CHIEF BRADSHAW VISITS LINDSAY

Chief of Police Geo. T. Bradshaw, of New Westminster, brother of Game and Poultry Overseer Bradshaw, is in town today on a short visit, and is being warmly welcomed by his many friends here.

The object of his visit to Ontario is best explained by the following dispatch:—

Windsor, Ont., Sept. 10 — Martin Powell, the alleged New Westminster B. C. bank robber, over whom a fight against deportation to Canada has been waged in the Detroit courts for the past year, was deported to New Westminster via Windsor today. Accompanied by George T. Bradshaw, Chief of Police of New Westminster, Walter Jones, Immigration Inspector of the same place, William Wolfe, Pinkerton detective of Detroit, and Duncan Lyon, Deputy United States Marshall, Powell left Detroit from the Union Depot and crossed to Windsor, where Lyon turned the prisoner over to the Canadian authorities.

When Powell was taken from the ward in the jail, and was told that he was to be deported, the prisoners in the ward hugged and kissed him.

Powell was arrested here in July, 1912, charged with complicity in robbing a bank in the Canadian city of $372,000.

Powell reached Toronto last night in charge of Chief of Police Bradshaw of New Westminster, B. C., and spent the night in a cell at the Court Street police station. He will be held there for two or three days.

Thomas Was Prompt

Fenelon Falls: When Mr. Thomas Robson got off the train to visit friends at Calgary on the way home from his trip to the West, he forgot his overcoat. As soon as he missed it a telegram was sent to Winnipeg, but when arrived at that city there was no trace of the coat. Mr. Robson came on to Lindsay, and notified Mr. T. C. Matchett, C. P. R. agent, who got to work and in a few days Mr. Robson received the overcoat safe and sound, thanks to Mr. Matchett's promptness and courtesy in instituting an immediate search for the lost garment.

Father Keeley Transferred

Belleville, Sept. 12—Rev. Father J. J. Keeley, curate at St. Michael's church, in this city, has been appointed parish priest at South Mountain, in the county of Dundas. Father Keeley came here last December from Morrisburg. He leaves for his new parish next week.

AEROPLANE DID NOT SOAR

From Friday's Post.

Yesterday afternoon was the premier day of Port Perry Fair, a large crowd gathering from all parts of the country.

Countless horse drawn vehicles and scores of automobiles were lined up inside and outside the grounds bringing whole families to witness the exhibits, the speed events, and above all, the aeroplane flights.

Once the throng of midway Spielers had been passed, the main tent of exhibits could be viewed and there, excellently displayed, were exhibits of fruits, vegetables, baking, needle and fancy work, etc., as well as local trade booths.

The crowd from the grandstand and the sides of the race track viewed with keen interest the racing events satisfactorily run off and listened with pleasure to the musical selections rendered by the band during the afternoon.

Farther out on the field, baseball and football were in progress in which Sonya and Cartwright, Port Perry and Green River High School and Epsom and others figured.

The rivalry was very keen, purely from a sporting spirit (as there was no money to be won) (only the expenses being paid) and many good plays were witnessed and applauded by the onlookers.

But what everyone wanted to see, as previously mentioned, was the aeroplane in operation, and they were doomed to disappointment through no fault of the air directors, we understand.

The machine arrived late Thursday night carefully packed and crated, in fact far too late to be able to have it properly assembled and in running order by Friday afternoon. The men who were with the outfit worked all night to get it in order but were unable to do so in time and when the crowd saw they were not going to see it fly, they were highly incensed, and threatened to destroy the machine. However things gradually cooled down and a financial arrangement with the men for the default in flying was finally made.

The fair was very successful as a whole and a credit to Port Perry.

TO THE TOMB

The funeral of the late Samuel Tucker took place Sunday afternoon from his late residence, Durham-st., to the Riverside Cemetery. The services at the house and grave were conducted by Rev. Canon Marsh.

The pallbearers were Messrs George Nursey, Geo. Coombs, J. Way, sr., T. Gage, A. Tims, Thos. Murtagh, et al.

TRACY, KING OF SWINDLERS DEAD

New York, Sept. 8 — Christopher Tracey, first to make "wireless wire tapping" yield fortunes at a single stroke, was brought dying from Saratoga a few days ago, and died in the city Thursday morning. He was forty-eight years old, and succumbed to cirrhosis of the liver, which had kept him an invalid for many months and a most a stranger to the Broadway haunts where he has been daily visible for a dozen years, despite innumerable arrests.

