DON'T FEAR FRESH AIR.

Through Ventilation of Poultry Houses Necessary at All Times, and Particularly Desirable in Cold Weather. How shall I ventilate my poultry buildings? What is the best kind of ventilation for a poultry house?

Ventilate your poultry building in the same manner that you would your bedroom, i. e., by opening the doors and windows. Don't use special ventilating devices; they are dangerous.

Ventilation devices are dangerous because they are liable to create draughts because they are usually open when they should be closed and vice versa. All ventilating devices admit a draught or thin stream of cold air.

As to ventilation of a close house during cold weather, much depends upon the building. Ordinarily enough air will find its way in around the windows and doors to answer all purposes.

No such danger need be feared from the admittance of a volume of fresh outdoor air into the poultry house by means of an open door or window, provided these openings are so situated that a direct cold air current does not sweep through the house.

The windows of the poultry house, and all ventilating doors should be located in the south front of the poultry house. All windows should be made to open at top and bottom or so arranged on hinges that the window can be thrown open at will.

Don't be afraid of fresh air when supplied in large volume with freedom from direct draughts. With the openings all in the south front and the fowls protected on three sides by tight walls—both sides, back and a tight roof—there is no danger. Such windows and doors can be opened wide for a large part of every day throughout the year and with most gratifying results.

On cold, windy, cloudy or stormy days, keeping the windows open for half an hour to an hour each day while the fowls are feeding may answer well enough in some locations, but the writer prefers to keep the windows open as long as it is convenient to do so.

As to ventilation of a close house during cold weather, much depends upon the building. Ordinarily enough air will find its way in around the windows and doors to answer all purposes.

Windows Should Face South. No such danger need be feared from the admittance of a volume of fresh outdoor air into the poultry house by means of an open door or window, provided these openings are so situated that a direct cold air current does not sweep through the house.

DOMINION AND PROVINCIAL SALARY GRABS CONDEMNED

Thoughtful Letter from the Pen of Dr. John Mackay, Woodville—Duty of Victoria County Conservatives and Liberals.

(To the Editor of The Post.)

Mr. Editor.—There is no doubt the "salary grab" will be re-considered in the coming session of the Dominion Parliament. Mr. Borden has said so, and W. F. McLean can be relied upon to put the members on record on this measure. This act, so well named, and sneaked through the House at the closing hours of last session, is perhaps the most indefensible, disgraceful, and selfish on the pages of our statutes.

As The Post has not, to my knowledge, published a note in condemnation of this legislation—a course which to my mind does not fully discharge its responsibility to its constituents—permit me to make a few observations thereon.

The members of our House of Commons, modelled after that of Britain, are not supposed to be remunerated, but our constitution at Confederation granted $1000 per session to each member. It is not called a remuneration, or salary, but an "indemnity," and was specially intended to enable poor men to enter Parliament. Some years later the same democratic spirit was still further extended, and the will of the people given free scope by the abolition of all property qualification.

In addition the members secured free passes on all railways all the year round, and while at Ottawa free postage.

This was the compensation of members from Confederation until 1900, when without any notice to the country, which had just returned the House, presumably for the old indemnity, the Prime Minister moved, and the leader of the Opposition seconded, a resolution to increase the indemnity to $1500. In moving the resolution the leader did not, as before, draw his inspiration or argument from the Mother of Parliaments, where members receive no pay, but from the American Congress, where they receive $5,000 per session. Mr. Borden held the additional $500, would give us better value for the measure became law.

The manner in which the legislation was engineered showed the work was dangerous. Neither party would take the full responsibility—both must share the blame, and then who could the country do about it?

In the last campaign of 1904 the matter was not mentioned. The press was silent and the country endorsed the $1500 indemnity, thinking the salary was a line of honor reached. But it was badly deceived for having once tasted blood with so little risk, the appetite was whetted, and the present House, at its position with the McGray-Harris company, Mr. Stillman's Lindsay friends will wish him success.

St. Catharines Journal; It seems that fruit is now preserved in gas and delivered in New York as fresh as it was when picked in California.

All Judges in the Dominion were raised—High Court, District Court, County Court, and the Lord who know how the matter will be done. In Ontario alone there are 18 High Court Judges that draw from $9000 to $8,000 each, and about 70 County Court Judges that are paid each from $5,000 to $3,000. Do not forget those dear souls that are sacrificing themselves on the altars of their country for such paltry salaries can retire at any time on large life pensions.

Again, Ministers who retire from office after five years' service, or are driven from power by the people, receive a pension of $3,500 for life. The law was made retrospective, so there are how many eligible for such pensions and the number necessarily be increasing. Many of them are already millionaires, still Canada must pay all to the end, no matter how wealthy or how malodorous they become.

Minister's salary is increased to $12,000, and for the first time the leader of the Opposition is paid a salary of $7,000. This is the only ray of light in the whole bill. I fancy the country will observe the difference, and will say, "The two leaders are equally important in our system. The country requires all their time. They must be our ablest men. They

OBITUARY.

Patrick Duck, Ops.

Another of our early settlers and most respected citizens, Mr. Patrick Duck, passed away on Friday, 16th inst., at the residence of his son-in-law, Mr. W. L. White, Russell-st., at the advanced age of 87 years.

For many years the deceased gentleman took an active part in municipal and political campaigns, being a strong supporter of the Conservative party's administration. In municipal matters his career lasted over a quarter of a century, during which time he always received the unqualified support of the majority. On the Court House the flag floated at half-mast out of respect to him who had for many years been a member of the County Council. Messrs. S. J. Fox, M.P.F., Geo. Lytle, proprietor of the Watchman-Varder, and Col. Stm. Hughes, M.P., on behalf of the Conservative Association, placed a beautiful wreath of flowers on the casket, bearing the inscription, "From the Liberal-Conservative Association of South Victoria." The many people who viewed the remains while in state showed the high esteem in which he was held by all.

On Sunday the funeral took place at St. Mary's R. C. church, where customary prayers were said, and thence to the R. C. cemetery, for interment. He leaves a family of ten children six to mourn the loss of a kind and fond father, his wife having pre-deceased him some sixteen years ago.

On Monday at 8 o'clock the funeral mass was celebrated by Von Archdeacon Casey, at which the relatives and many members of St. Mary's R. C. church, on behalf of the Conservative Association, placed a beautiful wreath of flowers on the casket, bearing the inscription, "From the Liberal-Conservative Association of South Victoria." The many people who viewed the remains while in state showed the high esteem in which he was held by all.
