NEW OPERA HOUSE OF UNIQUE PLAN

The Great Theatre Mr. Hammerstein is Erecting at The Strand End of Kingsway, London

Mr. Hammerstein, of New York, hopes to give the first performance at his new opera house at the Strand end of Kingsway on November 1, and from the progress already made by the builders it is safe to assume that this hope will be realized. The house is planned in the simplest way, the exits being as obvious and as easily accessible as possible. The whole house could be cleared within three minutes. The auditorium will be constructed entirely of fire-resisting materials, the roof asphalt on concrete, and the circles constructed of concrete and steel. The proscenium opening will be provided with a safety curtain constructed of steel framing and asbestos, which, in case of fire, will be lowered and automatically flooded with water, while on the stage itself a lantern will be arranged which will open automatically, thus causing a draught to carry away the heat and smoke in case of fire from the public portion of the house. The stage will be specially constructed by Mr. Hammerstein to obtain the spectacular effects which it is his intention to offer London audiences on an exceedingly large scale. The auditorium will be unusually comfortable, with every slight line perfect, no columns to obstruct the view. The ground floor, below street level, will be entirely devoted to stalls and boxes, and above the stalls, suspended from the circle, will be a complete circular tier of boxes, each with its own retiring room, two further tiers being arranged each side of the auditorium, making a total of 43 boxes, including a private suite for the King. Above the box tier will be the circle, and lower and upper galleries, the total capacity of these being about 2,700. There will be no large promenades, the back of the circle and the gallery being screened off to aid the acoustics and prevent the audience being disturbed by promenaders.

FRAULEIN MARIE VON STUMM Whose engagement is announced to Prince Herman von Hatzfeldt-Wildenburg, the German diplomatic representative at Cairo, Fraulein Marie is a member of the enormously wealthy Stumm family, who made their fortune in iron, and which was ennobled by the late Emperor Frederick. The young lady is of American extraction, her mother having been the daughter of a German-American named Ludwig W. Hoffman. Hoffman made his money in the United States and then returned to his old home in Germany with a fortune and was made a baron. Prince Herman was formerly councillor of the German Embassy at Washington, and is well known in this country.

TRAPPED

One Sunday morning, when everybody had gone to church, a traveller undertook to show the landlord of a country inn how to draw three different sorts of wine from the same cask. The two went down into the cellar, and the stranger bored a hole in the cask, over which he asked the landlord to place his thumb; he then bored a second hole, which mine host had to stop up with his other thumb. He then set to work on the third hole, when it apparently struck him that the landlord would not be equal to the task of stopping that also, and he ran out of the cellar to "fetch a tap."

He never returned, and the innkeeper had to wait by the side of his cask until his family had returned from church. The rogue had by that time, of course, decamped with all he could lay his hands on.

BRANTFORD'S NEW INDUSTRY

Hustling City Lands Big Buffalo Concern

A Canadian branch of the Buffalo Brake Beam Company will be established in Brantford, in order to cater to the growing business consequent on the development of the west and the expansion of railways. The firm constructs brake beams, but will likely manufacture other lines in connection with railway cars. As yet the site has not been selected, nor is it known how many hands will be employed. The Buffalo plant is a big concern, and the Canadian possibilities are said to be excellent. President S. A. Crone, Buffalo, was in the city completing the deal. No concessions are asked from the city.

