INTERESTING LIQUOR CASE DISPOSED OF AT POLICE COURT THIS MORNING

From Tuesday's Post. This morning at the police court Mr. Burgess, proprietor of the Benson House was fined five dollars and costs, $5.95 in all for allowing liquor to be sold on the premises to a prohibited man, one, J. Thornhill.

Mr. L. V. O'Connor appeared for accused, while Mr. G. H. Hopkins, K.C., acted in the interests of the license department.

It will be remembered that in the charge against Mr. F. Oliver, bartender, last week, the evidence went to show that both the accused and Coatsworth, another bartender, did not know Thornhill until after he had been given drink, and as soon as they learned that he was a lister, he was ordered out of the hotel bar, and Inspector Thornbury was notified that Thornhill had been served.

Mr. Hopkins quoted the section of the Liquor License Act covering the case in question, and pointed out that in the action of the bartenders in furnishing Thornhill liquor, the clause had been violated.

Police Magistrate Jackson concurred in his contention, and imposed a nominal fine of $5 and costs.

The clause in the Act is as follows:

"If any person so notified not to deliver liquor as aforesaid within twelve months after such notice, either himself, or by his clerk, servant or agent, otherwise than in terms of a special requisition for medicinal purposes signed by a duly qualified medical practitioner, delivers, or, in or from any building, booth, or place occupied by him, and wherein or therefrom any such liquor is sold suffers to be delivered, any such liquor to the person having such habit, he shall incur upon conviction a penalty not exceeding $50, and the person giving or requiring the notice to be given may, in an action as for personal wrong, (if brought within six months thereafter, but not otherwise) recover from the person notified such sum, not less than $20 nor more than $500, as may be assessed by the Court or jury as damages; and any married woman may bring such action in her own name without authorization by her husband; and all damages recovered by her shall in that case go to her separate use; and in case of the death of either party, the action and right of action given by this section shall survive to or against his legal representatives, but the defendant shall not be liable for both penalties for the same offence."

OTTAWA, April 10.—Another return in regard to the reciprocity representation was given to the House of Commons to-day by Sir Wilfrid Laurier. It included 64 memorials, and of these 62 were in favor of reciprocity; the other two were against, and they came from the Legislative Assembly of Manitoba and the Conservative Association of North Wellington. All the pro-reciprocity memorials came from the west, except four from the Liberals of Ormstown, Que., the Liberals of Niagara township, the farmers of South Oxford and the farmers of Thorold township.

OLD MAN'S BRIDE TELLS OF COURTING

Expert evidence was submitted concerning the sanity of Michael Fraser, by Dr. William P. Caven and Dr. R. W. Bruce Smith before the Divisional Court on Saturday afternoon.

According to Dr. Caven he had examined Mr. Fraser on Friday and found him in a good physical condition and perfectly sane. Mr. Fraser answered clearly all questions put to him by the doctor with the exception of the year he was married, saying it was either 1910 or 1911. He said he was greatly in love with his wife. He remarked that in his opinion the reason the McCormacks were trying to pronounce him insane was so they could get his money. He thought a trip to Toronto would be very dangerous due to hardening of the arteries which might result in the bursting of a blood vessel.

SENILE DETERIORATION. Dr. Bruce Smith stated that he had twice visited Fraser in Midland last June. On the first visit he had found him very confused, being in a state known to the profession as senile deterioration. Eleven days later a second examination showed him to be much brighter mentally. Dr. Smith answering a question regarding the sanity of Fraser at the time of his marriage, said:

"Fraser was over eighty years old. He was aroused suddenly from his sleep. His tendency was to confuse ideas and I do not believe it would be safe to say that he was fully aware of what he was doing."

THE BRIDE'S EVIDENCE. Mrs. Michael Fraser was in the witness box for over two hours, standing the whole time. She gave her age as 32. When questioned by Mr. A. E. H. Criswick, K.C., she said she first saw her husband in July, 1909. She did not meet him till September. She had heard Fraser had lots of money. She admitted she knew of written instructions having been given to Fraser to keep her off the place, "but I believe they were got unduly, probably when he was intoxicated." She said Mrs. Weston had always acted as chaperone when she visited Fraser. Mrs. Weston, according to Mrs. Fraser, was present at the betrothal.

HER OWN COURTING. The proposal had been made in Fraser's house.

"You were then doing your own courting," commented the judge.

The Omemee Christian Brotherhood of the Methodist church held an open meeting on Friday evening, when Mr. T. W. McLean, of the Public school staff gave a very interesting and instructive lecture on the Life and Work of Charles Dickens. The speaker said that the subject should be of special interest to the O.C.B. Since Dickens laid the foundation of a brotherhood, that has promoted the celebration of the Birth of the King of Christendom. Charles Dickens was the power that popularized our modern Xmas.

This English novelist was born Feb. 7th, 1812, and died on June 4, 1870. He was the son of humble, and poor parents, but received a good training from his mother. At nine years of age he was placed in a blocking warehouse, where he got six shillings a week. Here he remained for two years, and his life among the people of the factory was in part his apprenticeship to fame. Some of the immortal characters in his novels are drawn from persons he met in these gloomy days.

His father having become a reporter for the Morning Chronicle, the son took up the same calling. After having mastered the art of short hand, he continued to advance step by step to fame and renown as a writer and an author.

Mr. McLean gave with pleasing effect, selections from Sam Weller's Valentine, which portrayed the comic side of Dickens. The more serious, and pathetic style of the author, was shown in a few lines from the Death of Little Nell. Then followed Dickens immortal, Christmas Carol.

Mr. McLean closed with a review of some of the criticisms offered for and against the works of Chas. Dickens, showing that there is an element of truth in all the criticism, yet it remains that Dickens stands as a great power, a tremendous force in modern life. The world today is more cheerful, kind and sympathetic, because of the loving presence of this great and noble novelist.

A hearty and unanimous vote of thanks was tendered Mr. McLean for his excellent address.

Mr. H. LaDey was in Lindsay on Saturday.

Mr. Dewey Stinson spent the week end with his parents.

Miss Jennie McConnell is at home for the Easter vacation.

Dread is the vision before Him laid, Despised by millions, by His own betrayed.

And red is the ground with the crimson rain, But the tempter whispers, "tis all in vain—

The Scourge and the Nails, the Crown and the Cross, And the Narrow Way—men count it a loss,

And the demon laughed, "Be wise," quoth he, "And leave this ungrateful race to me."

High in the heavens before the throne The angels cease their funeral moan, And deep in the abyssal pit of hell, The demons list for a sign to tell,

What the choice will be in this conflict dread, With sin, bereft of all succor and aid, And the tempter smiled, the angel wept,

As Heaven and Hell their vigil kept, Down through the night comes an angel fair, She bears in her bosom a vessel rare

"See Master, the sighs and the tears of men, Through the ages long, who have wept for sin,"

And the Tempter laughed, "What is this," quoth he, "But as summer rain to the boundless sea!

Ah! fool, to die for a traitor race, That exults in sin and its own disgrace."

Paler the face of the Master now, And redder the rain on His crimson brow,

Dread is the conflict that rages within, And He sinless, wars with the weight of sin,

And up from the town comes the savage cry, Of the fiendish crowd that would see Him die,

"Father," He whispers, "Thy will be done," And the angel knew that her gift had won."
