated that a prominent dairyman in his neighborhood turns sixty head of cattle on the second crop and takes them off Sept. 1st, and gets a big flow of milk during the scarce season. Alfalfa contains everything to make milk and keep the animals healthy. Alfalfa will grow on any land that is drained but not on wet land. No seed but the best should be sown, and it is safe to buy it from a seedsman with a reputation. The Women's Institute meeting, in the afternoon was addressed by Miss Ethel Robson of Idertan, on the subject "Literature and Life." The chair was occupied by Mrs. Dr. Gould, who introduced Miss Robson to the audience. Before touching on the subject Miss Robson spoke of the work and aims of the Women's Institute. She said that women to-day are in a far different position to the one they occupied in the past. They must realize that they are face to face with fundamentals. The Institute motto, "For Home and Country" gives them a wide field. They give home a first place but where they do not reach out you will find them languishing. The Women's Institute is too big to keep to just one subject. Their interest, beginning in the home, has spread to the schools and to many other objects. In regard to literature the speaker stated that we in Canada to-day are not a literary people. In most homes you will find few books, and rarer still you find people making friends of books. By this is meant, reading a book over and over again, and making it a part of ourselves. In school our children get a certain knowledge of literature which is meant to stimulate their interest in the best poetry and prose. Why do they not then care to follow up the pursuit and read and more and more of the best in literature? Largely because these things are not known and loved at home. We in Canada have no literature of our own, though we have writers who have produced sweet poetry and good prose. The Scotch people have their Burns, who could invest the common things of life with romance and sentiment. The thought expressed, doubles its value. To-day we have to be content with the literature of other lands. The Book of Books, the foundation of Anglo-Saxon literature, which has colored all our thoughts and ideas of life, and moulded public opinion, we have received from the people of Israel. Poetry and rhythm are the natural way of expressing joyousness and happiness, the thought expressed in words which music lacks. Naïve rhymes are the little child's literature. Of the arts, literature is the only one which makes no appeal to the senses. Of architecture, sculpture, music, painting, literature, the poem is the most universal in its appeal to one in which Divine Spirit has taken form to express itself in humanity. Literature was inherent in the heart before it went into books. The Bible speaks to human hearts and fills them with a love of truth and righteousness. Speaking of the practical value of literature, if a wise choice is made in fiction, it will serve to lift us out of a narrow view of life, a well told story will bring us in touch with all kinds of life. Children when among refined people naturally respond if brought into contact with coarse rough natures, some other element will be awakened. Women's natural refinement seeks for expression in many ways she seeks to express her love for the beautiful, the good and the true. Music in the home is pleasing but it lacks the element of thought. Canada is in the making, and her woman cannot afford to let any opportunities slip. Let them find out what is worth while and work for it. Cultivate in children the love of good literature and its relationship to life. In conclusion Miss Robson gave a Shakespearean reading - the balcony scene from Romeo and Juliet. At the conclusion of the address Miss Tilly Patten gave a well rendered piano solo. The regular business of the branch was then transacted, and the meeting closed with the singing of the National Anthem. At the evening meeting Miss Robson, of Idertan, spoke on "The Economic Problem of the Country Girl." In considering this problem the speaker said that in the past the women on the farm were allowed the butter and egg money, but now the cheese factory and creamery had made a change, and the men now claimed the revenue from these products, and the poultry revenue was beginning to go the same direction. Girls are now dissatisfied with such conditions, and are going out to work in schools, shops and factories, and the farm is becoming merely a place to raise a family to go away and work at some other occupation. However there has lately been a reaction in favor of country life, and girls are taking up such work as poultry keeping and bee culture with profit. Mr. Stuart then gave a splendid and practical address on "Getting Eggs in Winter" given from personal experience in this line. Rev. C. S. Lord addressed the audience giving a brief but telling address in which he dwelt on the fact that the population of rural Ontario at the last census was 100,000 less than it was ten years ago, and asking for a remedy for the falling off. He said that farmers had become one of the learned professions and should magnify their profession. Mr. Widdifield followed with a good address on the subject of Nature Study, giving examples of the wonderful things in nature which pass unnoticed by the ordinary observer, and especially by the farmer who has a better opportunity to study these wonders than most people. Mr. Thos. Guy then favored the audience with a vocal solo, accompanied by Miss Hamlin, and responded to an encore. Miss Patten gave a piano solo which was much appreciated and Miss E. Robson recited "Sunflowers" in excellent style. Mr. W. H. Gullis officiated as Chairman. The proceedings closed with the singing of the National Anthem.

