The Hughes Cup, emblematic of the championship of the Hughes tournament, will, this year, find a resting place at the Collegiate Institute. In one of the greatest exhibitions of hockey ever dished up on the local rink (and mind you there has been some grand ones) the students defeated the Olympias by the score of 5-4.

Old hockey enthusiasts, who have witnessed many grueling and sensational battles, are unanimous in declaring that they never witnessed a finer exhibition, and they know what they were talking about. It was a ding dong struggle to the close, with something doing all the time — and then some. The losers went down with their colors flying, and took their defeat like sports.

Columns could be written on the struggle, which was replete with sensational stunts, and plays which made the fans sit up and gasp, and the more exuberant ones cheer. It was a splendid demonstration of the stamina and vigor of the Canadian youth, and will go down in hockey annals as the finest exposition of this grand Canadian game in many moons. All honor is due the victors as well as the vanquished ones.

That this tournament is the great sporting event of the season was demonstrated by the vast throng at the game. It reminded one of the crowds that used to turn out when the Midgets and Peterboro clashed. Nothing else was talked of this week but the game, and the supporters of both teams were out in force. The Collegiate fans were out in full force and punctuated the proceedings with their demonstrations and shouts of encouragement to their team. The loyal band of Olympia supporters urged their team to deeds of valor, cheering them valiantly at all times. It was a sight alike for men and angels — if we can use the term.

Manager Coombs aid by one John Frost, dished up a magnificent sheet of ice, and it was a treat for the gods to see the boys scintillating over its hard surface. The fans were carried away by the chain lightning features of the play which was nerve racking and sensational.

The struggle, while characterized by phenomenally close checking, could not be placed in the category of rough contests. True, a number of men were ruled off for minor misdemeanors, but if they violated the them. Up to last evening he only allowed two goals to get by him in a series of seven games.

Frank Carew held down point position for the students to the king's taste, and was a tower of strength to the winners. He made many splendid rushes, and used his weight to good advantage. Norman McConnell played a phenomenal game at cover. This was his second appearance on skates — this winter, and he shared the honors with Paton of the Olympias. His corkscrew rushes were dazzling and his presence on the team was in a great measure responsible for the students' victory. "Chuck" Carew and McElroy in mid ice were a dashing pair. They checked splendidly and took desperate chances in penetrating the Olympias' defence. Both figured prominently in the scoring. The students have two splendid forwards in Shields and Coombs. They were aggressive and speedy at all times, and gave their checks a busy time. Taking the team as a whole, it is head and shoulders over a whole lot travelling in Intermediate O.H.A. this year.

The Olympias had the same line-up last night that won the Hughes Cup and Town League silverware last year, and when they appeared on the ice they got the glad hand from their many supporters. They had the advantage in weight, and were looked upon by a great many as the probable winners. Their forwards always performed brilliantly and hung to their checks like leeches. They took all sorts of chances in their bombardment of the students' defence, and hailed innumerable shots at Williamson that looked like sure tallies, but the fates decided otherwise. Newton held down the nets very well, but did not scintillate like Williamson. He had a busy time at different intervals in the game. McMahon, the sturdy point player, dished up a rattling fine exhibition of the game. He played well in on the nets, and also brought the crowd to its feet by his many fine rushes. The students' score might have been larger but for his stellar work. Metherell, at cover, while closely watched, injected his old time speed into his playing, and pulled off some splendid play. He met the onrush of the students in good form, and went through a terrific grueling. Herb Paton's work last night was characterized by its brilliancy and finish. He was the pick of the forwards of both teams, and played magnificent hockey, zig-zagging and winding his way right to the students' nets. He took great chances, but came out unscathed. Carl Sylvester was in rare form. He covered his check in faultless style, and played a dashing, finished, consistent game. Mercer at left wing played the game of his life. He bored in on the students' defence time and again, and was a tower of strength to his team. Preston on the other wing, held down his position nicely. He had a hard check in Shields, but managed to elude him several times.

The game opened with both teams going at it hammer and tongs. Up and down the ice the disc glided, and the forwards of both teams were unable to get a combined rush going. The checking was terrific. Finally the puck shifted to Olympia territory and Chuck Carew in a neat shot from the side fooled Newton for the first tally. Right from the face off the Olympias carried the puck to the Collegiate goal, and on a pass from Preston Paton scored on a beautiful shot. This tied up matters and the fans held their breath for further developments. Shots from mid ice and lifts featured the playing, while the forwards of the teams battled gallantly. Finally McElroy secured the disk and in a neat play broke the score, making it 2-1 for the students. The students started to press matters, but the Olympias bravely withstood the onslaught. Both teams shot wild at times. Finally McConnell on a beautiful rush passed the puck to Coombs, who made it 2-2 for the students.

The Olympias then got busy and bombarded the students' nets. Their shots went wide, however Mercer secured the puck after a scrimmage, passed it out to mid ice, where Metherell intercepted it. He sent in a long shot that fooled Williamson, and Olympia stock went up. Score 3-2. After the face off the fans were treated to some chain lightning hockey, that was impossible to follow. F. Carew put Metherell in the air, and the latter fouled. Both went off. Coombs started chopping tactics and was penalized. There was something doing now all along the line, and both defences were busy. Intense excitement prevailed until the close of this half.

