Peterboro Council voted a grant of $150 toward the entertainment of the Scotch curlers, and the action has elicited a vigorous protest from the local Socialist League, which has published the following declaration: Resolved, that this League condemn the action of the Town Council in granting the sum of $150 for the purpose of entertaining the visitors of the Curling Club, as they are of opinion that the revenues of the town should be used for public purposes only, and for the good of the general public.

The City Dairy Company of Peterboro, Limited, is the name of a new syndicate recently organized in our sister town to the east. The promoters will fit up a central station in which the milk delivered by the dealers will be clarified at once, cooled, and kept in cold storage until delivered in glass bottles which have been sterilized by super-heated steam. Each cow furnishing milk for the station will be examined regularly by the company's veterinary surgeon, who will see to it that the animals are properly fed and cared for, and that their water supply is pure. The company also proposes to supply fresh cream, butter and other cream products. As milk handled in the ordinary way frequently carries contagious diseases, the people of Peterboro hail the new arrangement with pleasure. Milkmen will be paid to a quart at the station and will be saved the cost of delivery.

WAS A FINE CONCERT

A Great Audience at Academy Wednesday Night

MISS JESSIE MACLACHLAN THE SCOTCH PRIMA DONNA, OF NEW YORK, THE ATTRACTION.

Every Number Received with Enthusiastic Applause - Clever Dancing by Toronto Young Ladies.

There was a great gathering of the clans of every nationality within our borders at the Academy of Music last Tuesday evening to enjoy the rare musical treat furnished by the members of Grandpian Camp Sons of Scotland. The announcement made some weeks ago that this society had secured Miss Jessie MacLachlan, the well-known Scotch prima donna, for their annual concert created a feeling of interest that spread rapidly to all parts of the town and later to the adjoining countryside.

All the available seats were reserved some days previous to the event, and Tuesday night the box office was besieged as soon as opened by people who wished to pre-empt choice seats in the gallery or secure one or more of the many extra chairs for use in the aisles. For a few minutes after 8 o'clock the seating space was all taken up, and late comers had to be content with standing room.

When the curtain rose and disclosed a bare, unadorned stage and a dimly shining unrelieved by a pot-lamp or flowering plant, the audience experienced the one feeling of disappointment connected with the program. The neglect to bestow a little attention on the environment of the performers was a regrettable oversight, and one which—for the time being, at any rate—must have impressed them unfavorably.

The entrance of Miss MacLachlan dispelled all unpleasant thoughts. The lithe figure of that lady clad in her scarlet dress. She has a pretty face, a pleasant smile and a charming personality. Although her figure is of the Juno type, she looked remarkably well in a gown of yellow tulle, with black velvet shoulder straps and black gloves. Encircling her wrist was a bracelet presented to her by her late Majesty, and on her left shoulder was fastened a cluster of diamonds. The lithe figure of that lady clad in her scarlet dress.
