EXTRAVAGANT YOUNG MEN

The following timely article is reproduced from the Kingston Standard, one of the brightest exchanges coming to our desk. The truisms which are emphasized should be taken to heart by our young men:

Why are young men in these times so much more extravagant than in the old days? Why is it that ever so often we hear of the disappearance of this or that young man who has been spending money more freely than his means justified and who has finally felt obliged to depart for unknown quarters? Is it the fault of the young men themselves, or is it the fault of their associates? The answer is that it is probably a combination of the two reasons.

The fact is the youth of today is, all in all a much less responsible person than the youth of a decade or two ago. Then, too, he seems to be more easily led by the example of others; while, beyond this, it is an undeniable fact that if he seeks to hold his end up socially he finds himself outdistanced in the race unless he is prepared to buy flowers and candies for his lady friends, and spend money upon them for this, and the other kind of entertainment. Putting it, in short, another way we find that the tendency of the times throughout, not only among young men, but also among many young women, is along distinctly extravagant lines. We none of us seem to be satisfied either with the simple life or with the simple things of life. In our dress, in our amusements, in our general habits, we are inclining more and more to more or less lavish expenditures, and seem largely lacking in the spirit of self denial which at one time was felt to be a characteristic of real manliness and of genuine womanhood. We are losing, indeed, the power to say no; losing also, the courage to refuse to follow in the footsteps of those who lead neither wisely nor well; and for the reason that did we refuse we fear we should lose the admiration and the friendship of those whose friendship we seek to hold—by purchase or by favor.

It is all so ridiculous! All so unprofitable! All so unwise! All so mistaken! The fact is real friendship and real respect are not to be bought and by favors, nor yet by showiness or vain display. The sensible young woman does not ask her does she expect that a man shall make a fool of himself for her—and it is only the sensible young woman whose favor is worth seeking.

The youth of this country will be well advised to ponder this matter carefully, and to resolve to be influenced not by the foolishness of his friends but by the dictates of his conscience and the promptings of his common sense and good judgment. It is better far to have a few friends and a good name than by the display of moral cowardice to make false friends and lose one's good name into the bargain.

ALL SMALL DEBTS SHOULD BE PAID

The following article, which appeared in a recent issue of a church paper ought to be read by everybody. Every honest man is supposed to pay his debts if he is able to do so, and yet there would seem to be not a few who for some reason or other, while claiming to be honest men, do not show any very great anxiety to pay their small debts. They probably intend to pay, but they see no reason why their creditors should be in any hurry, and possibly in the end they forget to pay.

A certain paper commenting upon this, declares that during the past ten years it has lost enough on subscriptions of good people to pay off every dollar of its indebtedness on building and printing plant. And no doubt many a retail merchant and many a poor man and woman reflects bitterly upon the fact that they find it hard, and in some cases impossible to collect small debts owing them by presumably honest people.

One strange fact in the case is the peculiar attitude, assumed by many, that it is the creditor's business to collect the debts due him, and if he does not bother about it the debtor has no reason to trouble himself in the matter. It is hard to reconcile such an attitude with any proper conception of honesty, and yet all these debtors claim to be strictly honest men. Their attitude is simply that every man must look after his own business, and collecting debts is part of every man's business. Just why the payment of debts is not we cannot see, and yet we venture to say that there are thousands of men in Canada who would never voluntarily, i. e., on their own initiative, pay a small debt.

We think that every man should make the prompt payment of small debts an item of his religion. What kind of honesty is it which fails to pay for a pair of shoes, a pound of butter, a year's subscription to the local or the church paper, or for work done by some poor washer woman or laboring man? Forgetfulness cannot excuse the non-payment of debts.

And if the poor creditor dares to ask for payment of the debt, in not a few cases he is treated as an offender, and the debtor takes such request as a positive insult. We wonder who is to blame for such a state of affairs? Surely it is possible to tone up the conscience of every community to at least feel that small debts ought to be promptly paid.

