Splendid Vote for Fitzsimmons Bylaw Very Little Opposition to the Measure

The citizens of Lindsay did a good stroke of business on Tuesday, when they carried the Fitzsimmons bylaw by the magnificent majority of 611. The vote stood 672 for and 61 against. The opposition to the bylaw was a mere bagatelle, as a member of the Industrial Commission termed it, and goes to show that the people are prepared to deal favorably with any proposition that tends to add to our industrial growth.

Thanks to the splendid work of our Industrial Committee, the different ward committees and the citizens generally, the town is today in possession of an industry that undoubtedly promises great things for the future. The result of the vote greatly encourages the Industrial Committee to go forward with renewed zeal in their campaign for industries. They have at present a number of excellent propositions on hand, but a great deal depended upon yesterday's vote as to whether Lindsay was to land them. The emphatic endorsement of the Fitzsimmons bylaw, therefore, has greatly strengthened the hands of the Commission, and they are now in a position to handle the propositions with a greater degree of success.

The result of the vote recorded yesterday will be heralded broadcast, and will proclaim the fact that Lindsay is in line with other enterprising centres in the march for industries. This is the era of industrial development, and Ontario will be the centre of the industrial activity of the Dominion. Next to the great steel industry, no other has shown such wonderful expansion as has the automobile industry. Lindsay has, in the Fitzsimmons concern, an industry with the brightest prospects, and it will not be surprising if, in a few years, the firm will be obliged to extend the plant in order to keep up with the rapidly increasing trade. Everything points that way.

Lindsay is now riding on the crest of the industrial wave. The town is in the race for industries, and as long as we have men of prudence and foresight on our Industrial Committee—men who are prepared to sacrifice a little of their time for the public weal, together with a loyal citizenship willing to back up their efforts, the future of the town as an industrial centre is assured.

By becoming an industrial centre, Lindsay is only coming to its own, and will be taking a place that rightfully belongs to her. No other town in the country offers better advantages and facilities for industrial enterprises. It is situated in the centre of the finest agricultural area on God's green footstool. It has splendid natural advantages, is well supplied with shipping facilities, and all that is required is a little effort on the part of our citizens in pushing our position to the forefront in order to make us a great industrial centre. The town got off to a good start Monday.

The day was anything but an ideal one for an election, but this did not deter the friends of the bylaw from working with a will and a determination to roll up a big majority for the bylaw. The vote recorded in its favor is very satisfactory—it is gratifying and had weather conditions been favorable, a much larger vote would have been recorded. The friends of the bylaw worked through the incessant rain, and the autos that had been brought into service never let up until the poll closed.

It did not take long to count the vote and the band of workers who gathered at the central committee rooms, anxious to hear the result, had not long to wait. As the returns came in it was seen that the bylaw would be carried by an almost unanimous vote. The few votes recorded against it in the different divisions showed that the opposition to the measure was very slight. The returns were all in before 5.30 o'clock, and on all sides satisfaction was expressed over the result.

The Post takes this opportunity of congratulating the citizens on their splendid day's work, as well as to the Industrial Committees on their loyal efforts. It was truly inspiring to see the manner in which our citizens entered into the fight on behalf of the bylaw during the past few weeks, and also on polling day. The young men, too—they who will be the citizens of tomorrow, gave a helping hand and contributed largely to the results achieved.

Industrial Commissioner Rudkins was a happy man over the result.

SIR RICHARD CARTWRIGHT'S DEATH

In the death of Sir Richard Cartwright at Kingston on Tuesday, Canada lost one of its most eminent statesmen.

His passing away was tragic; the nation has been plunged into grief with a suddenness that is indeed pathetic. Suffering for some time from hernia, he finally decided upon an operation. This was performed at the general hospital on Thursday last, and every indication seemed to point to his speedy recovery, when, during the last night, his heart showed symptoms of failure, and although temporary relief came to him early Tuesday, a second attack prostrated him, and he died in brief time, and most peacefully.

Sir Richard practically passed away in harness. He was one of the veteran statesmen, who for over fifty years had lived a life of great rectitude, of undoubted honor and sterling worth. He was a man of vigorous language—the most chaste English falling from his lips—and, though unfinching and unswerving in his devotion to what he believed to be right, he yet possessed a kindly heart and a genial disposition known to his friends, though to the world generally he possessed an austere personality. He moved in and out of Kingston, his birthplace, known and esteemed by the great mass of the public.

He was a man of great business acumen; he looked into the heart of things and dissected with a precision the very thoughts and purposes of men.

At this moment we do not purpose going into details as to his life, but it can be said of him that he was a man of the highest purity, of the noblest aims, zealous for his country's welfare and patriotic and true in his devotion to English traditions and English institutions. He was a forceful speaker and his appearance on the hustings in his days of vigor and vitality were marked events in the history of Canadian politics.

