

Jottings From Janetville

A glance at an up-to-date map of Ontario shows you "Janetville" in Durham county, right on the shore of Lake Scugog.

But the place thus indicated is Janetville station on the new C. P. R. line from Burketon to Lindsay, and is two and a half miles north-west of the village whose name it bears.

From the crest of the gently-sloping hill which overlooks the village on the north, the tourist obtains the best general view of Janetville. For, there the altitude is such that the whole place lies spread before him apparently upon a level plain at the foot of the hill. In reality, this plain is intersected by several ravines, through which pretty streams leap and sparkle on their way to the lake, and the village winds along the sides, dives into and climbs out of these valleys in a careless fashion that appeals to the eye of the artist. Despite its inconvenience with respect to the railway station—an inconvenience which is greatly increased by the fact that there is no public conveyance between these points—Janetville is quite a busy place.

It is about the same size as Rose-neath, and contains three well-stocked general stores, in one of which is the post office.

Besides these there are two black-smith shops; a machine shop, a flour mill and a saw mill.

On entering the village from the north the attention of a stranger is at once attracted by a stately mansion of white brick, surrounded by extensive and well kept grounds. It is the residence and office of Dr. J. L. Johnston, the village medic. It is only a few months since Dr. Johnston came here from Fournier, Prescott county, but he has acquired the reputation of being a careful and skillful physician and has established a large and growing practice. At New Year's he brought hither his bride from the scenes which "Ralph Connor" has rendered famous in "The Man From Glengarry."

Another professional man in the village is Dr. Stanley Gilson, veterinary surgeon, who is, in his line, a skillful and successful practitioner.

For a country village, Janetville contains a number of fine public buildings, chief of which is the Methodist church. This commodious building of white brick, with stone basement, the whole structure being almost entirely above the ground. The main entrance to the edifice is in the basement, and is on a level with the street. The stairways leading to the auditorium go up from either side of the interior of the vestibule. This mode of architecture may not present so artistic an appearance, viewed from the exterior, as some other styles, but it does away with the discomfort—danger even—of ascending and descending a flight of steps exposed to the elements especially in winter, an advantage which amply atones for any slight lack in architectural beauty. A door in the vestibule communicates with the remaining portion of the basement, or access may be had to it by means of an entrance in the side of the building. There is also a stairway from the basement to the church which is used for the ingress and egress of the choir and minister.

Close beside the church stands the parsonage. This is, as it should be, one of the largest and finest residences in the village. It, too, is built of white brick, with a spacious veranda running along two sides. The interior of the parsonage is also most conveniently arranged.

The Orange Society is strong in this neighborhood. They have a neat frame hall on McGill street.

Large and more pretentious is the building recently erected on Main street by the C. O. F. This serves a variety of purposes, besides that of a meeting place for the society. In the front part of the edifice is located the Farmers' Bank, the remaining portion is used for holding concerts and all kinds of public entertainments. At present it is the seat of education during five days of the week.

The reason for this unusual condition of affairs is that the school-house with all contents was destroyed by fire last autumn, so late in the season as to render rebuilding out of the question until spring. Under these circumstances recourse was had to the Forester's hall, and a brief description of the primitive conditions under which Miss Luella Cussler, the principal of the school, and myself perform our daily duties may be of interest to our younger readers especially.

The hall is well lighted, well warmed and well ventilated. The ceiling, which is high and arched, is metallic, as are also the side-walls. But the only partition between the senior and junior "rooms" is a cotton curtain, hung upon a wire stretched across the hall about six feet from the floor. Each room is furnished with long desks, capable of accommodating from six to eight pupils per desk. Chairs serve in lieu of seats. As the hall is so often in requisition for entertainments, ev-everything in the line of school furniture must be such as can be quickly removed upon occasion.

The new school house, which will be ready for use on the re-opening of school after mid-summer vacation, will be erected the same as the former one. It will be a two-room school capable of seating upwards of forty pupils in each room. The building will contain a basement, will be furnace heated and thoroughly up-to-date in all its equipment.

The location is a quarter of a mile beyond the outskirts of the village to the south.

Manvers Tp. is under local option today, but long before such a measure had been mooted, the good people of Janetville determined that their pretty little burg should be free from the foul blot of legalized traffic in strong drink. It was a hard fought battle, but the temperance party won, and for at least a quarter of a century there has been no licensed hotel in this village.

But an excellent temperance house under the management of Mr. James Hobbs affords admirable accommodation to the public.

The name "Janetville" was bestowed in honor of Mrs. McDiarmid, wife of one of the earliest settlers in the place, Janet being the good lady's christian name.

