R. NEILL,

Sole Agent for The Slater Shoe. CANADA'S SHOE KING

Canada Misrepresented.
(From the Stratford Beacon.)

Two cases of official misrepresentation of Canada—unintentional, perhaps, but none the less injurious for that—came under our notice last week. One was the remark of Hon.
Joseph Chamberlain before the large Welsh delegation which waited upon him asking for a grant towards transporting the Welsh colony in Patagonia to Canada. He enquired as to the climate of Patagonia, and on being told that it was warm, he expressed doubt that it would be wise to expose people who had lived so long in a warm climate to the extreme rigor of a Canadian winter.

Another was a series of pictures in the Cosmopolitan Magazine, illustrating an article entitled "Motherhood." A number of beautiful English and American mothers, with their children, are pictured in bright evening dresses, while Lady Minto and her children are shown in long fur coats reaching to the ground, making it difficult to distinguish between them and Esquimaux.

Why should the wife of the Governor-General of Canada and her family have themselves photographed in furs to the heels and not the wife and children of the Governor of New York State?

In the case of Mr. Chamberlain, the question was prompted by ignor-

This Reflects on Victoria Co.

In his address at the opening of Peterboro Spring Assizes Monday last Hon. Mr. Justice Lount made strong reference to the House of Refuge question, saying that it was a disgrace to the town and County of Peterboro that such an institution had not been provided. It was to be regretted that petty jealousies had been allowed to interfere in this matter and that no such necessary institution had been provided. His lordship did not spare the municipalities in his condemnation of the neglect with which this matter of a House of Refuge had been treated. "Victoria County has been censured in similar terms by presiding justices and in grand jury presentments, but so far the love of lucre has trumped over the sympathies of the people. The fact is not creditable to the people of this prosperous county, now free from debt, and the matter should be discussed from the church pulpits.

THREE FINE ADDRESSES

Heard at the Liberal Meeting at the Academy of Music Last Friday Evening.

WHITNEY'S VAGILLATING POLICY WITH RESPECT TO THE REFERENDUM AND OTHER IMPORTANT QUESTIONS.

The Record of the Liberal Government in Ontario Clearly Defined as Showing Progress, Frugality and Regards for the People's Rights.

The liberals of Lindsay and West Victoria have every reason to feel satisfied with the success of the first town meeting in the interest of Mr.
Smaile, the standard-bearer chosen to contest the riding. The audience was a large one, and that the interest was keen is proved by the fact, that very few left the Academy before the close, although the hour was late—too late in fact. If the meeting had been opened sharp at 8 o'clock all about 10.30 an audience begins to grow restless, and the ability of Mr.
Heyd, the last speaker, to hold the attention of the large crowd till after 11 p.m. speaks volumes for the magnetic character of his oratory and the interest felt by his hearers.

The chair was occupied by Mr. R.
J. McLaughlin. Seated with him on the platform were Mr. Newton Smaile, the candidate, Mr. Graham, M.P.P., Brockville, Mr. L. F. Heyd, the liberal candidate in East Victoria, and Messrs. Thos. Stewart, M. J. Kenny, Hugh O'Leary, Jas. Graham, Robt.
Kennedy, David Walker, Ope. L. Min-thorne, Oakwood, and Mr. E. Mos-grove, Kirkfield. The stage was prettily decorated with palms and flags.

Chairman McLaughlin in his opening remarks, referred to the importance of the decision soon to be made by the electors of the Province and ulation established there would benefit the older parts of the Province.

He would also express his entire approval of the Prohibition Bill and the Referendum principle. The government, in response to a request from a large section of the people, had decided to secure an expression of the opinion from the voters of the Province as to the further restricting of the liquor traffic. If a bare majority of the voters who elected the last parliament decided in favor of further restriction the Bill would become law. That was as far as a fair government could go, or reasonable men could expect. (Applause).
Keeping in mind all the circumstances, In conclusion Mr. Smaile appealed for the support of the Ross government because of its grand record, and he asked for a sympathetic consideration of his own candidature as a supporter of that government.
(Applause).

Mr. Geo. P. Graham, M.P.P., Brockville, was introduced by the Chairman as one of the leading members of the local Legislature. It was his first appearance before a Lindsay audience, and it is safe to say that every person who heard him speak and eloquent address wished to hear him again. In his opening remarks he referred in complimentary terms to the presence of so many ladies, adding that it was a striking indication of the great change that had taken place in recent years in the conducting of political meetings and of the growing interest in public affairs.

He could congratulate the liberals of the riding on their candidate; he had heard Mr. Smaile for the first time at Woodville the previous evening and had been struck by his wide range of thought, his grasp of public questions and his clearness of expression; if elected he believed he would speedily take a high position in the government ranks. The young man of today was well qualified for positions of responsibility and trust at an earlier age than formerly, and it was to be expected, because they enjoyed great advantages which had been denied to their forefathers.

Mr. Smaile had referred to the Referendum. This fact was (Mr. G.) wished to make clear—the Liberal party had nothing to be ashamed of in its temperance legislation during the last 25 years—all improvement had been the work of the government, and they had kept well ahead of the growth of temperance sentiment. If the number of licenses granted in 1901 was in proportion to the number existing in 1878 there would be over 8000, but as a matter of fact the number at present was only slightly in excess of 2000. The liquor question was a serious one, and had been before the people of the Province of Ontario for many years. He would place before his hearers the facts of the case, and of the government so that they might form their own conclusions as to the good intentions of the respective parties with respect to the question. It was fair to point out that no matter what the personal opinion of any Premier of Ontario might be, they should not forget that he has to look after the interests of all classes—his oath of office binds and compels him to do so. We have in Ontario three classes—in the forefront the active temperance class, who lead the way and to whom belong the credit of initiating much of what has been done to lessen intemperance; at the extreme rear a class who do not want temperance or at least any further restriction; and between the two stands a large class who do not feel very strongly one way or the other. It is the duty of the Premier to legislate for all three classes—we can't all think in the same groove.

Why did the Ross government take the Manitoba act as the basis of the prohibitory legislation asked for?
Because that act had been passed upon by the Imperial Privy Council, who had declared that it represented all that any province had power to grant. The Manitoba act had passed through all the tests, yet Mr.
Whitney refuses to support for Ontario the law passed by his political friends in another province. In Ontario no one has ever heard a leading conservative denounce the Manitoba government for not putting the act before the people, which was a certain proof of their insincerity in dealing with the liquor question. If Mr.
Ross had added one new line to the Manitoba bill the Opposition would have raised a cry for its resubmission to the Privy Council.

Why not pass the act in Ontario without referring it to the people?
The reply to that demand was that the people had never been afforded an opportunity of declaring their will in relation to such an act, and no member of the house had been elected to support that act. Even if the Premier possessed the power it would be taking an undue advantage of the people to pass such a law without their sanction and approval. It would not be in harmony with the principles of a representative government. If he had done so, and the government met defeat, temperance legislation would receive a set-back from which it would not recover for twenty years. (Applause).

The main argument heard in the house was that the Referendum was unconstitutional—not in harmony with British principles. Mr. Whitney and Mr. Fox professed to hold that view. Mr. Marter disagreed with them. In support of the constitution-ality of the Referendum the speaker said the plan had been made use of many times in the Australian Colonies since 1894, while in New Zealand at every election a referendum vote is taken on the question of the majority required being 60 per cent.
The referendum principle is embodied in the new constitution of the Australian Commonwealth—and that constitution was passed upon by the House of Lords. The British distinction is "based upon the people's will." A leading writer has pointed out that the constitutions of the various States of the American union are based upon and very similar to that of the Presbyterian
