MAKING TOWN ROADWAYS

SOME TIMELY ADVICE FOR NEW COUNCILLORS

From the Pen of Mr. A. W. Campbell, Provincial Good Roads Commissioner.

From the last issue of the Municipal World we take the following, which we recommend to the careful consideration of members of Lindsay Council, and citizens generally:

There is no truer indication of the refinement, intelligence and prosperity of a community than well designed streets, with good roadways and walks, trim boulevards, handsome shade trees, and nicely kept lawns on either side.

The old-time plan of a residential street was to lay plank sidewalks on the street allowance immediately beside the fence. Outside the walk a row of trees was planted; outside the trees was an open ditch or gutter; and then the roadway in the centre of the street.

The more modern practice is to remove the sidewalk from its old position and place it outside the row of trees, high-board and other disfiguring styles of fences are removed, and the boulevard where the sidewalk had been is, in effect, added to the lawn.

The township style of roadway is giving place to one more distinctly urban. There is no longer an open ditch with the road a mound of gravel. Instead the road is levelled down, under-drains keep the sub-soil dry and displace the deep, open gutter for surface water only, and is often merely the angle between the gentle camber of the roadway and the curb.

Between the curb and the sidewalk there is frequently room for a strip of sod, the roadway being narrowed to a width of twenty or thirty feet. The narrowing of the roadway between the curbs reduces the cost of construction and maintenance, and the widths given are found quite sufficient to accommodate traffic on the majority of residential streets, even in large cities.

The defects most observable as a rule arise from the fact that durable and permanent work is not undertaken, in order to correct which, there is need of reforming the present system of street management in two particulars—the method of expenditure, and the method of oversight.

The expenditure should not be distributed over the street area in patchwork and repairs, but a reasonable amount should be provided for permanent work.

Small sums of five, ten or one hundred dollars quickly exhaust an entire year's appropriation, whereas one-half the appropriation spent in properly macadamizing a few blocks, would in a few years revolutionize the condition of the streets in most towns.

The annual expenditure is usually divided among the different streets and wards of a town, and this is again subdivided by the ward representative in doing odd jobs here and there. It is not spent in accordance with the needs of the work, but as certain electors think it should be spent.

The logical outcome of the system is that this money becomes a legitimate campaign working fund; the people expect it and the Council has no other choice but to pursue it. It is the very tangible result of such a system that too much money is provided for one piece of work, and not enough is devoted to another—usually the latter. It is productive of shoddy roadways, and is always wasteful in the end.

Many towns have been making an effort to keep in repair a class of roadways not suited to the traffic or them. They might be considered very good township roads. Cheap first construction, they are expensive to maintain, and after a term of years are very costly. The repairs made to these streets are supposed to be such as will eventually provide a solid roadway; but this method of sinking stones in the mud year by year, and in the spring carting off the mud which has been forced to the surface is an extravagant and useless process, which will not make good streets. The waste that arises is of a two-fold nature, combining high taxation and bad streets. It is not to be supposed that streets can be built without money, but when the expenditure is made as now, it should be to provide good streets.

In order to get the best result from street construction, the work has to be undertaken on a proper scale. A roadway, like a house or any other structure, should be built from the foundation upwards, and should be completed, if only in short sections, before it is used. The roadbed should first be graded, underdrained and otherwise prepared to receive the gravel, broken stone or other road metal; which last should be placed on the roadway with proper machinery and in accordance with the best principles of roadmaking.

To do this the expenditure now extended over a term of years on a badly formed roadway should be concentrated so as to secure permanent and durable work. To this end there are three courses open: 1. To set apart a portion of the present annual appropriation for permanent work. 2. To issue debentures for the amount necessary to do finished work. 3. To adopt the frontage tax system.

Oversight. The oversight should be delegated to a competent supervisor, instead of being left to the Council or a committee. On business principles there is every reason for placing this work in the hands of one man. Street construction is a matter requiring experience and special training. The plan of leaving it to the Councillors is the pathmaster system of the towns.

The supervisor would prepare the plans and specifications for all work. These having been submitted to and passed upon by the Board of Works and Council, he would further relieve the Council by taking full direction of the work.

