

General French Will Inspect

Inspection Will Likely Camp at Kingston This Year

March 28.—General Sir French, the famous British soldier, will sail from Liverpool for Kingston on May 13. Through his visit to the city, it is expected that some of the private nature of the Dominion, and the various troops as possible, will be addressed by the general and artillery, and the cavalry and artillery, will be assembled at Petawawa camp...

Ireland, and received his education in Trinity University, Dublin. In 1861 he was married to Margaret Hussey of Lindsay, who predeceased him two years ago.

The deceased has been a highly respected resident of Peterboro for 21 years, coming here from Orillia, was a devoted member of St. John's church, and a staunch Conservative in politics. He leaves to mourn his loss Capt. W. R. Staunton, Port Arthur; Mrs. T. W. Wood, Orillia; Mrs. S. F. M. Touchbourne, "Pinehurst," Ida; Mrs. James Pavitt Archer Campbellford; Mr. Wilfrid J. Staunton, Spokane, Wash., and Miss Maud, Ernest, Clarence and Harvie, of this city.

General sympathy is extended to the family, as it is only a fortnight since the death of their eldest brother.

The funeral will be held on Tuesday afternoon at 2.30 from the family residence, 20 Benson street, Peterboro.

Technicality in The Dog Bylaw

Case Against County Magistrate F. D. Moore is Withdrawn

(From Monday's Evening Post) In the case of the Town of Lindsay vs. County Magistrate F. D. Moore, under the new dog by-law the town this afternoon withdrew its charge on account of a technicality, the by-law not having become legal at the date of the prosecution, because the official seal had not at that time been affixed. The matter has been remedied by the town fathers so that any future prosecutions will be conducted according to law.

Peterboro Thief Was Sentenced

Peterboro, March 26.—Larry Kelly, who stole 126 lockets and fourteen watches from the samples of a traveller for Knox & Co., jewellers, Toronto, at a local hotel, was given one year in the central today by Judge Huycke. Ferro Bruno was sentenced to six months in the central for stabbing.

Wedding Bells

CAMERON—SMITH A quiet and pretty wedding was solemnized at "Hillview" Farm, Lorneville, Ont., on Wednesday in the presence of the immediate relatives of the bride and bridegroom, when Mr. Neil Cameron, of Lorneville, Ontario, was married to Miss Tena May Smith, second daughter of Mr. J. C. Smith. The marriage service was conducted by Rev. J. L. Campbell, of Toronto, uncle of the bride. She was attired in white silk, and carried a bouquet of carnations and lilies of the valley, and was attended by her youngest sister, Marthella, as ring-bearer. Her travelling dress was of blue lady's cloth and hat of white. The bride and groom left for Toronto Niagara Falls and Buffalo. After the wedding trip they will reside at Beaverton, Ont. The groom's gift to the bride was a pearl crescent. The wedding march was played by Miss Laura, sister of the bride.

MUSKRATS SCARCE SO TRAPPERS SAY

Muskrat trappers report the rats as being scarce this year, and blame this state of affairs upon those who trap out of season. If illegal trapping is indulged in much longer the rat will become extinct in the southern stretch of the Scugog.

NEW YORK YOUNG LADY'S BODY FOUND ON A FIRE ESCAPE

New York, March 28.—The body of Ruth Wheeler, the little girl graduate who was lured from her widowed mother last Thursday by a decoy offer of employment, was found late Saturday afternoon huddled in a gunny sack, on a fire escape outside the apartment of Albert Wolter, the man charged with her abduction. She had been strangled with a short end of rope, hacked with a knife, burned beyond recognition, and thrust carelessly out of doors like so much rubbish.

Identification was possible only by shreds of clothing and fragments of jewelry, but there was abundant evidence of how the murder had been done. Around the neck were the charred fibres of manila rope burnt into the flesh. The apartment reeked with kerosene. There were oil stains in front of the newly-painted fire-board that had an open grate.

The girl's clothing and hair had been saturated with kerosene, the fire-board had been removed and the body thrust up the chimney, standing. When the match was touched to her, she burned like a torch. Probably the murderer had hoped for an opportunity to remove the body under cover of night, but when the girl's disappearance raised such an uproar and he began to suspect he was shadowed, he had packed up and fled.

A neighbor living on the same floor of an adjoining house noticed the lumpy bundle outside his window and thinking it refuse, poked it off the fire escape into the back yard with a broom handle. The bundle moved obstinately and fell with a crash. His curiosity aroused, the neighbor hurried down stairs for the janitor to investigate.

Ruth Wheeler was fifteen years of age, the youngest of three sisters bred by their mother, a dressmaker, to self-support. Both the elder sisters are stenographers, and Ruth had just been graduated from a business college.

The girl had been carefully brought up. She was never on the streets at night, and her failure to come home for 24 hours without explanation meant more than a caprice. The next morning her sisters, Pearl and Adelaide, in serious concern, went to the college and learned that the following postcard had been turned over to her:

"Dear Madam: Please call in reference to position of stenographer at residence of the secretary. (Signed) A. Wolter, 122 East 105th street."

Investigation at the address given soon showed that Wolter, whom his landlady described as a sickly, white-faced youth of about twenty, with flashy clothes and elaborately curled hair, had left the apartment where he had lived with his wife, earlier in the same day. He received many calls from young girls, said the landlady, and she had particularly noticed that the last one who called was fresher of face and better dress than the ordinary run of them.

