

LINDSAY LADY WITNESSED A FATAL ACCIDENT NEAR PETERBORO

Maurice Bryan, a young farm laborer, in the employ of Mr. W. H. Allen, of Douro, Peterboro County, lost his life in an accident Tuesday afternoon when a team of horses he was driving got beyond his control.

It seems that Bryan was returning from rolling the fields of the farm, and stopped on the way to the house at the barn. There Miss Violet Teevin, of Lindsay, daughter of Mr. J. J. Teevin, and who is in charge of the school in that district, held the horses while Bryan entered the barn. When he came out he took hold of the reins, and then mounted to the seat of the roller. Then, according to Miss Teevin, who was the only eye witness of the tragic affair, he lost control of the horses, who, after starting from the barn, wheeled and dashed back towards it. In their fright the horses narrowly escaped the corner of the barn, but the roller struck it, and turned over from the force of the collision. Bryan was hurled to the ground, and, it is thought, instantly killed. The pole broke and the horses continued their flight, but were caught later. Examination revealed the fact that both legs were injured, one of them being broken below the knee. He also had a cut on his chest.

It could not be determined positively whether or not he was caught between the barn and roller. It is stated with certainty, however, that the heavy roller did not pass over him. It is therefore supposed that he was killed by the force with which he was thrown to the ground.

Bryan came, originally, from England, but has been working for farmers in Douro for some years, where he was well known, and conceded to be a steady, industrious worker. He was popular in the district where he was employed.

The farm of Mr. Allen, where Bryan was killed, is on the 5th line of Douro.

The funeral was held this morning to St. Joseph's church and thence to St. Joseph's cemetery. The Rev. Father McGuire officiated.

C.P.R. "Better Farming Special" Will Visit Lindsay in June

The "Better Farming Special", which was run over the C. P. R. system through the province of Ontario last year proved highly successful and with the co-operation of the department of Agriculture of the provincial government a second "better farming special" will commence next month on a tour extending over nearly two months. The special is being extensively advertised and the coaches making up the train will contain exhibits suitable for use in the demonstration lectures which will be given by experts. Owing to the accommodation of the coaches being somewhat inadequate for the large crowds patronizing the lectures, arrangements are being made at all points where the civic officials will undertake to provide a hall for the purpose. The public schools will be the places where the lectures will be conducted after the demonstration coaches have been visited. The lecturers will be drawn from the Agricultural Colleges and all information imparted will be of an expert character. The official itinerary has been arranged and the first call will be at Windsor on May 26, afterwards making the following calls: Chatham May 27, Kent Bridge May 28, North Glencoe May 29, London May 30, Thamesford May 31, Woodstock June 2, Belmont June 3, Tillsonburg June 3, Galt June 5, Elmira June 6, Goderich June 7, Milverton June 9, Streetsville, June 10, Brampton, June 11, Orangeville June 12, Shelburne June 13, Chatsworth June 14, Owen Sound June 16, Flesherton June 17, Woodbridge June 18, Tottenham, June 19, Alliston June 20, Craighurst June 21, Coldwater June 23, Orillia June 24, Lindsay June 25, Peterboro June 26, Norwood June 27, Tweed June 28, Perth June 30, Smiths Falls July 8, Carlton Place July 2, Stittsville July 3, Ottawa July 4, Kemptville July 5, Hatchesher, July 7, Finch July 8, Apple Hill July 9, Burketon Jct. July 10, Claremont July 11. It is the intention to devote one car to live stock including horses, dairy cattle, beef cattle and poultry and the second car will contain seed and soil subjects and probably bees. A new feature has been introduced this year in respect to the stoppages at the various towns. Instead of making a stop only of a few hours, arrangements have been made whereby the coaches will remain a day at the places to be visited thus enabling those interested to make themselves fully acquainted with the subjects on exhibition.

