The last two years of my illness, I was confined to my bed nearly all the time. I was so thin I weighed only 90 pounds, and I vomited everything I ate. Even water would not stay on my stomach. ### ELECTION RIOTS IN THE LONG AGO

Famous Scraps in the "Good Old Times" in Edinburgh, Cardiff, Carnarvon, South Devon and Other Places

In the "good old times" if no riot occurred during an election it was generally voted a very dull affair, especially as the rival parties would often hire burly ruffians to keep order at their meetings or defy their opponents during demonstrations.

One of the worst election riots occurred at Sixmilebridge, in County Clare, on July 22nd, 1852, when the military fired on the mob, killing no fewer than five of them. Mobs in Edinburgh

But England cannot point the finger of scorn at Ireland, because hardly a General Election passes but what some constituency shows that it considers disorder a good argument. Scotland, on the other hand, takes its elections very seriously, trouble only being mei with in the rougher districts.

However, these modern disturbance: during election times are nothing like the wildl riots that occurred during the Reform Act General Election of 1831. Scotland was especially vehement in her demonstrations, windows being broken and voters against Reform being prevented from exercising their constitutional rights.

burgh a howling mob hooted Sir Wal ter Scott. He wrote in his diary "The mob were exceedingly vocifer ous and brutal, as they usually are nowadays. The population gathered from Hawick, sad blackguards."

Trouble at Cardiff At Dumbarton the Conservative candidate had to hide all day in a garret, as his life was in danger, while at Ayr voters of the same color tool refuge in the town hall. A gailant band of Whigs escorted them out of danger to a steamboat.

It was the riots that occurred in London at this time that caused the Duke of Wellington to have the winthe famous iron shutters. The people were so overjoyed at the dissolution of Parliament and the coming of a General Election that they smashed the windows of all who had opposed the passing of the Bill.

But there have been some pretty good riots in modern times. Feeling ran very high in 1886 in some places. and serious disturbances took place at Cardiff. Sir Edward Reed, the fa mous naval constructor, was the Lib eral, and the Hon. H. R. Brand, after Carnarvon is a town in which feeling has run very high during the past fev elections, trouble occurring both i The singing of God Save the King 1906 and last January. Miners and quarrymen sometimes allow their feel The shield, which was presented by ings to get the better of them, and in the first-named year hundreds of them swarmed into the town, driving all known opponents off the streets, Mr Lloyd George himself having to rebuke his exuberant support rs.

But matters were worse a year ago. Two thousand quarrymen came into Carnarvon and caused a reign of terror. Windows were broken, and even ladies assaulted. Fifty extra policemen had been imported from Manchester, butt hey were powerless, and as the was thought the crowd was disap pointed because the result was not going to be declared that night they were quietly withdrawn; but the mol got to know of it, and seevral of them were roughly handled as they made their way to the station.

It was a crowd largely composed of quarry and pottery workers that the riot at Newton Abbott, South Devon, about two years ago, when Captain Morrison Bell was returned at the by-election, Mrs. Pankhurst had a narrow escape, and the premises of the Conservative Ciub were nearly wrecked.

Last January a riot occurred at High Wycombe after the close of the polling, a "dump" shop being wrecked and its contents burned in the middle of the street. For the declaration of the poll 1,000 police were imported to keep order.
