SPECIAL DESPATCHES

MISS LE BLANC IS ACQUITTED

Cambridge, Dec. 13.—Hattie Le Blanc, the French-Canadian girl, charged with the murder of Clarence Glover, was acquitted this morning, after the jury deliberated but a few minutes.

BOAT BURNED NEAR KINGSTON

Kingston, Dec. 13.—The steamer City of Ottawa was burned near Cape Vincent this morning. The female cook was painfully injured.

LONDON STRIKE IS SETTLED

London, Dec. 13.—The great boiler-makers' strike was ended to-day by the men accepting the employers' terms.

WEEDMARK PAID THE PENALTY

Perth, Dec. 13.—Rufus Weedmark was executed at 7.30 this morning for the murder of his wife, in the presence of the jail officials only. He went calmly to his death after hearty breakfast this morning. Weedmark's crime can be attributed to a long well last night and eating a whiskey, as he murdered his poor wife while drunk.

HOT ELECTIONS IN IRELAND

LONDON, Dec. 13.—Great excitement is reported in Ireland over the elections, arrests having been made in Cork and Belfast. Redmond will have a stronger following than in the last Parliament. His capture of the mid-division of Tyrone, Ulster County, was a sore blow to the Unionists. Outside of Cork, O'Brien is making poor showing.

FOOLS NOT ALL DEAD

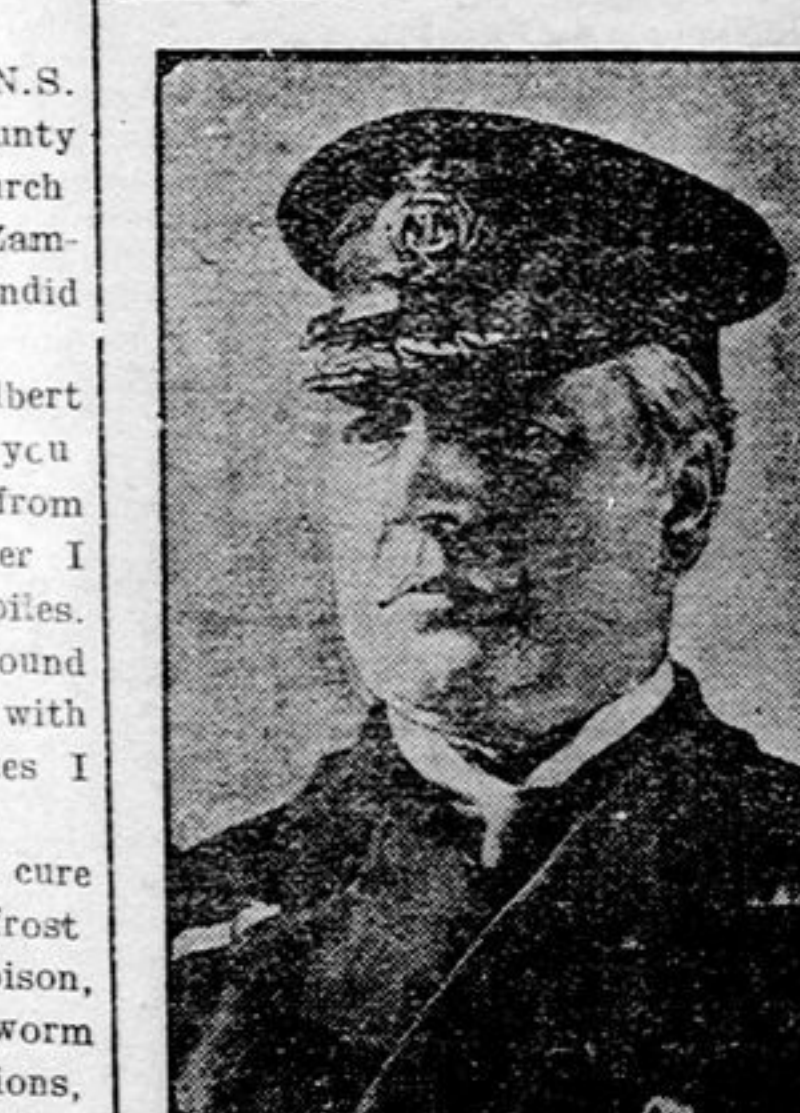

Niagara Falls, Dec. 13.—The scintillating inventor of Leach's boat says he is prepared to go over Niagara Falls in a similar craft.