Sore and swollen joints, sharp, shooting pains, torturing muscles, no rest, no sleep—that means rheumatism. It is a stubborn disease to fight, but Chamberlain's Pain Balm has conquered it thousands of times. One application gives relief. Try it. All druggists sell it.

The Best Remedy for Croup.

(Atchison, Kan., Daily Globe.) This is the season when the woman who knows the best remedies for croup is in demand in every neighborhood. One of the most terrible things in the world is to be awakened in the middle of the night by a whoop from one of the children. The croup remedies are always as sure to be lost, in case of croup, as a revolver is sure to be lost in case of burglary. There used to be an old-fashioned remedy for croup, known as five syrup, but some modern nuthers say that Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is better, and does not cost so much. It cures the patient to "throw up the phlegm" quicker, and gives relief in a shorter time. Give this remedy as soon as the croupy cough appears, and it will prevent the attack. It never fails and is pleasant and safe to take. For sale by all druggists.

Chamberlain's Cough Remedy

This preparation is intended especially for coughs, colds, croup, whooping cough and influenza and has become famous for its cures of these diseases over a large part of the civilized world. It can always be depended upon and is pleasant to take. It not only cures colds and influenza, (grip) but counteracts any tendency toward pneumonia. It contains no opium or other harmful substance and may be given to a baby as confidently as to an adult.

Miss Alice Bailey, of Atlanta, Ga., escaped the surgeon's knife, by using Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—I wish to express my gratitude for the restored health and happiness Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has brought into my life. I had suffered for three years with terrible pains at the time of menstruation, and did not know what the trouble was until the doctor pronounced it inflammation of the ovaries, and proposed an operation. I felt so weak and sick that I felt sure that I could not survive the ordeal, and so I told him that I would not undergo it. The following week I read an advertisement in the paper of your Vegetable Compound in such an emergency, and so I decided to try it. Great was my joy to find that I actually improved after taking two bottles, so I kept taking it for ten weeks, and at the end of that time I was cured. I had gained eighteen pounds and was in excellent health, and am now, as you surely have my very best wishes."—Miss ALICE BAILEY, 55 North Boulevard, Atlanta, Ga.—$5000 forfeit if original of above letter proving genuineness cannot be produced.

All sick women would be wise if they would take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and be well.

The society for the Propagation of the Faith, which is the Roman Catholic missionary body of the Roman Catholic church, collected last year about $1,350,000, a tenth of which came from the United States. It expended of this sum in the United States and Canada $86,642, wholly the Roman Catholic dioceses in the United States receiving missionary aid are Mississippi, Texas, and Louisiana. English Manufacturers Supply Funds.

Suggestive of the influence backing Mr. Chamberlain in his protection campaign is the announcement that a promotion fund of $700,000 a year in subscriptions, apart from lump donations, has been secured. This considerable amount has been subscribed, no doubt, by those who expect to benefit, should the new movement be crowned with success. They look forward to recouping themselves at the expense of the British public when a protective tariff will, as in the United States, place the home consumers at their mercy. The manufacturers of Great Britain are quite as sensible as those of the United States of the advantages for them of a tariff that would exclude foreign competition. They are willing to subscribe, as a Pennsylvania protectionist once observed, to the tariff that they buy oil for their machinery, to make things run smooth and assure a good return. Only a wealthy class looking for favors from tariff legislation could afford to make up a fund so large as that said to have been subscribed. But compared with what the contributors expect to gain, in the event of Mr. Chamberlain succeeding in his campaign, the fund is a mere bagatelle. Protection seekers indeed generally see the advantage too themselves too clearly, and do not see that if every one else gets the same treatment each will lose more than he will gain. The protectionists in the United States have been saved by the fact that no one could protect the farmer, and that the farming interest outweighs all others. But Britain has no such reserve power, and to her a protective tariff would only mean a system by which everybody would have his hands in everybody else's pockets with a ceaseless squabble as to which would be empowered to take most.

No Heaven-sent Mob for Him.

At an evangelistic service at Glasgow the other day the preacher at the end of his address cried: "Now all you good people who mean to go to heaven with me, stand up!" With a surge of enthusiasm the audience sprang to their feet—all but an old Scotchman in the front row, who sat still. The horrified evangelist wrung his hands, and, addressing him, said: "My good man, my good man, don't you want to go to heaven?" Clear and deliberate came the answer, "Aye, Awm gangin', but no with a pairsonally conducted party."

