LEARN DRESS-MAKING BY MAIL

in your spare time at home, or Take a Personal Course at School. To enable all to learn we teach on cash or instalment plan. We also teach a personal class at school once a month. Class commencing last Tuesday of each month. These lessons teach how to cut, fit and put together any garment from the plainest dress to the most elaborate dress. The whole family can learn from one course. We have taught over seven thousand dress-making, and guarantee to give five hundred dollars to any one that cannot learn between the age of 14 and 40. You cannot learn dress-making as thorough as this course teaches if you work in shops for years. Beware of imitations as we employ no one outside the school. This is the only experienced Dress Cutting School in Canada and is well known by name in any other country. Write at once for particulars, as we have our rate one-third for a short time only. Address:—

SANDERS' DRESS CUTTING SCHOOL,
31 Erie St., Stratford, Ont., Canada
WANTED AT ONCE—We have decided to instruct and employ a number of smart young ladies to teach our course for the six nearest towns where they live—age 20 to 35. Those who have worked at dressmaking, or like drawing, preferred. Please do not apply unless you can devote your whole time. Address THE SCHOOL.

IS A "DRUNK" RESPONSIBLE.

The following article from the Western British American, published in Chicago, may have the effect of recalling to the public mind the indignity of some recent sentences imposed on Canadian criminals. The article says:

Chicago is blessed with a number of highly capable police magistrates, some of whom have done, and are doing, valiant work to rid the city of the odium it accumulated during the reign of the "justice shop" of unsavory memory. That the occupants of the local bench are not all that they should be, however, was startlingly proven this week. A scoundrel of the detestable type was arrested and tried for an attempted assault on a young woman. The familiar story of outrage on helpless innocence was recited to the court, and the charge proven beyond a shadow of a doubt. The very suggestion of doubt was removed by the culprit himself, who confessed that he was guilty. By the time retribution had reached this stage the accused probably began to cherish hopes of a possible escape. He knew that, had he committed the crime in a lower altitude, he would not have lived long enough to make much of a confession. In any case, he must have been as astonished as anyone else at the turn affairs took. He told the judge he never got drunk "except when he drank liquor," and he never would attack women unless he was drunk. The court thereupon released him and sent him to jail.

Who can find words sufficiently expressive to describe the kind of judicial help possessed by this judge? If the same official, on going down to his court next morning had encountered a name of dancing, outlet-riddled corpses along the highway, would he have had enough sense to understand that his conduct had probably been the cause of several up-to-date lynchings? Justice-loving people find their ground giving way when they try to uphold the majesty of the law in the face of this monstrous example of incompetence.

BATTLING IN THE AIR.

A cheerful statement (this by Captain Lovelace, who has been making experiments with an military air-ship near New York; "An airship of the type of La Patrie, the great French war balloon, could drop fifty tons of dynamite in a day in a battle and from a height that would make it safe against anything except an airship destroyer." He says that he has tried target practice from airships and found that better hits could be made from a balloon basket than from the earth. It is reported, too, that the United States government is in possession of secret formula for the manufacture of acid bombs that would suffocate all within a radius of

AS TRAVELLERS COME AND GO

THE DAWN IS BREAKING.

The following article, taken from that well informed journal, The Montreal Witness, will be scanned with much satisfaction by our readers: When the recent financial clouds were darkest in the United States, six thousand men were discharged from the Harriman railways. It is now announced that they have been re-employed. They are to construct the improvements along the thousands of miles of the Union Pacific and Central Pacific that had been inaugurated to catch up with the stupendous growth along those lines of railways. During the panic, those plans were laid aside, to be resumed in brighter days. The fact that they are to be resumed this very day is evidence of the fact that—at least in the opinion of Mr. Harriman—the brighter days are beginning. In the opinion of the New York American, which has had little love for Mr. Harriman in the past, the disbursement of the millions of dollars that the work of the men represents, important as it is in the business of restoring the obstructed circulation of currency, is only the smaller good of the incident—the greater is that it is a notice to the world that the so-called panics is a thing of the past; that the greatest railway operator in the country, whose hold on the country's pulse is more intimate than perhaps that of any other man, is himself assured that the United States is convalescent, and is going ahead with his arrangements to meet the tremendous flow of prosperity. Such tidings will soon come from other quarters and presently people will begin to wonder why they were so scared in November, 1907. The gravity of the situation in New York and the United States has indeed been much exaggerated. There never was any cause for international anxiety.

