Mrs. Jos. Gammy, of Verulam won the prize, a handsome gold watch, in the soap guessing contest she being the first to guess the correct weight, 112 lbs., of the big bar of soap which has been on exhibition in McFarland's store window. Miss Peterkin, of Fenelon Falls and Mr. Thos. Junkin, of Verulam, also guessed correctly.

A scene such as is all too frequently witnessed in this and other towns and villages in this fair Canada of ours was enacted on Francis-st., on Monday evening. Near McFarland's store a squirrel was perched on the top of a telegraph pole, while below were congregated a number of boys of various sizes, some of them nearly full grown; with stones in their hands and blood in their eyes. A ferocious looking canine completed a picture about as hideous as one would care to contemplate, especially on a beautiful evening in spring when all nature is rejoicing.

The boys shook the pole and threw stones in a vain endeavor to dislodge the pretty and defenceless little creature. A number of spectators stood a short distance away waiting to see the sport (?) probably betting on the chances of the squirrel escaping when a prominent citizen, possessed of a kind heart and sound common sense, a not unusual combination, by the way, dispersed the boys with a few well-chosen words that made them feel thoroughly ashamed of themselves. Would that there were more like him in ever town and village in this and every other land.

PLEASANT POINT. (Special to The Post.)

How are the Dunsford white trousersed fellows feeling after their tussle with the Fenelon boys? I am afraid that the Dunsford subscriber must be rather disappointed when there was not any great thing came out of "little causes." We were very much surprised at the kind of ground we had to play on. A person would think it had scarcely ever been worked and before they invite us down again it would be a little more like civilization if they had it levelled a little. If they come up on the first of July we will try and have a level patch of ground to play on. The Dunsfordites want to get their trousers starched up again before the first of July and maybe they will be able to play better and not let the "first yearers" beat them.

Owing to the heavy winds which blew on Monday afternoon several launches were unable to cross the lake and had to land along the shore and wait for the wind to go down. Some of the people out of the launches did not know grain from grass, and were parading over the crops. They want to beware of cross dogs next time. Some of them ought to learn better manners before they leave home.
