Farewell Said At Woodville

A very enjoyable evening was spent on Wednesday night, July 28, at the Methodist parsonage, at Woodville, when the members of the choir, Sunday school board, and executive of the Epworth League, assembled to bid farewell to Miss Ethel Thomas, and Mr. Cecil Smith, two of Woodville's most popular young people, who have left to take positions elsewhere.

After games had been indulged in both on the lawn and indoors, light refreshments were served. Towards the close of the evening, the following address was read, and Mrs. Weeks presented Mr. Smith while Mrs. Newman presented Miss Thomas with handsome leather bound Methodist hymn and tune books:

Dear friends: It is with feelings of deep regret that we meet you tonight to bid you farewell before your connection with us is severed. These occasions when we have to say goodbye to one and another of our workers, who have been with us so long, and who have ever been our staunch supporters, are always fraught with pain, and now we feel this to be particularly true.

You have been connected with our school from childhood, and have always aided us, giving freely and unstintingly of the many talents with which the Master has entrusted you. We have learned to depend upon you both in our regular work and in cases of emergency, and we realize sadly that we will miss you sadly in our work. Your presence and cheerful faces have been in themselves an inspiration, and your voices which you have used so often for our benefit, have helped us much. Whether as bible student, teacher, officer, or member of an executive board, you have always discharged your duties intelligently and well. You have been one of us, and made our interests yours.

These things we will all miss, and we are loath to part with you, although that you are only exchanging this for a larger sphere of usefulness one in which you will have room for the full exercise of your talents, and where others will be benefitted by your coming as we have been by your stay among us. We hope that in your future place of residence, you will give as much pleasure to those with whom you are associated as you have to us.

Let us assure you that you will be remembered long in our school, and while we wish you all prosperity and success we desire of you that you will not forget us, nor our Sabbath school at Woodville, where we have learned to gather so many blessed truths.

We ask of you to accept these hymn books, thinking that they will keep us fresh in your memory and that as you sing the old familiar hymns, you will sometimes dwell on that school which you attended so long. Signed on behalf of the Sunday school, O. E. Weeks, supt., L. J. Westlake, sec.

Both Miss Thomas and Mr. Smith though they had known nothing of the surprise in store for them, replied in suitable terms.
