On Wednesday evening Mr. Fox scouted the idea that he should have | the deputy, and second for appointoffered to resign if the government did not do the fair thing by Linde fice. say and locate the Normal School here, where it would have been infinitely better situated. Among other reasons he said that such a course savored too much of the tactics of the Liberal machine.

In offering this plea for his supineness, he shows at once the weakness of his case in the present contest and demonstrates his utter unfitness for re-election, Such an utter want of knowledge of the cardinal principle of representative government and of his duty as a guardian of the interests of his constituents. should at once stamp him as unfit.

In Great Bratain, which is universally termed the "mother of parliaments," this practice is quite frequently resorted to where the member finds himself at odds with the government he was elected to surport for where he finds he was not receiving what was manifestly fair play actions, have a right to expect, and talk rather loudly of holding the from the leaders of his party. deed, so frequently is this done, that per thing to do, and no one 'efter thinks of suggesting a "hold-up," as Mr. Fox is pleased to term it. our own province this course was followed by Col. Leys, M.P.P., for London, and no one at that time even suggested that such action was unfair or unparliamentary. Under no other circumstances can an expression of his electors be obtained than by following the course indicated. Had he had the stamina to stand up for the rights of his people and appeal to his constituents he would have held a high place in the estivi mation of the electorate and he would have been returned by such a

Mr. Borden has made civil service reform one of the prominent planks of the Conservative party. The Conservative party in tha

House of Commons has frequently voiced its opposition to the appointment of members of parliament to government positions.

It is worth while mentioning that a Liberal government is in power at Ottawa and that explains the atti. tude of the Conservatives.

When the Canservatives were in power civil service reform was never mentioned above a whisper and M P.'s were given jobs without any he sitation.

But that was a long time ago. What about the present? ,

A Conservative Government is in power in Ontario. (The Conservative premier says he is in hearty ac cord with Mr. Borden's policy and yet the way he goes about the re form of the civil service in this province is by appointing an M. P. sheriff of Hastings County.

Conversely, not have their quivers so well stocked with barbed arrows. The descent to the spoils system would not have been made; the electric power campaign would not have broken down into urcertainty, if not defeat, the north would not be honeycombed with distrust and the suspicion of dishonesty and graft; the gerrymander of Liberal constituencies would not have disgraced his record; and the dangerously compromising alliance with MacKenzie and Mann would never have given ground for rumors of corrupt campaign fund.

The defence offered by Premier Whitney at the Hamilton demonstra tion Tuesday night will not commend either himself or his Government to reasonable men. Truth requires the straightest denial of his childishly absurd and utterly false explanation of The Globe's attitude in any "procession of hangers-on gra ters, and crooks, passing up the stairway of the Globe." A premier ought not to descend to such vuigarity. Nor is it becoming in the premier of Ontario to describe as "servants and hirelings of the Government" the men who without fee or thought of reward have given un stintedly of their time and service to accept delivery from the contracting make afective the Government's pian carrier which is subsequently order for the Provincial University, the ed by the shipper or consignee to be Nizgara Falls Park, or any other switched on to a siding of another great public trust. ### THOSE MANITOBA LISTS.

It has long been the settled policy of the Liberal party that whatever the Provinces consider to be a proper electoral qualification will be accepted as suitable for Dominion purposes. To judge by the noise that is being made one might think this principle had been abandoned by Mr. Aylesworth in the legislation he has brought down respecting the preparation of voter's lists in Manitoba. The trouble is it would appear, that while Manitoba's law prescribing the terms of qualification is perfectly reasonable, there is no adequate provision for enabling the returning of ficer, at a Dominion election to know with certainty who are entitled to vote in his riding. It is to supply this want that the legislation has been brought in. | Mr. Aylesworth claims, and adduces facts in support of his assertion, that, owing to the peculiar method followed in Manitoba, and to the territorial differences between Dominion and Provisicial constituencies, every returning officer in the ten Manitoba ridings found himself face to face with the The mountain hath greatly tra- necessity of deciding what persons, vailed, but the mouse is exceedingly whose names were on the Provincial paign at Hamilton has been deliver- proposes is that this decision shall ed and instead of a great seething no longer be left to the haphazard enthusiasm being aroused through- decision of the returning officer, but all order to cover all cases. ### FEELING DESPERATE

The campaign in the interests of Mr. Fox is going awry, and that his c:gan and his cohorts are feeling very sore thereat is made apparent by the hysterical effusion contained in the Warder of Saturday. There is none of that buoyancy that is born cf dead-sureness-there is apparent in every sentence a nervous dread that Mr. Fox's day is on the wane and naturally the temper of the organ is quite on edge. Nasty insinuations, however, never strengthened cause and doubtless in time our good friend will learn that such intenses agitation and such unwarranted and intemperate language are quite unpolitic, to say the least.

The Post has endeavored throughout to discuss the public issues of the day in a dignified manner and in such a way as to give no personal offense and we purpose continuing in that course in the future notwiths standing the irritated condition of our contemporary.

That Mr. Fox is not in the same class as Mr. Stewart in the matter of law-making capacity and in the capanot Mr. Fox's fault, but that is no reason why the relative fitnes of the Town of Lindsay. Similar orders were two men should not be discussed and issued in the cases o fth ecity of To- carefully considered by all who have ronto and the city of Winnipeg and to do with the selection of a man to these orders have been made, more represent this riding, and the more or less, standards governing others the subject is considered the more places. prove anything, unless it be the gross ignorance of the writer thereof, and the only result must be a weakening of the cause of those who have to resort to that kind of argument. Everyone who has at all followed the course of events in Great Britain knows that time and again members have resigned their seats as a protest against some improper act or neglect of their leaders. The electors reized upon these occasions to express their views on the questions at igsue and were thus placed on record in regard thereto and in this they carried out the principle of representative government.

It is apparent, however that Mr. Fox and the Warder entertain a misconception of the line of his duty. It would seem that their idea is that a representative must lose h.s identity once he is elected and that he must not embarrass his leader-that, whatever his leader says must go, no mattter whether it be in the interests of his constituents or not. Such an understanding of the duties of the people's representatives in parliament is quite at odds with the real purpose ci the election of a member of the House, and it is only another proof of the utter unfitness of Mr. Fox4 for the office. If. after ten years' ext perience, Mr. Fox has so inadequate a knowledge of his duties it would seem high time that he should step aside and make reom for someone better qualified.