HOORCASTLE Last week was very stormy and every body is getting tired of winter. We hope that spring will soon be here so that the snow will leave and the green grass appear. Miss Anna Fitzgerald, of Victoria Road, visited Miss Catharine Duggan, for a few days last week. Mrs. Wm. Holder, jr., visited with friends in Head Lake. Mr. Wm. Duggan has returned from the woods. We are all glad to see him home again. Miss Margaret Millaley visited with friends in Victoria Road for a few days. Mr. Tom Millaley and family entertained a number of guests on Monday night. The evening was spent in dancing until the wee sma' hours. Mr. Rich Asby took a sleigh load to a party at Mr. John Walsh's, of Kirkfield, on Monday. Mr. Alex. Matchett and Mark Ashby intend returning to McTaggart soon. Mr. and Mrs. John Millaley, Wm. Duggan and Mr. H. Hicks took in a day of the Winter Carnival in Lindsay.

Valentia News Of Interest Still the storms are raging, and summer is suspended from time to time. Mr. Murvin Lane, a highly respected citizen of this section, went out to Myrtle a few days since to take unto himself a wife. The wedding was solemnized on Tuesday, the 11th inst. but the roads were so bad that the guests from here were unable to get there. The Baker-Lumber Co. camp in this section broke up on Saturday last, and the men are taking their places for the summer. As spring approaches, there is an active demand for men. Feed is very scarce and high in price around here. A number of horse buyers have visited this part of late but they are not paying as high prices as last year. The farmers south and east of here are expecting to get the rural mail service in the near future. MIGHT HAVE KNOWN THE DIFFERENCE Midland Free Press: In an adjoining town, while a ladies' card club was playing for a $2 book as a prize, the sons of these same ladies, small boys, were arrested in a hay mow, while playing for a 50c. prize. They had organized a club like their mothers. The mothers cried and said: "What a terrible place this town is to raise boys, anyhow!" Served them right. They might have known the difference between a hay mow and a parlor, and a $2 and a 50 cent prize.

THE NE TEMERE DECREE

The Montreal Herald prints the following under the caption "Conscience and Civil Status."

Archbishop Bruchesi is on firm ground when he insists, as he did in his allocution of Sunday, that the rules of the church are binding upon the consciences of those who adhere to it. The controversy now raging does not address itself to that, for the desire to associate the three central events of human existence, birth, marriage and death, with the religion one professes; seems to be common to all forms of religion. The English Non-conformist objected strenuously, and successfully, to being obliged to go to the church of the established religion to be married; he preferred the ceremony to be associated with the ministrations of his own religion. Even the Salvation Army, in the early days of its normal existence, showed itself eager for leave to conform to world-wide usage in this respect. So thoroughly is agreement all men on this subject that the right to be married according to the forms of one's own religious affiliation has come to be accepted as an elementary condition of religious liberty, and the free grant of it to men of all religions, the first sure sign of equality of all subjects before the law. It has been held in all ages, alike by the Huguenots in France, the Non-conformists in England, the Presbyterians in Scotland, and the Catholics in Ireland, that conscience takes first place in ordering the lives of men, if need be even to the defiance or disregard of civil law. When, therefore, Mr. Bruchesi says the rules of the church apply to its members, in conscience, he is consistent with the practice of religions since the world began.

leaves him absolutely free to conform to the tenets of his religion will not hold itself bound to absolve him from the consequences of what he may do if he chooses to withdraw from that jurisdiction. Unwillingly, he cannot be held, under the modern concept of the liberty of the subject; willing or unwilling, he is bound towards society by his acts done of his free volition. That seems to be the ruling of Mr. Justice Charbonneau. That, however, violent and unreasoned may have been the argument of some of its supporters, is the view of most of the critics of the jurisprudence preceding Judge Charbonneau's decision.

IMPORTING EGGS INTO THE COUNTRY

One would think from some of the comments of the press that it was a shame and disgrace that Canada should have to import eggs. This is a farming country, we are told, and we ought to be able to raise enough hens to provide eggs for the whole population. That is all very well as a theory; but if the hens will not lay during the winter months, what are we going to do about it? Surely look around for some country where the hens do lay during the winter or the very early spring. At the present time the pleasant cackle of the hen who has just done her duty to the community by depositing a nice egg, is heard in every farm yard south of Mason & Dixie's line, where by now the grass is beginning to sprout. Why should not our produce dealers import eggs from the sunny south at this time, when it is difficult to get them here, for love or money? With fresh eggs at from 40 to 60 cents a dozen it will pay to look for another source of supply than the snow covered farms of Ontario. - Kingston

Mr. Wm. Quinn, of Peterboro, was a visitor to town to-day.

It Is Foolish

To think you can get the best article for the price of an inferior one. This fact is well demonstrated in Aromatic Casagra, a popular remedy at the present time. There are many qualities of it on the market, but the kind recommended by the medical profession, as one of sterling worth is Stearn's aromatic Casagra, otherwise known as

Kasagra

This is the only kind we sell. It costs 10c per ounce anywhere, but every druggist does not sell it. You can't get any other kind at
