

Kendall's Spavin Cure

The cure that saves horsemen and farmers millions of dollars every year.

It is known the world over as the one certain, reliable remedy for Spavin, Curb, Splint, Ringbone, Bony Growths and any Lameness.

Cases just developing and old, stubborn sores and swellings readily yield to the wonderful curative powers of this famous remedy.

Orangeville, Ont., Dec. 21, '08

"We had a horse which was getting very lame on account of a spavin. I was anxious about him as we could not work the beast when we most needed him.

Our teamster saw Kendall's Spavin Cure in the store and tried it.

I am pleased to say he had success as the horse has stopped limping and is doing his day's work."

W. A. NICHOLSON.

Don't worry about Spavins, Growths, Swellings or Lameness, but use Kendall's Spavin Cure. It cures every time. The world's best liniment for man and beast.

The Canadian Nightingales

Wherever You go, There You Find the Canadian Nurse

THE death of Florence Nightingale recalls the fact which a great many people in Canada do not know, or do not fully appreciate our large product of Canadian Nightingales.

For some reason that does very high honor to our Canadian girls, a very large number of them have for years gone into nursing. Notwithstanding the arduous labor, long hours, and small pay, there has been something in the profession that has irresistibly appealed to the Canadian girl.

As a result, and as Canada has but a limited demand for their services, says the Hamilton Spectator, the Canadian nurse may be found anywhere throughout this continent. In the Eastern cities of the States may be found hundreds of them. In the great Bellevue Hospital in New York, the majority of the nurses are Canadian girls. In Boston the same conditions prevail, not only in the hospital, but in private nursing. In many cases, some of which might be cited here, the hospitals in New England are in charge of New Brunswick and Nova Scotia women.

There is every reason for patriotic pride in the fitness of this Canadian product, though the pride be necessarily coupled with regret at our own loss. We can surely make no better contribution than this to the world at large. To send out Nightingale missionaries to soothe the sufferings of men, and nurse them back to life and usefulness, is noble beyond words. However little we may figure just now in the war tangles of the world, we can at least play a large part in enacting the policies of peace.

The best publicity agent that Canada can have abroad is the Canadian nurse. More than almost any other agency she advertises her home country.

A Secret

The busy housewife with a cheerful countenance can not be troubled with tired or aching feet or with any foot troubles, such as corns, bunions, calluses, weak ankles, or flat-foot. She invariably wears the Scholl "Foot-Eazer" an anatomical device, made of two German Silver springs, leather covered, which fits inside the shoe like an insole.

It eases the feet by helping Nature, to firmly hold up the arch of the foot, equalizing the weight of the body and taking away all nervous and muscular strain.

Women who are troubled with their feet should wear the Scholl "Foot-Eazer." They instantly relieve tired, aching feet, ease the nerves and afford complete rest and relief—even from the most strenuous work.

Thousands of women and men are wearing "Foot-Eazers." Ask one who wears them. Made in all sizes for men and women, price $2.00 per pair.

Sad Drowning At Stoney Lake

Wm. Parsons Met Watery Grave at Stoney Lake

William Parsons, twenty years of age, was drowned in Stoney Lake, Sunday afternoon about 1.30, when only one hundred yards from shore. The accident occurred just off McCracken's Landing, and was witnessed by several visitors who were staying at the hotel.

Nobody appeared to know just what caused the canoe in which the young man was out to capsize.

Parsons has been employed all summer by Mr. Robert Hamilton, proprietor of the hotel, to deliver ice and other articles to cottagers in the vicinity of the Landing. On Sunday afternoon, with the apparent intention of taking a pleasure sail, he jumped into his canoe and started out. When one hundred yards or so from the wharf his canoe was seen to tip over, and Parsons, who was seated in the stern, was thrown into the water. With his hands raised above his head he went down and did not rise again. He was unable to swim.

Kind Word for Telephone Girls

There is good reason for occasionally putting in a good word for the telephone girls. Here one naturally says "And particularly the Lindsay telephone girls." So distinguished an authority as the London Lancet in the current issue calls attention to the prevalence of nervous breakdowns among telephone operators, and says that the general public scarcely realizes the exceedingly trying nature of the work which the telephone operators perform.

"It seems," remarks the Lancet, "that an appreciable portion of the public believes that the telephone operators make mistakes out of pure and unalloyed wickedness, aimed either against the most of the subscribers in general or against the individual sufferer. We would urge, even while we admit that the number of stupid mistakes made by telephone operators does appear large, that some thought should be given to the fact that operators are not mechanical contrivances, and that any individual operator with whom we get into communication is himself or herself, part of a great and complicated scheme, and failure in which may be felt at a distance from its cause. It is silly or unjust to conclude if any hitch should occur that the particular exchange operator who is then in communication must be the delinquent—the deliberate and frigid delinquent. And although the exhibitions of temper which too many of the public allow themselves to manifest may be received with apparent equanimity by the operator, we cannot doubt that they must have a wearing effect. For life at the telephone exchanges is neither a quiet nor a pleasant one. The work is trying, and puts a constant strain on the attention, while rigid self-control is asked for anyone who during the long business hours has to enter upon incessant dialogues with the public, that is generally in a hurry. We hope that the publicity which has been given to the matter may do something towards ameliorating the attitude of the public to the telephone operators and may help the public to remember that these operators are human beings and not machines."