Commuting of Death Sentence

A petition is being circulated in Peterboro, and largely signed to be presented to His Excellency the Governor-General asking that the death sentence passed upon James Gorham be commuted, and that he be confined in an institution for the insane.

LONDON PRIEST HONORED

London, Ont., Dec. 6.—Rev. Father John T. Aylward, rector of St. Peter's Cathedral has been made a domestic prelate of the Roman Curia, which gives him the title of Monsignor and other clerical honors. The papal brief from Cardinal Merry del Val arrived here yesterday.

LORD CHARLES BERESFORD Who has been re-elected in Portsmouth, England.

POPE'S IRISH OPTICIAN

A Dublin Specialist is Honored by His Holiness Pius X.

The fact that the Pope's eyesight continues good for a man of his years rather discounts the reports about his ill-health. Pius X. can do very well without glasses except when reading. Then he requires spectacles, and when his eyes need testing he makes use of the services of a Dublin specialist, who has just been at Rome for the purpose. They are on excellent terms. The Pope gave the optician a large gold medal having on one side a likeness of himself and on the other a representation of the Vatican Art Galleries, and accepted from him a handsome barograph encased in Irish oak.

SIGNOR MARCONI Who, in the presence of King Emmanuel and a Government Commission received wireless telegrams direct from Canada and Wassovah by means of his powerful installation at Coltano.

LABOR LOSING LEADERS

Making Promises Easier than Making Good in the British House of Commons

The fact that one of the most gifted and generally respected Labor leaders in the British Parliament, Mr. J. D. Shackleton, recently gave up his seat, draws attention to what is practically known by everyone in touch with British politics, that, with the exception of some half a dozen, all the members of the Labor party in the House of Commons have, during the last year or so, expressed a willingness to enter State or Government employment. The truth is that the average Labor member of Parliament is rather disappointed. He realizes that it is not so easy to carry out promises in the House of Commons as it is to make them on the hustings. He realizes, too, that the organizers of the Labor party, as a fighting force, are now being everywhere repudiated by men carried away by advanced doctrines, the absurdity of which is patent to everybody.

He realizes that the country is apparently on the eve of further great Labor struggles, due to the inability of the leaders to control their followers. He knows that serious blows have been dealt to the principle of collective bargaining, and also to arbitration.

There is a general hope on the Liberal side of the House that Mr. Ramsay MacDonald, M.P., will sooner or later be found in their ranks. In any case, it is known that his presence there would be keenly welcomed, and it is even hinted that a Ministerial position might be found for him. Mr. MacDonald is generally recognized to be one of the most brilliant men in the House, with less opportunity than almost any one for the utilization, in the public interest, of his talents.

A GILBERT WHITE STORY

Thomas Hoar, the devoted servant upon whom Gilbert White, the naturalist, depended to carry out his garden plans and to look after his comfort in many ways, was noted for his exactness. H. C. Shelley, in "Gilbert White and Selbourne," gives an amusing illustration:—

There was one occasion when Thomas came to report, "Please, sir, I've been and broke a glass." "Broke a glass, Thomas! How did you do that?" "I'll show you, sir," he rejoined, as he disappeared for a moment. Re-appearing with a glass in his hand, he let it fall on the floor, remarking:—"That's how I broke it, sir." "There, go along, Thomas; you are a great goose," said his master, adding to himself, "and I was as great a one for asking such a foolish question."—Youth's Companion.

RAILWAY WILL APPEAL

Welland, Dec. 6.—The case of Dell v. M.C.R., in which a jury awarded the children of Levi Dell $2,500 against the M.C.R. for the death of their father, who was killed on the M.C.R. tracks, has been appealed by the solicitors of the railway. The case was tried here in September before Justice Clute.

WHEN TO HIT HIM

"Sometimes you have to hit a man to make him keep quiet, so that you can save him from drowning."

"Yes, and the time to do it is when he first begins to rock the boat."