Lindsay's Advertising Expert.

In the advertising pages of the January number of the Strand magazine appeared the photos of four young people, among which is the photo of Mr. A. J. Ford, of the firm of Wakelley & Ford, town. These two young men and women have received great help and a thorough instruction through correspondence with Mr. Elmer Helm, formerly ad writer for John Wanamaker, of New York, in how to advertise and write good ads, so as to make business a success. Mr. Ford is writing to Mr. Helm, saying: "Your instruction and counsel have proved most profitable to me since I engaged in business. I feel it my duty to tell you the credit due you." MONDAY'S HOCKEY GAME

LINDSAY DEFEATED UXBRIDGE TEAM—SCORE 10-4.

Locals Displayed Good "Com" Work—Junior Players make Record.

The Uxbridge aggregation went down to defeat before the Lindsay Seniors on Monday by a score of 10-4. It was the third O.H.A. game of the intermediate series the locals had figured in this season, and the second victory. About four hundred spectators were present, and as the game progressed enthusiasm ran high. The ice was in splendid condition and the playing was fast. The game was entirely free from roughness, and was one of the cleanest that has been played on local ice for a long time. All through only one player—a Lindsay man—was penalized, and he for a slight offence.

The visiting team arrived on the 8 o'clock train, and didn't lose much time in getting to the rink. The Uxbridge boys were a heavier aggregation and used their strength to great advantage, but the locals were faster, better stick-handlers, and their combination was beautiful. Both teams last night didn't play their regular men, Uxbridge were short three of their seniors, and Lindsay played two men who had never been in senior company before. For Duffus, the former cover-point of the Collegiate scores and "Buffer" Mahar, who plays with the juniors, appeared with the seniors, and both played a beautiful game, the former playing cover and the latter on the forward line. Duffus is a grand rush man and a few weeks ago he was in the "news" for some magnificent rushes last night. Boyd Sylvester and Mahar were daisies on the wings. Pringle was at home playing centre, while Taylor, as rover, was always in the game.

The combination playing of the Lindsayites was far more in evidence than that of their opponents, but the latter were had checkers, putting lots of vim in the game, so the locals had to work hard to pull out a victory. Although the score was large, that's no indication that the game was slow. It was good and fast all through, and it was only by superior combination playing that Lindsay managed to pull up a large score. Despite the fact that the locals' "com" was better, the Lindsay boys didn't have it all their own way. Their goal was stormed on many occasions, and the Roman Catholic boys, who were in position to put in a few goals, which was a veritable stone wall, the visitors would have tallied oftener. Many a rush was broken by Duffus, and if the rubber should get past him Riley was always on hand to relieve. McGrath was also always on the alert and stopped many a hot shot. The game started at 8:30 sharp. Lindsay got away, and in a rush went far before shooting. A little hard checking followed this, and nothing was doing for a few minutes. After a face off a little scrimmage occurred, then Taylor got it, passed to Pringle, the latter scoring in a neat shot from centre. A minute later the visitors scored, but Pringle broke the tie, Sylvester serving the puck to him after a pretty rush. Goosey Taylor scored the next for Lindsay in a pretty lift after a face-off. Uxbridge disputed the goal on the ground that the goal-keeper was in position. The goal counted, however, and the half ended 3-1 in Lindsay's favor.

The next half was all Lindsay. Uxbridge scored the first goal in two minutes but at no stage of the game after this did they look dangerous, for the most part. The game was put in an article of hockey that puzzled the visitors. Duffus by some brilliant stick work managed to get through his opponents' shot, and scored. This trick was repeated a few minutes later by Sylvester. The next thing was to Uxbridge but should not have been allowed, as the referee had whistled for an off-side. Pringle scored the next in a pretty "com" play in which Taylor and Sylvester figured. Buffer Mahar scored the next for the locals, and a minute later Sylvester scored, and the game managed to wiggle out of a scrimmage, passed to Gillilan, and the latter in a pretty rush scored. Lindsay counted two more in quick succession, the last being scored a second before time. During the last ten minutes the locals scored two goals that didn't count, they being scored on off-sides.