Thus the village bears a Scotch name, while the inhabitants thereof, with very few exceptions, are Irish.

The leading denomination in this part of the country is the Methodist and Janetville congregation is one of the most prosperous circuits in Lindsay district.

At the regular Sunday services the church is well-filled, even when roads and weather are bad. At other times it is crowded. This speaks well for the character of the community and also proclaims the popularity of the pastor, Rev. T. Snowden.

To those who have had the pleasure of acquaintance with Mr. and Mrs. Snowden, nothing further need be said, but for the benefit of others we may add that the circuit to which Rev. T. Snowden is assigned may congratulate itself on having secured a minister scholarly, cultured, singularly free from prejudice and bigotry, yet holding fast the essentials of faith. A man who will give them Sunday after Sunday noble and inspiring thoughts, and throughout the week will live his sermons.

Mrs. Snowden is to the manor born, having been the daughter of the parsonage, and is pre-eminently fitted for the sphere which she adorns. All departments of church work are in active operation.

Janetville church choir is more than locally famous, especially for its male quartette. The dual position of organist and choir-leader is most efficiently filled by Mrs. Walter McGill.

The Presbyterian church, a small but pretty white wooden structure, stands half-a-mile out of the village to the south. This is one of the appointments on Pontypool charge. The charge is vacant, but has had stated supply for the past year in the person of Mr. Gomm, a Knox College student, who is doing good work.

POWLES CORNERS (Special to The Post)

Two more dry seasons and another long winter and a changeable one will put a good many farmers out of business unless they have a good bank account.

The many friends of Mr. O. Glasspell will regret to learn that he is in a critical condition.

Mr. W. Lamb is not recovering as fast as his neighbors and friends would wish.

Mrs. John L. Brown spent from Saturday until Monday at Fenelon Falls.

Mr. and Mrs. M. G. Littleton, of Fenelon Falls, were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Jas. Powles last Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Herb Keown, of Palestine, Eldon, were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. M. Herron last Sunday.

Miss S. Wagar will be one of Lindsay's citizens for an indefinite period of time.

There have been a few quilting bees and they are not all over yet.

A BEAUTIFUL LIFE

Gone to Dwell with a Loving Saviour

Miss Elizabeth R. Douglas, daughter of Margaret and J. W. Douglass, was born in Fenelon township, near Cambray, Sept. 23, 1888, and died on April 20, 1909. Deceased moved with her parents to Sheridan township, Huron county, Michigan, in 1892. From there to Bingham township, where they purchased a fine farm in 1898, their present residence. The funeral was held from the Methodist church, Thursday, at 1 o'clock p.m. April 22. Rev. Mackenzie, of the First Presbyterian church, her pastor, assisted by the Rev. Blake, of the M. E. church, conducted the service. The funeral was one of the largest ever witnessed in the memory of those present.

Lizzie, as she was called by all her friends, was the eldest of six children. Lemuel, Mabel, Cora and Franklin are at home with their parents, and Athol E., who died November 19, 1896. Being a bright scholar with an excellent memory, she completed the completed the subjects taught in the common school while quite young. A lover of home she stayed to assist her parents on the farm.

With a Christian character from a babe, she joined the First Presbyterian church of Ubbly, where she was active in Christian Endeavor work, and her sweet voice mingled with the other voices in the choir.

The deceased selected her own pallbearers and also selected the following hymns to be sung: Rock of Ages Safe in the Arms of Jesus, Our God Knows Best, (anthem). No more Good-Byes. No life so pure and so true could stay with us long upon earth.

"When I soar to worlds unknown, See Thee on Thy judgment throne. Rock of Ages, cleave for me Let me hide myself in Thee."

Her last words, uttered a few minutes before departing were: "When will He let me go to sleep."

To the almost heart-broken parents who mourn for their eldest born as Rachel weeping for her children, words of condolence are meaningless. He only can comfort them whose tender sympathy goes out so freely to all who mourn. Through him alone faith can see a star, and hope may hear the rustling of an angel's wing.

St. Thomas Architect Inspects Our Schools

Was Not Favorably Impressed With Our Buildings— Will Report Upon Them

Mr. N. R. Darrach, of St. Thomas, the architect who designed the plans for the splendid schools possessed by the Calamity City and who was secured by the local Board of Education to inspect the schools of this town, was here yesterday. He made a tour of inspection of the different institutions. It is understood that he was not very favorably impressed with existing conditions. The collegiate institute was, he thought, a very good building, but the Central, Francis-st., north and east ward structures were most unsatisfactory. Mr. Darrach left for St. Thomas Tuesday evening and his report will be presented at the regular meeting of the Board on Tuesday, May 4th.