With Wolter fled, the detectives waited for his wife. When she appeared they trailed her to a corner, where she met a man answering Wolter's description. He was immediately arrested, taken back to the room he had vacated, and searched. At first he denied writing postal cards to the schools, but when detectives turned up answers from business schools, addressed to him at various house numbers, he admitted the correspondence, but could not explain it.

Before a magistrate he had nothing to say, but to others he admitted that the woman with whom he was living is not his wife. He met her shortly after coming to this country from Germany two years ago, he said; they fell in love and set up housekeeping. Last summer he and she had worked at Irvington-on-the-Hudson at a boarding-house. They came to this city last month and since then the woman had supported him by working in a laundry.

The parents of Albert Wolter, when found, told in broken English of the difficulties their son had brought upon them. "He was always crazy about women," said the mother. "From the time he was a little boy it was always dancing, pleasure, women, women with him."

Mr. McFadyen Was Remembered

His Pupils Made a Pleasing Presentation on Thursday

Thursday afternoon the scholars of Mr. D. McFadyen's room presented him with a handsome gold, initialed watch fob, on a background of black silk, together with a well worded address, in which they expressed their appreciation of him as a teacher.

Miss Alice Naylor made the presentations and Mr. Thos. Cuthbert read the following address: Mr. Duncan McFadyen, Union School Lindsay:

Dear Mr. McFadyen.—The fact of your intended departure from this school has caused a feeling of deepest regret among your pupils, and we wish to express our appreciation of your work and manner among us. While study under your direction we feel that we have not only been trained intellectually, but our eyes have been opened to the deeper meaning in our lessons, and we have been trained and helped to become better boys and girls.

Your manner has always been kind and courteous, and while you have sometimes found it necessary to rebuke us, it has been done in a spirit of justice and fairness.

We wish you every success in your new work, and while we will feel the loss of our friend and teacher keenly, we know that the boys who will be associated with you, shall gain through that association.

As we grow to manhood and womanhood, we will always remember you with feelings of sincere gratitude and the days spent in your school-room with pleasure. We ask you to accept this small token of the love and good wishes of the pupils of the Junior Entrance Class, Lindsay. (Sgd.) THOMAS CUTHBERT ALICE TAYLOR.

A Love Sick Youth's Experience

His Sunday Clothes Ruined by a Treacherous Rail Fence

The Ops swing bridge, south of the town, and the fences adjoining, seem to be a favorite retreat these evenings for love-sick lads and lassies, who bill and coo in the moonlight in the meshes of love's young dream and wait the appearance of the frogs to give them an inspiration.

Last evening however, a well-known young man occupied a position on the fence just leading to the bridge with his lady friend, when the rail took a desire to roll slightly. The result was that the aforesaid young man, having the use of only one arm at the time, lost his balance, and dropped with a sickening thud into the mud and water. He dragged himself out, and accompanied by the young lady, took the back streets for home a sorry sight for any one to behold.

Murder Trial At Peterboro

Defence to Plead Henderso Was Insane When Crime Was Committed

Peterboro, March 28.—The spring assizes of the high court open here today before Mr. Justice Riddell. There are two criminal actions and two civil ones. Robert Henderson, the young Englishman, who is in custody here, will stand trial for the murder of Margaret McPherson, near Norwood, in February last. It will be remembered that McPherson entered the home of the Misses McPherson and brutally assaulted the two old women, beating them with an axe. Margaret McPherson has since died, and the other one is not expected to recover from the injuries she received. Mr. Kerr is appearing on behalf of the prisoner, and it is learned that his defence will be that the young man was insane at the time, and is yet incapable of realizing the seriousness of his crime. In the civil cases Edward Foley is suing William West, sr., and William West, jr., saw mill owners, for $8,000 damages for permanent injuries received while in the employ of the defendants. Fred Cook, of Trent Bridge is also suing to recover damages to the amount of $2,000 from David and Bert Davidson, owners of a saw mill near Oak Lake in the township of Belmont. The plaintiff lost his left arm while in the defendants' employ, owing, he claims, to negligence on their part.

Highlander's Band For Peterboro

Serious trouble between the 57th Regiment of Peterboro, and the band may result in the band, which is one of the finest and best known in the Province, breaking away from the regiment to become a city band. The disagreement has as its source the regiment asking the band to hand over as regimental property instruments which have been in the band's keeping for years. The intention of the band is to organize as the Peterboro Highlanders.—Globe.

Rumour Smiths' Falls

Falls, March 26.—The report that the C.P.R. will build a line from Smith's Falls, a distance of about 100 miles, and will build the new lines from Bathurst to Peterboro. This would be the greatest grain route, and, if true, the benefit to Smith's Falls would be incalculable.

Obituary

HARD LAWSON.

Mr. Richard Lawson, who died last week, moved to Lindsay from Peterboro. He was born in Scotland, Eng., and came to Canada in 1854 and settled in the township of Clark, where he remained until 1870. He then moved to Peterboro, and after five years to Verulam and settled in the township of Devitt. He died 21 years last December. Lawson was a staunch and a class leader for the township. Besides being Sunday school superintendent, Mr. Lawson was afflicted with rheumatism for 20 years. He leaves to mourn his loss three sons and three daughters, at home, Thomas, in the west, and Mrs. Mrs. Edward Prescott, in the west, and Mrs. Johnson in Alberta. Besides many other relatives.