MUSHROOMS

Deaths occur in this country every year owing to the fact that many people who use mushrooms as table food are unable to distinguish with certainty the poisonous from the others. Cool, damp weather is favorable to the growth of such fungi, consequently they are usually most abundant in the fall.

These fungi, so-called mushrooms, or woodstools, or whatever else, may be roughly, in view of their use as food, classed into three groups—(1) those which are edible and good—(2) those which are poisonous—(3) those which are indifferent, neither poisonous or good.

The chief thing to be kept in mind are the characters of the poisonous forms. These all, practically all, belong to one genus and have these points of distinction which may easily be recognized by everyone. They have white "gills," i. e., they are white under the cap, not pink, black or brown. They have a ring around the stalk. This is nearly always apparent. They have a sort of cup of flaky material round the base of the stalk. At times this is not easily distinguished. These three characters distinguish the Amanita or Death's Cup. No amateur should meddle with the white-gilled fungi, though many of these forms are among the best. None of the pink, black or brown gilled forms are deadly. Few of the yellow-gilled fungi are good. Avoid them.

Avoid all the white-gilled and yellow-gilled mushrooms. Avoid all old or spoiled specimens of any kind.

The pink, black or brown-gilled are safe, though the pink is most delicious. Puff balls are not poisonous. Morels are all good. Hydneys are all good.

BRIDGE SURVEYED TO CROSS SCUGOG

The Port Perry Star contains the following item re a bridge which there has been some talk of building across the Scugog near Janetville to give the farmers access to both sides of the river:

Surveys are being made by the Dominion surveyors for a bridge to give the farmers of Mariposa outlet into Cartwright township near Janetville. The stakes have been planted. Two routes have been proposed—one along the town line between Manvers and Cartwright across the Scugog into Mariposa, and a second from the first concession north of the town line of Janetville to a point in Mariposa township opposite.

This latter route is said to be about 280 feet shorter than the route along the town line into Janetville. The survey is being made preparatory to a report to be submitted to the Dominion Government.

If the bridge is built it will likely cost a good many thousand dollars.—Port Perry Star.

ANOTHER PARTY TO VISIT CANAL

Another party of twelve members of parliament are expected within the next week to make a trip over the Trent Valley Canal from Peterboro to Orillia, with stopovers at various points. Practically the same route as that followed by the party that went up, from Peterboro to Orillia, and back to Lindsay, will be covered. Mr. J. H. McClelland stated that he thought the Hon. J. D. Reid, Minister of Customs, would be included in the party. He was expected last Friday, but was not present, although he may be with the next party of parliamentarians who visit the canal and the beauties of the Kawartha chain, which forms a part of it.

Mr. McClelland has also received a letter from the Civil Engineers of Toronto, who desired to make a trip over the canal. They will be afforded an opportunity of a day's trip in the near future, from Bobcaygeon to Jackson's Point. The upper reaches of the canal, especially where it broadens out in the Kawartha chain are beautiful under the early autumn sun, when it shines, and those who will have the opportunity of seeing the canal at this season, should be impressed with its natural beauty.

HOSPITAL PATIENTS PROGRESSING WELL

The Ross Memorial Hospital has had very few cases of typhoid during the past month, which fact points to a good state of sanitation in Lindsay.

During the month there have been twenty-two operations, all of which have proven highly successful. A son of Mr. Kennedy of Dunsford was brought in yesterday suffering from appendicitis, and was operated upon. He is doing nicely this morning.

At present there are a total of twenty-seven patients in the wards, all of whom are progressing favorably.

SUGGESTS THAT PEAT BE USED IS MORE ECONOMICAL THAN COAL

The use of peat, of which there is an immense supply in Ontario, to replace soft coal and anthracite is suggested by U. S. Consul Johnson in his report to the American Government. Mr. Johnson points out the scarcity of coal, the prices having already advanced in Montreal from $7 to $8 per ton, with every indication of further and more drastic changes at the approach of winter. It is estimated that if the available peat deposits of Ontario were utilized the cost of fuel consumption would decrease fully 50 per cent.