Did the Thief Come This Way?

"Gene" Hurtubise, of Peterboro was in town the other day looking for a crook who "touched" him for $250.00. The Review has this to say of the incident:

There is one man that "Gene" Hurtubise, the local heavyweight grappler, would like to give the strangle hold, hammerlock, toe hold and all the other cruel and damaging mangles in the list.

The man towards whom he naturally feels thus, succeeded in going through his trunk at the King George Hotel yesterday noon for $250 and also took $3.50 from the room of another guest, at the hotel, Benton by name.

The night before last a stranger registered at the hotel and left yesterday without going to the dining room for dinner, and it is thought that he possibly made away with the money while the others were at their noonday meal. Anyway, he's gone and so is the money, but Chief Thompson said that it is possible that the man under suspicion was not the guilty party.

The Passing of the Lumber Jack

This Fact Calls Up Memories of Pleasant Days Long Ago

Hearing people talk to the effect that the lumber jack is becoming a thing of the past, calls up memories of many pleasant days in the long ago, spent in more or less intermittent and intimate association with him.

Is he passing? Doubtless; for logging is getting closer and closer to the "states" and the day will soon come when the lumberman will be in daily touch with civilization. In fact, of being cut off from communication with the world from early fall till spring, as of old. He must yield, as are yielding the "all-around men" and the hand turner, in our craft, but he will be tenderly remembered by those who have known him in camp.

His Departure is Regretted

At six o'clock last evening at Mr. J. Carew's box factory, the fellow employees of Mr. Ball, foreman who is leaving for Vancouver on Wednesday treated him to a surprise.

He was presented with an address and suit case. The address referred in complimentary terms to the high esteem in which Mr. Ball was held, and wished him every success in the west.

Mr. Ball made a neat reply, and the proceedings terminated by all singing, "For he's a jolly good fellow."

Picture Post Cards Advertise

Views of Lindsay and District Sent to All Parts of the World

If picture postcards go to advertise a town and it must be admitted that they do, Lindsay was well advertised in this line during the summer, as the dealers say this has been a record year in the sale of the cards.

"I could not commence to figure out the number of cards we disposed of," remarked one dealer. "We sell a great quantity all the year round, but in the summer months, while the tourist trade is on, there is a very great demand for the cards."

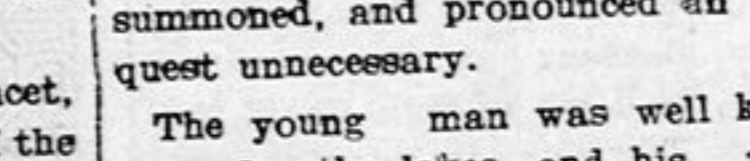

Nowadays, very few of the plain postcards that is, the kind given out at the post office, are used. Nearly every person keeps a stock of the souvenir postcards on hand, and it is only on odd occasions, mostly on matters of business, that the old card is brought into service.

Did you ever watch a crowd of tourists when they get off a boat or train? About the first thing they do is to make for a store where picture postcards are sold. It is a craze, which has been carried on for several seasons, and promises to be continued for some time.

And in this way the city gets well advertised, as each card has a Lindsay view, and people are bound to see and discuss it. Cards from Lindsay go to all parts of the world, during the summer, and this is advertising the town gets at the expense of the people who pay the town a visit. It might well be termed free advertising.

Mason who had entered the former institution as a junior clerk, and had fought his way to the front, became general manager of the new corporation, and when later the Home Savings and Loan Company became the Home Bank of Canada, Col. Mason continued in command as general manager, a position he has filled with credit to himself and advantage to the Bank.

The Passing of the Lumber Jack

This Fact Calls Up Memories of Pleasant Days Long Ago

I have often thought that if some of those who so nobly devote their lives to telling us (for a salary) of God and His works, would spend a season with a timber cruiser (and I would have them put in a few days alone in so unromantic a place as a cedar swamp) they would know of God—and mayhap talk less.

However, the religious thoughts of the lumber jack do not concern wood workers, but in his passing do we not see the shadow of our own? As civilization encroaches on the lumber camp, the supply of our material is growing gradually less, and will not our boys find some of our machines in a forgotten corner, wondering what those things were for.