To those who mourn his very sudden death the tenderest sympathy is extended, and though bereft of a husband and a father, they have the assurance that his name will live in the annals of the country.

ALGONQUIN NATIONAL PARK

The autumn in Algonquin National Park of Ontario is one of the most beautiful seasons of the whole year, and splendid accommodation at the "Highland Inn" is offered at reasonable rates for all those who desire to forget the over-refinements of civilization and seek the solace of nature. The Inn is excellently kept in the good old fashioned way which puts a personal relationship between the inn-keeper and the guests. Altitude 2,000 feet above sea level. Write to Mr. Wm. Welburn, the Manager, The "Highland Inn", Algonquin Park, Ont., for all particulars and illustrated folders.

MR. WETTLAUER TRANSFERRED HERE

Review: Mr. Nelson Wettlaufer, wire chief of the Bell Telephone Company, has been transferred to the Lindsay plant, where he will occupy a similar position. Mr. Wm. Welburn, wire chief at Lindsay, will succeed Mr. Wettlaufer here. The latter left yesterday to assume his duties.

Besides losing a capable official the local plant will be without Mr. Wettlaufer's services for the hockey season. He was a big factor in the success of the Bell Telephone team, which won the championship of the Mercantile League last winter.

War With Turkey Useless.

Belgrade, Serbia, Sept. 25.—No benefit could be obtained by the Balkan nations through a war with Turkey, according to a declaration said to have been made by the diplomatic representatives of Great Britain, France and Russia during a call at the Serbia Foreign Office yesterday. The Stamps are the authority for the report of the foreign diplomats' action, and it adds that the three powers at the same time expressed their intention of inducing Turkey to introduce early reforms in Macedonia.

COMING ATTRACTION AT THE ACADEMY

"The Lion and the Mouse" which the United Play Company will present in this city at the Academy of Music, Oct. 2nd, is an American play essentially and conspicuously such and based upon a theme which has not been before exploited dramatically. It deals directly with a subject which at the present moment is very much in the public mind,—the corruption of politics and legislation by the power of combined money making organizations and the dominance of unscrupulous kings of finance.
To Charles Kjoin who wrote the play and Henry B. Harris who had foresight to appreciate the timeliness of it, is due credit for undoubtedly

OPINION OF VETERAN.

Laurier and Borden Fay Tribute to Sir Richard.
Ottawa, Sept. 25.—Sir Wilfrid Laurier said "I have lost in Sir Richard one of my oldest personal friends. I was associated with him for more than thirty years.
"As leader of the party, my relations with him were at all times most cordial. If there arose between us differences of opinion, it was never difficult to adjust them satisfactorily. Sir Richard was a very strong man, but those only who were intimately associated with him knew his chivalrous nature.
"He was a patriot, a thorough gentleman, and a charming man."
Premier Borden said: "The death of Sir Richard Cartwright comes as a shock to those who have been his colleagues in Parliament whether on one or the other side of the House. He has been a great figure in public life for more than 40 years of age, and no one can forget his strong personality, his wonderful power of debate, or the wonderful contrast between the extreme kindness of his disposition in private life and his great command of attack and invective in debate, whether upon the hustings or in Parliament."

DIPLOMAT IS DEAD.

Baron Von Bieherstein Passes Away in Germany.
Badenweiler, Baden, Germany, Sept. 25.—Germany's most powerful and brilliant diplomat, Baron Adolf Marschall von Bieherstein, died here yesterday after a short illness.
The baron, who had occupied the position of German ambassador in London only since May this year, had come here to take a course of alkaline water treatment and was in comparatively good health until a week ago. Then he suddenly fell ill. He had suffered from an attack of influenza earlier in the year, and his death is attributed to his strenuous work in London since his appointment to the embassy there.
The baron, who was a native of Baden, often visited his old home. He was nearly 70 years of age, having been born at Neuenhausen on Oct. 12, 1842.
His appointment to London at a critical time was generally supposed to be fraught with great significance.
Baron Marschall von Bieherstein was regarded as one of the most accomplished diplomats throughout the world. Since the death of Bismarck he had been considered as Germany's "strong man." In fact, he stepped into the shoes of Bismarck when he left office in 1890, becoming on Sept. 1, of that year secretary of state for foreign affairs. In 1894 he became Prussian minister of state, and five years later the Emperor recognized his abilities as a statesman, appointing him ambassador to Turkey. He remained at Constantinople over fourteen years.
London, Sept. 25.—(C.A.P. Cable.) One of the largest industrial concerns ever effected in this country has just been completed here. The project, the C.A.P. is informed, is a famous person than Lord J. J. Bracken, about 30 years of age was found dead at the corner of Jane street and Lake Shore road, Toronto, last night. A bottle of carbolic acid lying near the body, half empty, indicated a case of suicide.