Peat is best used in open grates and cook stoves and heaters, although if properly looked after it will prove satisfactory in furnaces as well. The illustration is given of one gentleman who saved $34 by using peat last winter. He had formerly burned eleven tons of hard coal at $7.50. Last winter he burned 15 tons of peat at $3.50, a saving of $34. It costs about $2.25 per ton to manufacture peat into a form suitable for combustion.

The bogs of this product at Alfred Ontario, are the only ones that have been worked extensively as yet, and they have turned out to be a huge success. The bogs are situated about forty miles from Ottawa, which city uses a large portion of the product. It has been proven by the actual test of Ottawa manufacturers that 2½ pounds of peat will produce as much heat as 1½ pounds of soft coal, and the cost is less proportionately. There are large bogs of peat still untouched. The Simcoe bogs near Toronto contain fully 9,000,000 tons, and extensive areas within a few miles of Lindsay have yet to be explored.

The plant at Alfred is making money and there is no reason why another, more centrally located, should not pay. The move would at least be appreciated by the householder upon whom the burden of the increased cost of living is falling heavily.

APPLES WILL NOT BE PLENTIFUL

Mr. Thos. Connolly, the well known local authority on apples, in conversation with the Post on Thursday stated that the reports published regarding the bumper yield were misleading insofar as this district was concerned.

Mr. Connolly has been closely identified with the handling of apples for a number of years, and speaks with authority when he states that the yield in this section this year will be small.

In sections, Mr. Connolly states, where he secured 1500 barrels he will not be able to get 500 barrels this year. Mr. Connolly stated it was a great pity that people did not take greater care of their orchards, more especially in regard to the spraying of trees. There was more money in apples, than in a great many other crops the farmers raised, and if they only went into it in a business like manner, and paid more attention to their orchards, the results would be profitable to them.

HOUSEHOLD HINTS

For "figs" use the small yellow tomatoes, allowing half the same weight of sugar. Wash and place a layer of them in the bottom of a preserving kettle. Put over them a thick layer of sugar. Use no water, but let it simmer very gently over a slow fire until the sugar is well absorbed, when carefully lift each tomato (singly) and place on plates. Put to dry in the sun, bringing in at night, or if the rain threatens. They may be dipped once more in the syrup when dry and placed in the sun as before. Granulated sugar must be added once in a while during the process of drying. When quite free from moisture pack in layers in jars alternating with layers of granulated sugar.

When Maisie Milks The Coo

Five on Motorcycle

Five on a motorcycle—who else heard of it? Yet it was done last night by a quintet returning from the fair. There is the same old crash every night after the fireworks to climb aboard the street cars on Dundas, so the chap who owned the motorcycle treated four of his friends to a ride home. He had a wicker wagh box affixed to his cycle, and in it he had three young fellows. The fourth hung on behind. It was a rather perilous ride, but they got home faster than the cars would have taken them.—Toronto Star.

CHICKENS THEIVES AT WORK AGAIN

The other day a resident of the south ward went to her hen house in the morning and found that five of the fattest hens of the flock had been purloined. No clue of the perpetrator of the deed has been found. Of late thieves have been making their rounds doing sneak thieving, and owners of stables and hen houses should see that they are securely locked. Always in the fall of the year the chicken thief makes his raids on the feathered flocks and picks out the choicest birds.

Prevent Lost Umbrellas

The common practice of placing an umbrella for a moment against a counter, a seat, or a desk, and then going off and forgetting it, is to be done away with if a new patented article proves popular. This is a device by which the umbrella is clipped to the clothing of the owner during the moment of abstraction. Now when an attachment is provided for this that will make us remember to use the clip.