The robbing of John J. Felix, importer of musical instruments, of No. 28 East Thirty-first street, who lost $50,000 in five minutes to the Tracey band of swindlers, marked the top line of such achievements in its amount. The daring and ingenuity of the trap set for the victim has had probably no equal in the history of roguery.

Born in Toronto, Can., in 1865, son of a wealthy wholesale dealer in liquors, "Chris" Tracey went wrong early. He was represented by a photograph in police headquarters in most of the western cities, when in 1901 he and scores of other grafters were driven out of Chicago. They came to New York, and for years their names, including that of Tracey, figured periodically in the history of crime in this city. Tracey was always quiet in manner, most carefully dressed, and coolly reckless of danger. There was a little furrow in the tip of his nose made with a knife by one of the heaviest losers at the hands of his band in Chicago, and the bones of his left hand were broken by a pistol bullet in a similar light.

"Canadian Kid" was the name by which Tracey was best known before he came to New York. He was "Charles J. Tompkins" in the Felix case until his identity was revealed at his trial in February, 1906. The first effort to convict Tracey for robbing Mr. Felix resulted in a mistrial. He was convicted at the second trial a few days later. The Court of Appeals reversed the verdict on a technical error in the trial, in December, 1906, and Tracey was released. He went abroad, remaining six months, and only a few days after his return to New York he was arrested in connection with the swindling of Howard C. Ellsworth, who lost $3,000 by the "wireless wiretapping" game. Nothing ever came of the prosecution, and Ellsworth appeared to have dropped the case.

This was the last time on record of any arrest of Tracey, who was credited with inventing immediately thereafter the "double cross" appendix to the "wireless wiretapping" book of rules. This consisted in a call on any protesting victim by confederates of the swindlers, posing as headquarters detectives, and seeking gamblers. Hundreds of out of town victims in recent years were scared away, going to their homes happy in having escaped arrest, and content at the price to forget how they had lost their money. A pretended system of withholding telegraph returns of race winners until those in the plot might bet heavily upon the horses which had won before poolroom bookmakers were informed that the race was ended, was the foundation of the "wireless wiretapping" game.

To make Mr. Felix a victim Tracey and his associates set their stage in the branch offices of a big Wall street brokerage house in the old Fifth Avenue Hotel. The offices were in the Twenty-fourth street side, distant from the hotel office and lobby by only a dozen yards. All the legitimate occupants were out of there one afternoon in January, 1905, when the Tracey band quietly put up their talented company of brokers, clerks, telegraph operators and well known men of wealth with turf interests. Felix was introduced and bet $50,000 on a horse named Old Stone, which, of course, he lost. A few minutes after he had gone the offices again were vacant.

Tracey is survived by his widow. He lived for a long time in Thirty-sixth street, just west of Broadway.

How it Happened

It was Pat's first day in the saw-mill, and his duties consisted of working the circular saw. The foreman directed him as to its use, then left him in order to attend to some pressing matter. Having occasion, however, to pass Pat's way again, he was somewhat annoyed to see him standing idly surveying his hand.

"Well, what's wrong?" he said sharply.

"Sure and begorra I've lost a finger," replied Pat.

"How did it happen?" inquired the foreman.

"Sure, I was just doin' like this when—bejabbers! There's another one off!"—Exchange.

TWO WOMEN SAVED FROM OPERATIONS

By Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound—Their Own Stories Here Told.

Edmonton, Alberta, Can. — "I think it is no more than right for me to thank you for what your kind advice and Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound have done for me.

"When I wrote to you some time ago I was a very sick woman suffering from female troubles. I had organic inflammation and could not stand or walk any distance. At last I was confined to my bed, and the doctor said I would have to go through an operation, but this I refused to do. A friend advised Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and I feel like a new woman. I most heartily recommend your medicine to all women who suffer with female troubles. I have also taken Lydia E. Pinkham's Liver Pills, and think they are fine. I will never be without the medicine in the house."—Mrs. FRANK ENSLEY, 908 Columbia Avenue, Edmonton, Alberta.

The Other Case.

Beatrice, Neb. — "Just after my marriage my left side began to pain me and the pain got so severe at times that I suffered terribly with it. I visited three doctors and each one wanted to operate on me but I would not consent to an operation. I heard of the good Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound was doing for others and I used several bottles of it with the result that I haven't been bothered with my side since then. I am in good health and have two little girls."—Mrs. R. B. CHILD, Beatrice, Neb.

Woodville Won Baseball Tourney

The piece de resistance of the Woodville Fair on Friday was the baseball tournament in which three teams, Lindsay, Woodville and Cannington participated. Baseball has got a great hold on the people in the rural sections, as was evidenced on Friday when young and old, male and female, gathered around the diamond and cheered and rooted like typical fans.

