MISS MITCHELL'S MILLINERY OPENING

The early millinery openings of the season at Miss Mitchell's parlors over Campbell's grocery started last Thursday. The room was tastefully decorated with the new spring flowers and other decorations, the large display was exceptionally grand. The large show room was well attended with citizens, including several other good milliners and the remarks passed between them promises a successful season.

Among the beautiful models that merited particular attention was a large sterling shape made of cream mohair braid, trimmed with two large imitation willow plumes, the plumes standing up straight at right side, and falling gracefully over the crown, then it has a wreath of light tan, satin rose buds all round crown, and coming up high at right side.

Another attractive shape was to be had in a turban shape of cream mohair braid, the braid being loosely draped around brim while the crown was covered with deep cream silk roses and a large bow of the mohair braid at side back standing straight. A beautiful effect was to be seen in a large black picture hat trimmed with numerous plumes, with large jet cabochons at side, front with streamers of black satin ribbon and silk lace with large loops here and there on streamers, the hat amounting to $105.00. Flowers, bows, chons, buckle, wings and quill effects are also in evidence, orange is gaining great prominence. Cardinal red for obvious reasons, is being much talked over at present, in fact the season so far may be classified as one of extremely vivid coloring. About the only delicate combination favored is light grey and white and the pastel shades which are worked out in malines. Malines, by the way, is much in evidence, and its use is expected to continue and to grow. Among the popular feathers are pheasant, merle, and brush effects in variegated colors, ostrich, particularly amazon and willows are selling for immediate consumption and for the Easter trade.

This is to be the coronation year, and hats will be brilliant as to colors and striking as to design. All of the fashions are after the Empire period, both as to design and color. The season opens up great possibilities for a clever designer.

Proceedings of Ops Council

The following resolution was passed in Ops Council March 11th:

That this council regrets the appearance in the "Warder" newspaper dated Feb. 14th and 15th of an article headed "Ops council" and stating that certain disclosures had been made at a recent meeting of the said council charging a former road commissioner with having taken commission on money he had not expended. Every member and the clerk of the said council hereby affirm that no such report was ever given by them to any reporter or anyone in connection with the said newspaper, and they hereby censure such reporter for publishing any such statement without having anything therefor but street gossip.

Further, that it be explained that the only thing that could have given rise to such a misleading statement is the fact that it had been casually mentioned, without discussion, that Mr. P. Hawkins had taken commission on his whole appropriation for 1911 whereas $17 of the said appropriation had remained in the treasury as the work let had not been completed. And Mr. Hawkins has now at this present meeting shown that he had expended some other moneys in his division as per interim orders on which he could have charged commission, the figures for everything cleared up being as follows: Moneys as per interim orders on which Mr. Hawkins had not taken commission in 1910, $7.22, and in 1911 $97.50, making in all $104.72. Excess of appropriation money on which commission was taken by Mr. Hawkins, in 1910, $66.23, and in 1911 $17.84, in all $84.07. Balance on which Mr. Hawkins is entitled to com. $20.65. Commission on the same at 5 per cent. being $1.03 to be now paid to Mr. Hawkins. Certified a correct copy of resolution adopted in council, and ordered to be published.