Major Winter Tells of the Surrender of Poundmaker to General Middleton

Writing about "The Surrender of Poundmaker," Major C. F. Winter, in "The Canadian Magazine" for March, says: "But though they made a brave show in coming in, they were much disconcerted at the reception accorded them, for General Middleton at once demanded their rifles, in proof of submission and surrender, before he would accord them a hearing. In a few curt words the General told them he demanded unconditional surrender. He had defeated Riel and taken him prisoner, and he had men and guns enough to crush both "Poundmaker" and "Big Bear," with all their people, if they still wanted fight. If they surrendered he could promise them nothing, but would represent their condition and views to the Government. He was a soldier sent there to put down the rebellion and he was going to do it, whether they surrendered or not, and if it took all summer. The men who murdered the Government Indian Agents and Farm Instructors at the beginning of the outbreak must be given up at once before any safe conduct would be ensured the remainder. There was a little hesitation among the younger braves for a few moments. Sharp glances were directed right and left, and wistful eyes cast backward to the slopes on the opposite side of the Battle River, as though mentally gauging the ability to get away in the event of a run for it. The comparative large number of volunteers, however, must have quickly shown what small prospect there was for successful opposition, and reluctantly (how reluctantly) may be estimated from the fact that some were seen to kiss their rifles as they gave them up, a remarkable show of feeling for an Indian of the Plains), they handed over their arms to the detail ordered to secure them. Mostly all of these rifles were "Winchesters" of recent model, handier and much superior for the kind of fighting the Crees expected than the single-loading Snider-Enfield with which our Canadian troops were armed. Nearly all were decorated with notches, or brass-headed tacks upon stock and butt, indicative of some coup or lucky shot by which the owner believed he had placed an enemy hors de combat. Other indicated large game that had fallen to the aim of the owner.

ABOUT GLASSWARE

When washing glassware, put a few drops of blueing into the soap-suds. The glass will sparkle and look much better. To men any glass ornament, melt a little isinglass in spirits of wine, add a small quantity of water, and warm the mixture gently over a moderate fire. When mixed thoroughly by melting, it will form a transparent glue, which will unite glass firmly, and scarcely show.

Just One Cure For Anaemia

It is Through the Rich, Red Blood Dr. Williams' Pink Pills Actually Make

There is just one cure for anaemia, —more rich red blood. Anaemia is simply a bloodless run down condition. Then the body becomes weak from ever work worry or illness an examination of the blood will show it to be weak and watery. The common systems are paleness of lips gum and cheeks shortness of breath and palpitation of the heart after the slightest exertion, dull eyes and a loss of appetite. Anaemia itself is a dangerous trouble and may pass into consumption. It can only be cured by making the blood rich and red there, by enabling it to carry the necessary nourishment to every part of the system.

It is a proved fact that Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have cured thousands upon thousands of cases of anaemia. They are really intended to make new rich red blood and are compounded in the most scientific manner with the finest ingredients for the blood, medical science. These Pills are not cure-all. They are intended to cure only those diseases that have their origin in poor watery blood and starved weakened arteries and the record of their success in doing this is their constantly increasing popularity in every part of the world.

—Mrs. R. Colton Golden B.C. writes —As a matter of duty I wish to say a word in praise of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for what they have done for my daughters one 16 and the other 18 years of age Both were pale and bloodless and suffered from many symptoms of anaemia. They would be tired easily, suffered from frequent headaches, were easily discouraged and often fretful. I saw in our home paper the story of a young girl who had similarly suffered and was cured through the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. I bought three boxes of Pink Pills and my daughters started to take them. Before they were done they began to feel better and I got a half dozen more boxes and by the time these were used they were enjoying the best of health, with rosy cheeks and not like the same girls at all. I also gave the Pills to my little boy, who had rheumatism and they completely cured him."

Sold by all medicine dealers or by mail at 50c a box or 6 boxes for 2.50 from the Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

FIFTY AEROPLANES

The French Government Will Train One Hundred Airmen and Establish Flying Schools

With regard to Mr. Haldane's recent statement that the aeroplane for army purposes is "still in the experimental stage, it is worthy of note that the French government regards the aeroplane in its present form as sufficiently practical to warrant the downright purchase of some fifty machines, the training of about 100 airmen, and the establishment of flying schools or depots at Versailles, Rheims, Chalons-sur-Marne, and Vincennes. On November 30 last, the French Army possessed thirty-two aeroplanes of the Bleriot, Henri Farman, Maurice Farman, Breguet, Wright, Antoinette and Sommer types. Since then numerous purchases have been made, including six more biplanes of the Henri Farman and Maurice Farman patterns, half a dozen Nieuport racing monoplane, some Hanriot machines, and one Koellin. Although no official figures are available of France's actual strength in the air, it is certain that there are not fewer than 100 Army airmen, either accomplished pilots or in training, while there are now half a dozen naval airmen learning to fly at the Government's expense. The French Government is resolved to continue its "experiments" along these lines, and those who have not yet awakened to the value of the aeroplane in its present form in modern warfare will doubtless be thoroughly aroused if they attend the next French grand army manoeuvres. The French War Office has offered a constructor's prize of $10,000 this year. Every month orders from the various European armies, with the exception of the British, are received by French aeroplane constructors in Paris.