The net result, as the "Spectator" says, so far as the public is concerned, is that many people have had to sell valuable stocks at a great sacrifice, while many others have been able to pick up those valuable stocks at bargain-counter prices. But there has been no actual destruction of wealth, as in the case of Toronto and Baltimore fires, and the San Francisco fire and earthquake. The crisis has, indeed, been largely a credit crisis. Credit is the most admirable and useful helper and supporter of commerce, so long as it can maintain its balance. It is, however, like a wheel in the physical world, as a rule only able to do so when in motion. As soon as it stops, it falls to the ground, and until it can be set going again by the impulse of confidence, all those interested in the equilibrium of the wheel are bound to be unhappy and disturbed. Credit, when it stops can do almost as much harm as it can do good while it is moving. So much for metaphor. The explanation only partially analyzes the situation. The real fact is that just such works as those on which Mr. Harriman called a halt, have been absorbing capital at a rate for which the world has had no sort of precedent. Such money is absolutely planted in the earth, and its fruits can only be reaped after many days. The capital so employed was largely borrowed, and that in a complex way, is (imply an incident. The real fact is that when the world as a whole sinks money faster than it makes it, there must be a check. Such checks, owing to credit conditions, bring consternation, and, through fear, become much more acute than they need be. It is cheerfully to be assured by the most reliable authorities that the inevitable recession is already taking place, and that the business confidence is being restored, and, in the United States, on a sounder basis than before the panic, owing to the elimination of much that was weak and wrong.

Captain Lovelace thinks the next great war will approach the Armageddon of Revelation, since it will be fought on the sea, under the sea, on the earth, above the earth—with submarines and airships in addition to the usual engines of destruction. It was Captain Lovelace who won the recent international balloon race with the German flyer, Pommer. Some days ago he made an ascension near New York and photographed the interior defences of Fort Wadsworth, one of the forts guarding the harbor entrance. He destroyed the plates in the presence of army officers, upon whom he presented the only pictures developed. These are said to have been so clear as to astonish the experts and to convince them, instantly of the military significance of the performance. The United States, which has been distanced by British, German and French military authorities in the matter of airships, is to build two at a cost of $200,000—if this Congress votes the money.

Capt. Lovelace is but one of many who say that when next two powerful nations fight it will ruin dynasties, and the airship destroyer will go aloft to check smaller airships as the marine destroyer now pursues the torpedo boat. "The war airship," says one reviewer, "will involve airship destroyers and it is here that the invaded country, especially if attacked from the sea, will have an advantage over the invaders, provided it measures up to its opportunity. It is assumed that men-of-war will carry airships and use them for reconnaissance. But they must be less powerful than those sent up from the land and the latter could rise above them and speedily put them out of service. Speculation upon the possibilities of these cloud battles is very interesting and limited only by the imagination of the speculator. Nevertheless the airship has emerged from dreamland. It is a reality, though comparatively crude in its development as yet. It may put fortifications out of commission, but when that time comes, it is also likely to put custom houses out of business and work a revolution in international relations as well as local conditions."

of the $30,000 surplus left by the previous city council spent and no account given. In Salt Denis, Ross, B. Marcellus and Lamoges similar disaster is reported.
The editor of the Nineteenth Century Magazine has tendered a humble apology to Sir Fred Borden for the libelous story it published about him. But his suit for damages will still go on. Some of our Tory contemporaries may now hasten to apologize.
The Albany Club of Toronto has chosen Bettie Nesbit as its standard bearer in the coming majority fight of that city. The doctor is not exactly the person the Albany "blooms" would prefer, but he looks like a winner, and they get to be on the winning side anyway.
According to the St. John Sun, in Colchester, N. S., election the Liberals gained ground in eleven different districts and the Conservatives in eight. Stanfield's election was won in Truro, his home town, where his mills are located. He received there 236 more votes than the Conservative candidate in 1904. How these votes were gained will be made the subject of a court inquiry.

TORTURED DAY AND NIGHT.

Zam-Buk Cured Them.
That there is no end to the healing powers of Zam-Buk is being demonstrated every day. Mr. Julius Glacier, of Denbigh, Ont., was tortured day and night with blind bleeding piles, so bad that he says: "I could find no comfort, standing, sitting or lying down, and was unable to do any work. One day my eye rested on a sample box of Zam-Buk. I picked it up and read the words, 'that night, and before I could purchase a large box I was already cured, and have not been troubled since. You may publish this if you wish for the benefit of other sufferers.' This is only one of the many cures where Zam-Buk has healed piles when all else failed. Why do you go on suffering when such a splendid remedy is near at hand? Zam-Buk heals sores, cures eczema, skin eruptions, ulcers, ringworm, itch, barber's rash, blood poison, bad leg, salt rheum, abrasions, abscesses, cuts, burns, scalds and all skin injuries and diseases. Of all stores and druggists at 50 cents, or from Zam-Buk Co., Toronto, for price, 3 boxes for $1.25.

Fired Barns in Revenge.

A sally tramp is a dangerous animal. Last week Thos. Kow, professional roustabout, left Toronto for Kingston, and walking being popular just now, he elected to make the trip on foot. When near Wesley's rule, in Port Hope vicinity, he sought shelter in a barn, but was ejected by the owner, and in revenge he decided to fire every barn he came to. Several went up in smoke before he was apprehended, and the number would have been much greater only that he mistook his way in the dark, and, retracing his steps, was met by a party in search of him. A few years in Kingston and about two dozen ices would be about the right medicine.