Cannington came on the diamond, with the laurels won in the league championship hanging all over them. Their opponents were Woodville. Lindsay getting the bye. Kid Kesick was in the box for Cannington while one "Ford" Lenny of Lindsay did the receiving. Heppinstall, Woodville's youthful twirler, was on the mound for the Eldon boys, with McLeod at home plate. A first class brand of ball for seven innings was dished up, with Woodville holding the big end of a 2-1 score. Heppinstall, for the winners, pitched good heady ball and was well supported by his team mates.

Lindsay bumped up against Woodville with McElroy in the box for the first innings. The youngster was not up to concert pitch and was relieved by Williamson. Right off the reel, Lindsay handed two runs to Woodville, due to some loose play. It was a see saw game until the Lindsay end of the seventh, when the locals notched their only run. The Lindsayites were weak at the bat, and did not seem to be able to negotiate with Heppinstall's delivery. It was an off day for the locals.

Messrs. Weeks and Kesick officiated as referees during the day.

The local team was as follows:—Williamson p., Carew c., Coombs 1 b., Workman 2 b., Richman 3 b., Wettlaufer c. f., Connell r. f., McElroy, 1. f.

SUGGEST CREATION OF LOCAL LOAN STOCK

London, Sept. 9.—The fact that Canadian municipal public borrowings exceeded $46,000,000 in the first eight months of the current year, as compared with $26,000,000 during the whole of 1911, while easily explained, seems to many English houses to suggest the wisdom of re-assuring the nervous and not too well informed British investor, by creating some sort of Canadian local loan stock, whereby, as in England, towns and districts below a certain status, would be enabled to borrow under the imprimature of the provincial government, which would satisfy itself that the loan was necessary.

This would have the desirable effect of ridding the market of a multiplicity of small loans, in which there cannot be a free public market, and would also enable less known Canadian municipalities to borrow on better terms, without the risk of scares such as Horne Payne created.

It is suggested here that western municipalities urge their provincial governments to confer an order to give the proposal an early practical test.

COURSE OF A THUNDER STORM

The course of a thunder storm moving along the earth is always affected by a river. It refused to cross a stream of any size, but generally passes along one bank or the other until its force is spent. Where does a thunder storm start?

Air is heated from the bottom. The rays of the sun are transmitted readily, as the air absorbs very little. Dry earth reflects very little of the sun's heat, transmits very little light and absorbs it nearly all. It therefore radiates heat well. Consequently the air is heated little from the surface of the earth upward, not from the upper layers downward. Heated air rises, therefore there must be a break in the layers of air to let the heated air through. These rising columns of warm, moist air rise until they reach a height where they can expand. As gas expands it cools, and the moist air cooling forms a thick, white cloud. If the cloud is large enough, the cloud cannot hold the moisture, a rain cloud forms beneath it, the dewpoint is reached and raindrops form.

In the meantime, the air under the cloud becomes suddenly colder, and consequently heavier. This makes a descending current of cold air. The air under the cloud becomes colder for three reasons, because of the reaction against the rising hot air, because the air under the cloud is shielded from the sun, and because the falling rain drops chill the air through which they pass. This cold air rushes to the earth's surface because of the forward movement of the shower, and also to replace the heated air which is rising up the column.

Since the life and continuance of a thunder shower depend on the steady rise of a column of heated air, it becomes easy to see why a river forms a barrier. Water reflects a great deal of sunlight and absorbs most of the rest. It radiates very little. The air is therefore colder on a river, and there is a gentle current toward either bank to take the place of the air rising from the land. In order to keep up the supply of cooler air flowing to the two banks a descending cold current of air forms over the river. When the thunder storm, depending on a rising condition of heated air, is confronted by a descending current of cooler air, it cannot go on. The storm, then either is deflected and moves along the river bank, or it stops abruptly, forms dense cloud masses and some distance beyond the river catches another descending column of air, and builds a new storm.

Vincent Curtin Was Injured

Saturday at noon while Vincent Curtin was driving on Dwyer's delivery rig helping his brother, Frank, deliver parcels, he slipped and fell some way between the front wheels and the box of the rig while the outfit was in motion. His brother was in a nearby house and could not help him, but his screams brought speedy help from several passersby who stopped the horse and pulled him out from his painful position. He was carried into Dr. Clarke's residence on Cambridge-st near whose house the accident occurred. Although he was badly bruised and shaken up no bones were broken and a few days quiet in bed would fix him up as well as ever.