If the first half was exciting, the second period was doubly so. The fans stood up, sat down, leaned over the ice space and shouted themselves hoarse as the teams went at it in die-dog-or-eat-the-hatchet style. The Collegiate were pressing matters, and McElroy lost a great chance for a score. Then the Olympias took a hand in the pressing and then there was something doing. They rained a fusillade of shots on the students' nets, but they were

STRONGLY ADVISES "FRUIT-A-TIVES"

Because They Cured Him, And They Will Cure You

WALKERTON ONT., MAY 9th. 1911. "I have been in Walkerton in business for a good many years and many of my townsmen know that my health, for long periods was precarious. My trouble was extreme Nervousness, brought on by Indigestion and Dyspepsia, from which I suffered in the most severe form. I noticed one of your published testimonials of how someone had used "Fruit-a-tives" for similar trouble and asked Mr. Hunter, my druggist, his opinion on the matter and he advised their use. I immediately procured several boxes and I am pleased to say that I now enjoy splendid health and could not possibly feel better. I can eat with every degree of satisfaction and sleep without an effort. I strongly advise anyone suffering from like complaints, to commence using "Fruit-a-tives". ALEX. either wide or were taken care of by Williamson. Then the battle shifted to the Olympias' goal where the students swarmed like bees. Newton saved the nets several times, and cleared beautifully a great shot by "Chuck" Carew. McMahon then made a grand rush the length of the ice, and back came Frank Carew with a shot. The Collegiate were pressing at this stage, but the Olympia defence acted grandly. Newton went off for reminding a student that he was in too close on the nets. Frank Carew followed for an infraction of the hockey code. Paton then secured the puck, and with a grand rush shot dangerously close. It was cleared nicely. In a scrimmage Metherell bumped McElroy and journeyed to the penalty box. The students took advantage of his absence and pressed closely, causing the Olympias to rally to the defence of their goal. McMahon then made one of his fine rushes and Mercer brought joy to the Olympias' followers by tying the score, making it 3-3.

Ye gods and little fishes! Maybe there wasn't something doing after this. Every player had his shut eye open, and the way they dashed after the puck was a revelation to the crowd. McConnell got in one of his rushes and nearly scored.

After some hair raising stunts the students broke the tie. Score 4-3. Then followed another sensational period. Both teams had opportunities to score, but either shot at long range or miscalculated at short range. In a scrimmage along the boards near the Olympia goal Metherell met with an accident and fell to the ice in a dazed condition. He was carried to the dressing room, and the game was delayed until his reappearance. There are two versions of the accident. One is that Metherell accidentally hit Shields' weak ankle and that the latter in falling struck the former with his stick. The other is that Shields raised his stick and struck him. The referee or those in the penalty box did not see the occurrence. However, Metherell was injured and Shields went to the penalty box. The Olympias had a monopoly on the play and were in and around the students' nets. The excitement was now at blood heat. The students broke away and Coombs nearly scored. Frank Carew tripped Paton. To the box for Frank. "Chuck" tallied for the students, making it 5-3.

After the face off a mix up occurred near the students' goal. It waged merry for a time, but referee Kelly poured oil on the troubled ice, and penalized McConnell and Sylvester. The Olympias now had the best of the argument and Metherell seeing a fine opening took advantage of it, making the score 5-4. "Tie it up," cried the fans, and the Olympias plunged in like veterans. They had the students guessing all the time. Paton missed a fine opportunity to score, and the puck travelled to the Olympia citadel, where McMahon relieved nicely. The game closed with the puck in on the students' defence.

The teams were as follows:—
Williamson
F. Carew
N. McConnell
C. Carew
McElroy

Coombs
Mercer

NOTES
The Collegiate students crowded around their players and cheered lustily, escorting them to the dressing room in triumph. They afterwards dined at Taylor's restaurant.

As stated above, the Olympias took their defeat like sports. It was a hard game to lose.

The Olympias are in the race for the Town League championship, and are bound to hold it.

Considerable money changed hands last night as a result of the game. The Olympias were given an oyster supper by their enthusiastic supporter, Tony Bakogeorge.

Six penalties were registered against the Collegiate last night and 'our against Olympias.

The Hughes Tournament is the event par excellence of the season. It was well handled, and Mr. A. M. Paton, the trustee of the trophy, is to be congratulated.

Referee Kelly says there is material in Lindsay for a fast junior team.

If Lindsay had some more citizens imbued with the same sporting spirit which characterizes Tony Bakogeorge it would be a good thing for athletics in this town. He has kept the Olympias together for two years, has furnished their uniforms, skates, ticks and other supplies gratuitously. He has spared neither money or time. He is a good sport from the ground up, and the boys are proud of him.

Another great struggle is promised when the Olympias and students come together in the Town League series.

INTERPRETATION OF DICKENS' CHARACTERS

Once more the citizens of Lindsay are indebted to Mr. C. C. Forsyth for providing a literary treat in the appearance at the Academy of Music last evening of the talented interpreter of Dickens' characters, William Sterling Battis.

A select audience greeted the talented entertainer last evening, and his delineation of the many characters immortalized by Chas. Dickens was a treat of the highest order. Mr. Battis "made up" in depicting the characters in full view of the audience, and the transitions made were done in voice, character and action. He is in a class by himself as an interpreter and Mr. Forsyth is to be commended on his enterprise in bringing such an entertainer to Lindsay.
