Fought Fire all Night

To remain up through the night until after six o'clock in the morning and fight bush fires was the rather tedious and unpleasant experience of Mr. Wm. McFarlane and his daughter the night before last.

Mr. McFarlane, as all summer tourists to the Kawartha Lakes know, resides in Burleigh township, and is very popular and well known to the visitors at the Burleigh Falls hotel.

The forest fires are raging fiercely in the woods just over the bridge from the "Park" Hotel, and reaching such an alarming aspect that some of the summer homes are in danger of being destroyed. The flames were spreading rapidly, and if the wind was to rise it was feared that the bridge would be burned.

The beautiful cottage of Mr. Alfred Parker, of Peterboro, on Lovesick Lake, on the main land, was in great danger, and it was to save it that Mr. McFarlane and his daughter bravely stayed out the night to save it from the relentless flames.

The dry leaves and twigs of the trees offers ready material for fire, and it was only by carrying water and beating the blaze that these persons prevented Mr. Parker's house from taking fire. Mr. Parker received a telephone message on Wednesday from Burleigh informing him of the danger to his property. He left at once for Burleigh.

Runaway Accident

A serious runaway accident was averted Thursday afternoon by the presence of mind of Mrs. McIlroy, of Cambridge, she was driving on Cambridge-st. south with her little two-year-old child, when the horse became frightened owing to a portion of the harness becoming loose. It dashed madly along the street, but Mrs. McIlroy was equal to the occasion, and turned the animal on to the market square, and it was brought to a halt at the weigh scales.

She is at present a resident of Minneapolis, and is considered one of the cleverest women in the Western States, being a clever linguist, and having filled many important positions of trust.

The Aftermath of an Emily Fight

The Antagonists Make Explanations to Magistrate Moore

The aftermath of the pugilistic encounter at a threshing bee in Emily township was a police court case before Mr. F. D. Moore, K. C., county magistrate this morning.

The facts of the case were narrated in Saturday's issue, and the case this morning attracted a large number of interested spectators. The evidence of some of the witnesses had a decidedly spicy flavor, as some very strong epithets were used previous to and during the fracas. It was a faction fight pure and simple and some four or five were mixed up in the affair. It was a fight in which one of the participants had to face three others and was obliged to pull his jack knife and jock up a stone in order to defend himself.

There were charges and counter charges laid against those who figured in the fight.

Mr. G. A. Jordan looked after the interests of the defendants, while Mr. G. H. Hopkins, K. C., acted for the complainants.

The case engaged the attention of the court until twelve o'clock, when an adjournment was made until Wednesday morning.

Weigh the Bags of Your Potatoes

Farmers Should Not Rely on Upon their Measures

Those who attend market with potatoes for sale should in every case weigh the bags and not depend upon the measure of a bushel and a half making the required weight of 91 lbs. A bushel and a half of potatoes measured to the season and to the size of the potatoes. On Saturday last the authorities swooped down upon the farmers who were offering potatoes for sale on the Peterborough market and weighed their potatoes. In several instances bags were found to be short weight. As the confiscation of all short-weight lots would have meant a considerable loss to the farmers concerned, and as the magistrate believed that the shortage was due merely to carelessness, he imposed a fine of two dollars on each offender. No chances should be taken with having short weight goods. A little extra time spent with the weigh scales will obviate any danger of confiscation. — Canadian Dairyman and Farming World.

THE JAPANESE GIRL

(New York Tribune)

"There is a new woman in Japan," said Miss Alice M. Bacon, at the Brookly Institute, and she is the problem of the day for Japan educators.

Miss Bacon, who is the author of several books on Japan, had charge of the peereesses' school, attended by daughters of the nobility, in Tokio, for many years.

"It is rather pathetic," said she, "that the Japanese girl knows so well that her school days are her happiest days. She never utters that phrase always on the American girl's lips, 'When I'm through school.' She never plans the gay, happy years to follow her graduation. Instead she takes all her little schoolgirl pleasures with the full consciousness that when they are over there will come a time when devotion to duty will be almost the only pleasure in life for her. She knows that after graduation the mother-in-law's house waits for her, and that there in the lowest place in a stranger's house she will have to work patiently her way up to the respect and good will of a strange family.

The little daughter of a wealthy house goes to school from six to seventeen. She learns reading, writing, natural science, English, the koto sewing, cooking and the tea ceremony.

"The rules of the tea ceremony were fixed about the time the Spanish Armada was besieging Elizabeth. Every movement of the woman, every position of cup, spoon, tea caddy, towel, is fixed by rubric. A thorough knowledge at it stamps a girl as an accomplished woman, and leaves a mark of breeding and savoir faire attained in no other way.

"To a foreigner Japanese sewing seems so extremely simple that it would hardly seem necessary to study it. But the Japanese girl applies herself to it with the knowledge that in the future the appearance of her children, her husband, her mother-in-law and her father-in-law will all be set down to her credit or discredit. No Japanese woman is a slave to dressmakers or tailors. She can, if necessary, make every garment worn in her household.

"She learns to cook sufficiently to direct her servants, particularly in the line of rice and pickles. Rice and

A Good Cold Weather Lubricant

For vehicles and machinery will soon be wanted and the one which gives the most general satisfaction is PURE CASTOR OIL

Many people are not aware that an imitation oil frequently offered for sale and which has no castor oil in its composition, being made by the action of chemicals on other cheap oils. Now there are different kinds of Castor Oil than there are different kinds of grain, all equally pure, any one of which can be taken medicinally if desired, and it is the cheapest of these that we offer you as a lubricant at a price almost, if not, as cheap as the imitation oil.