Help to Beautify Your Surroundings

Spring is here, and it is the duty of every citizen to beautify their places and give the general appearance of the town every reasonable attention. A town gets some kind of a reputation, and if the people do not care what that reputation is, it is not likely to be a very good one. One man, enterprising and popular with his fellow townsmen can interest the whole town and insure it a good name. It is not only what the municipality will do in the way of keeping tidy streets that counts, but the individual household, by trimming up his property, by planting shrubs and flowers, and using fresh paint, can set a whole street going. The force of example is strong in such matters. And it is good business for the town. Every day in the year strangers arrive in the town—many of them have never seen the place before, and quickly form their opinion of it. Others have seen it before, and quickly decide whether it is going up or down. Strangers go away and speak of a place as they see it. The man who is looking for a site for a factory may consult a commercial traveller, and the latter will praise one town and cry down another—one is brisk and cheerful, the other dull, untidy, wrapt in stand-stillness, although the two places may be quite equal in natural advantages. One town has enough optimists in it to offset the pessimists. In the cheerful town there is a fad for gardens, but more than all there are those who have a passion for fresh paint in the spring. One man starts with his garden fence; it spreads to his house, to other houses, to the store fronts. The man who has a nicely painted fence will not let the burdocks hide it, so he trims the street in front of his place, and the improvement is so marked that others follow his example.

JIM JOHNSON, SCUGOG INDIAN GUIDE WAS A GIANT AMONG RED MEN

(From Toronto Telegram.)

"Jim" Johnson is dead on Scugog reservation.

Hundreds of Torontonians knew "Jim" as the greatest Indian guide of the whole Iroquois Valley. For years he had guided hunters and fishermen all over the thousand lakes and rivers down there. He knew the Scugog and Balsam and the Rice and Sturgeon, and he also knew where the best fish were in the summer and where the best ducks were in the fall.

From his home on the reservation he would paddle to Port Perry to get his parties on one occasion, and at another time would come up the Sturgeon River to Lindsay to take a large number in a row boat or launch for miles to the sporting grounds of the wonderful district.

A GIANT AMONG MEN

"Jim" was an immense big Indian. Standing six feet five, he was built in proportion was as strong as a horse and exceedingly popular. He knew no fear and no matter what the sea in the Scugog was nor whether it was a big boat or his fast canoe, he could always bring his parties back dry and fast. He never lost a soul, nor did he ever have a serious upset. He was a master canoeist.

Andrew Gluck of the American Watch Case Company has made the Iroquois Lakes his annual fishing trip, and each July, for years, he, with other friends, have gone to Port Perry, to be met there by "Jim."

TRUST HIM WITH ANYTHING

"He was a prince," Mr. Gluck told The Telegram. "You could trust him with anything. As chief guide he was a wonder with the paddle and an oarsman who could not be beaten for strength and skill. If we struck a storm Jim would just work a little harder, but we always came out fine. His knowledge of the haunts of fish and game was little short of marvellous, and I was sorry to hear of his death, as I saw him Good Friday."

A FUNEY STORY

George A. Cole, of Port Perry, brought the news to Toronto. He had many funny incidents to tell of "Jim."

"Hunters would not give the Indian liquor at any time," he said. "The bottle which accompanied the trip would be left out and the leader would say, 'That is not for you, Jim.' The Indian grunted 'Me know,' and he never touched it, although he was allowed some beer. His capacity to get rid of a bottle of beer was the funniest thing that we ever knew. We would open a bottle and let it stand where Jim would see it, then we would turn around. Like a flash that bottle was to the Indian's lips and there was one gurgle that sounded like 'gug-gug' and the bottle was done and over the side of the boat, and we would look around, and that Indian's face was like granite, stolid and apparently looking far ahead as if intent on his paddling or management of his party. It made a great hit with all who knew him."

MIGHT HAVE BEEN CHIEF

"Jim," was in line for chief of the tribe on the Scugog, but he always told his white friends: "No want to settle scraps. I go home. I go fish. Have more good time."

He was at Port Perry on Good Friday after provisions, and walked to the reservation seven miles away, Friday afternoon down the ice on the river. He got his feet wet and contracted the pneumonia from which he died on Wednesday last, and was buried in the Indian cemetery by the natives. A special casket had to be brought from Toronto to encase the remains and that had to be made to order. He was 70 years of age.

"Jim's" son is noted in the east as a fast runner, and although only a boy, many think he is better than Longboat.