HIS HAPPIEST MOMENT

"What was the happiest moment of your life?" asked the sweet girl. "The happiest moment of my life," answered the old bachelor, "was when the jeweler took back an engagement ring and gave me sleeve links in exchange."

WILL MAKE HAIR GROW

Every up-to-date woman should have radiant hair.

There are thousands of women with harsh, faded, chaceaterless hair, who do not try to improve it.

In England and Paris women take pride in having beautiful hair. Every Canadian woman can have lustrous and luxuriant hair by using SALVIA the Great American Sage Hair Tonic. Higinbotham sells a large bottle for 50c and guarantees it to banish dandruff, stop falling hair and itching scalp in ten days or money back.

THE FALL OF A BOOKWORM

How a love for Hall Caine's works proved the downfall of George Livermore, thirty-four, an insurance agent, was told on Saturday at the Guildhall, when he was charged with stealing from Smith's bookstall at Liverpool Street station, four books by that writer. The prisoner, who was caught red-handed, said he could not tell what made him take the books. He was particularly fond of this author's works, and was quite unaware that he took four books. He was sent to prison for seven days.

SANDY AND THE BOATS

"Waal," drawled the Yankee. "I guess we've got boats which can beat your British boats hollow. Why, if your broke out between us and Great Britain our fleet would tow the whole British fleet into New York harbor before they knew where they were!" "Ay," replied Sandy, "ye might do that; but it would take a much better man than Columbus to discover America after it!"

WATCHED IT GROW UP

A certain local character in a New Brunswick village, whose statements were often more emphatic than truthful, was once a witness in a petty trial involving the ownership of an auger, and positively identified it as the property of one of the parties to the suit. "Do you swear that you know this auger?" asked the attorney for the other side. "Yes, sir."

"How long have you known it?" continued the cross-examiner. "I have known that auger," said the witness in an impressive tone, "ever since it was a gimlet."

SUSPICIOUS

"Let me show you 'Love Letters of Wise Men,'" said the clerk in the book emporium.

"Are they signed?" asked the cautious bookworm. "Yes, indeed, every one of them."

"Then they must be forgeries. Wise men never sign their names to love letters."

RIOTING FEARED IN CORK

Redmond and O'Brien Struggling for Supremacy in the Irish City To-day

London, Dec. 6.—At noon to-day tables prepared by the various parties showed the following totals:

- Unionists 118
- (Including three returned unopposed to-day).
- Liberals 90
- Labourites 15
- Nationalists 17

The first break in the dreary, stormy weather which has marked the British elections so far, came to-day. Forty-one parliamentary seats, twenty-two of them in London and the balance outside the city, were voted for. The first polling in Ireland was held to-day, and a stormy time was promised, especially in the city of Cork, where a battle royal was waged between Wm. Redmond and Wm. O'Brien for supremacy. O'Brien, leader of the "All for Ireland" party, had boasted that he would sweep the city. Police and soldiers were held in readiness for rioting.

The rains and fogs which had prevailed for a week, were gone this morning, and the weather was mild and dry.

At the opening of the polls to-day one-third of the membership of the new Parliament had already been elected, and while it was predicted that the government coalition would be reduced in strength, it was admitted in many quarters that the Irish Nationalists, led by John Redmond, would again hold the balance of power.

Political experts predicted to-day that the Unionists will be able to do little more than embarrass the government, according to the indications so far expressed as to the complete complexion of the next parliament. This makes it possible that the constitutional crisis, after all, will have to be settled next year by a series of conferences instead of in parliament.

A report from the parliamentary borough of Sunderland, in Durham, received at 11 a.m., stated that two Liberals had been returned and that the Labourites had made a gain of two seats.

At Newcastle two Liberals and one Labourite were returned.

DESTRUCTIVE CATERPILLARS

A. C. Wood, Alexandria, brought to The Guardian office in Charlottetown two very large green caterpillars which he found on apple trees in his orchard. They were as thick as one's finger and measured from two to three inches in length, and a half to three inches in width. They had feasted on apple tree leaves placed in the parcel for their benefit, of voracious appetite. The caterpillars proved to belong to the American Emperor Moth, a very large and destructive moth which devours many times its own weight in pear, apple and other fruit tree leaves, and should be destroyed wherever and whenever found.
