MRS. RICHARD HUNGERFORD

The many friends of Mrs. Richard Hungerford were shocked today to hear of her death by drowning in the Scugog river last night. The deceased with her daughter had intended having tea at her sister's last night, but before going she took a walk, as had been her custom. When she did anot return to her sister's home, inquiries were made, and it was found that she had left her residence on William-st. A diligent search was made during the night and also this scorning, and her body was found about 1.38 o'clock alongside the pier just west of the Ops swing bridge. VERY GOOD REASON

Mark Twain was spending a summer in a small town while a subscription was being raised by the citizens for the building of a new fence around a very old and dilapidated cemetery. Mary Twain was asked several times for a contribution, but each request was refused. Upon being asked for an explanation of his want of interest, he replied, "I see no reason for it. Those who are in the cemetery can't get out, and those that are out don't want to get in."

Violet Copeland, a pupil at the Alexandra School, was the victim of a painful accident on Tuesday afternoon during recess. She was sliding on a small sheet of ice, when she slipped and fell, breaking one of her wrists. Two of her girl companions accompanied her to Dr. McAlpine's occa, where her injuries were attend-