WORKMEN'S GRUESOME FIND

Human Bones. Believed to be Indian's, Found in Chimney

A gruesome find was made by workmen engaged in making alterations at the old Albion Hotel, Kingston. In an old chimney the workmen found a quantity of what are believed to be human bones. In connection with the finding of the bones a strange tale is told. Old residents say that many years ago the building now used as the Albion Hotel was the military headquarters, and that one day an Indian who had some trouble with the militia, suddenly disappeared and was never heard from again. The finding of these bones has led some to believe that the Indian met with foul play and that these are his bones.

CANADA MUST BE READY

English General Sounds Tacet and Welcomes Canadian Navy

In an address to the Empire Club of Toronto, Major-General C. W. Robinson, of Ealing, London, England, said it was absolutely necessary for Canada to have command of the Great Lakes. Canada was destined to be a great naval power, he said, and he was glad that a nucleus of a Canadian navy had been laid. He spoke particularly of the Rush-Bagot Treaty, and said that if the United States violated any of the terms of the treaty, Canada was entitled to take the same action. So far as Canada was concerned, it could not sustain its territorial supremacy so long as the power to the south had the opportunity of placing vessels on the Great Lakes. By nature, Canada seemed destined to be a naval power, but this could only become by remaining with Great Britain and Australia one united empire. Some people talked of Canada becoming an independent nation, but such she was to-day. If Canada were outside the Empire she would soon lose the individuality now enjoyed and would become an important part of some other stronger nation. He therefore welcomed the formation of a Canadian navy. Even if British ships arrived off Canada's shores within a week of the declaration of war, it would be impossible for them to steam up the narrow and easily destroyed canals. It therefore was necessary that Canada should have a navy of her own to assist in the preservation of the Unity of the Empire. Two great lessons learned from the War of 1812 were the necessity of supremacy on the Great Lakes and the necessity for large cities to look to the defence of their borders. In order to be prepared for an active defence, General Robinson favored a system of compulsory military training in Canada. Since 1812 many important changes had been made, and Canada was in a better position to-day to withstand the attacks of foreign nations, provided that troops could be mobilized quickly. But it must be remembered that in 1812 every man folk was in a position to have a military training. Everyone between the ages of 16 and 60 was compelled to have his arms and be qualified for service. He did not think the present cordial relations between Canada and the United States would be disturbed, but Canada should be ready at all times to defend her shores.

CHURCH BARS LADIES

Methodists Don't Want Them as Delegates to Conferences

Ladies cannot act as delegates to the annual conferences of the Methodist church. So it was decided at the annual court of appeal, held in Toronto, the decision being unanimous. The matter was brought up by the British Columbia Conference. The court also confirmed the duties of the individual congregations. These committees meet separately except on financial questions, when a special board is appointed by the two.

SCARCITY OF DOMESTICS

The housewives of Berlin are in an unfortunate plight, and their dependent men folk are in a position not less enviable, owing to the remarkable dearth of domestics, chiefly attributed to Germany's industrial prosperity, which creates a great demand for female labor in all branches of commerce and manufacture.

JUMPERS AT FALL FAIRS

Mr. J. Lockie Wilson Has a New Scheme to Increase the Attendance. Mr. J. Lockie Wilson, superintendent of agricultural societies, intends to stimulate the interest in Fall fairs by having the farmers of the country enter their horses in jumping competitions, for which handsome prizes will be given. At present the only extra attraction at Fall fairs are the trotting races, and Mr. Wilson thinks that if jumping competitions were held the farmers would enter their horses and some good sport would follow. It also would lead to more extensive breeding of high-class jumpers.
