The Seizure of Manchuria from China the Culmination of Years of Plotting—The Powers Misled by Promises and Assurances which Russia Had no Intention of Fulfilling - Japan's Action Came Not a Day too Soon, as with a Larger Fleet Russia Would Have Been Supreme.

(Archibald S. Hurce, London, E., in Scientific American.)

It has not yet been realized seemingly by the world that Russia in the immediate future is determined to be assentially an Asiatic rather than a European power and that Port Arthur and Dalny will be her front doors and not, as what at one time supposed, her back doors, She is turning her face towards the sun, which has been denied her hitherto in Europe, and her energies will be directed increasingly to the exploitation of the and which it may be accepted as certain, that, unless it be wrested from har by Japan, she will give up under threats by whomsoever made. Plans which have been unfolding for saveral years past and have swallowed up several hundred millions sterling depend upon the ability of the Muscovita power to retain her nominal hold on Manchuria until the momant comes when she feels strong enough to throw off all reserve and, on one pretext or another, to annex this territory, one of the richest sections of China, wherein lies buried mineral wealth of untold value, with a population of about nine millions near at hand for its recovery. Russia's Bad Faith.

In reviewing the naval situation it is not without interest to glance back over the course of events in the Far East-surely an unique record. In 1894, when Japan had defeated Mr. Fred G. Perrin, of Oakwood, China, Russia, with the Support of Germany and France, intervened and refused to permit Japan to hold Port Arthur, which she had captured from the Chinese after a long and most cos.ly campaign. It was claimed that the integrity of China must be preserved in the interest of the peace of the world. Great Britain, though she did not throw in her lost with the other three powers, found their policy in agreement with that upon which she had insisted, and America stood aloof on similar grounds. Desiring the maintenance of China as Mr. C. E. Weeks, barrister, of an independent power, neither hawas in town Monday on | tion could with grace assist Japan to rob it of one of its bast points d'apne that the inve Mr. F. J. Gillespie, of the Sun pui, even by conquest. Not very Co., spent Sunday at home with many years had 'passed when the world was astonished to learn that Messrs Garner Hunter and Jas .. two of the protectors of China had ser, of Bobcaygeon, were in town obtained "leases" of Chinese territory. Germany, in November, 1897, seized Kiau-Chau, and Russia obtained Port Arthur in the following January, and these examples were imitated by France and Great Britain. This was followed by the announcement that the Tzar had devoted £9,-000,000 starling from the war chest The Missey McConvey and Every, to the carrying out of a great shipbuilding programme. It was subsequently ascertained that this sum was in addition to the ordinary navy votes, which had been rising for several years. The world heard next that Russia had obtained important concessions in Manchuria and that she planned to bring her trans-Siberian railway down to Port Arthur. In 1900 China proved a useful instrument toward the furtherance of Russian policy. The "Boxer" troubles gave the Russians the orpontunity of couring troops into Manchuria, nominally to guard the railway, then fast creeping down to the long-desired warm water. These troops have not been withdrawn, and their number has been increased month by month. Since she first obtained her of Dr. Morrrison, of the Times, "has transformed Manchuria from a Chinese province, to a virtually Russian

Dirlomacy has been supported at every ster by naval power, often more imposing in array than dangerous in warfare. Since 1895 gractically every battleship as it has been completed for sea has been commissioned, not for service in the Baltic, but for the Far East. With amazing liss Nellie Reeves, of the south ragidity, Russia, which hitherto has who has been visiting friends had one fleet in the Baltic, frozen up enelon Falls, has been unable to for six months of the last year, another in the Black Sea, nominally at least immured by the grovisions of the Treaty of Paris, and a small Lake, is a guest at the Simp- force in the land-locked Casrian Sea, house for some days. He will be has created yet another squadron, ols to return home until the Co- more powerful than either of the ak branch is clear or the roads others, and at Vladivostok and Port Arthur, naval bases have been equirged, with a large dock at each place, and building facilities for torredo craft at the latter. Meantime the great shipyards of Russia and of France, Germany, and of the United States have been busy building for Russia additional men-of-war of the most cowerful types.

that the development of Russian be recognized as a Victoria County rinas has been so hurried that the boy. work has not yet been rendered sufficiently strong to bear the strain of a contest. In the Russian fleets in the Black Sea and the Far East are embodied pushful diplomacy - diplomacy with a mailed fist; but they are distinct and entirely segarate, with over 12,000 miles of sea intervening. The ships which are built in the Black Sea, remain in the Black Sea. Shirs pass from Europe to the Far East, it is true, but they can traval from the Baltic to the Pa cific only with the aid of coal obtained at British coaling stations. At Port Said or Suez, at Aden and Singarors, Great Britain (holds the lines of communication between these two fighting forces of Russia; and Nugent, Mr. and Mrs. A. Vancouver by the Canadian Pacific Raifway? Morsover, the trans-Siberian railway has been hastily and not too well laid. Consequently, under the most favorable circumstances stores sent from St. Petersburg or Moscow to Port Arthur take three weeks to reach their destination if sent by the best rassenger train shown in the latest time table issued by the Russian government. This line would have to serve, after the commencement of war for the Transport of All Stores for the army and navy, and those who are familiar with the difficulties slie) of China which she has secured attending the working of a long longth of single rail in time of war will appreciate its value under such circumstanoss. Another be borne in mind is that fits course through China must be heavily guarded by troops, and that thousands of the Chinese would risk a good deal, if Russia were on the defensive, to cripple this line of com-

of the rermanent way or blowing up one of the numerous bridges. When it is said, therefore, that Russia's rosition as a naval power is unique, it will be admitted that her difficulties are of no ordinary charactor. Ut to the present war she has triumphed. Every step in her programme of Emrire building in the Far East has been carefully glanned years ahead, every preparation made, and only when she has assured herself that everything is in readiness has sae, as opportunity has offered, taken the world into her confidence and stood arm by Ler intentions.

ofnce she obtdined the "lease" of Port Arthur, Russia has made wonderful progress; but the scheme is not complete, and herein lies the exrlanation of her evasive diplomacy when she has ben approached by one or other of the rowers seeking assurances that she will withdraw her troops from Manchuria. It is now common knowledge that while these undertakings have been freely given, ships and men have been quietly massod in Far Eastern waters, stores have beer accumulated, and every preparation made to hold what she has obtained.

Russia has already unostentatiously assured her military position by drafting something over 100,000 troops into Manchuria, but she clearly realizes that her future in the Far East depends less upon her soldiers than upon her ships and sailors. In the latter respect she is not ready. It was reported repeatedly in cablegrams, mostly coming through Shanghai, that Russia had "ninety warships" massed at or near Port Arthur. Though Russia has made the most of resources, this is a gross exaggeration. She has accumulated a large number of nonfighting ships in the Far East because she realizes that the Asiatic judges the menace of naval power less by guns and armor than by the number of funnels and the general impression conveyed by an array of ships of all types. Wise in her knowledge of the eastern mind, Russia has borrowed merchant ships and acquired many of the volunteer fleet to swell the fleet in Far Eastern waters, and she has succeeded not only in impressing the Asiatic. but, what she can hardly have hoped for, the European as well.

> Toronto Star; A most deligh.fur time was spent by the members of Victoria County Association in the Assembly Hall, Odfellows' building, Friday evening The president, Mr. W. A. Sherwood, occupied the chair. The routine of business was quickly passed and the program opened with a bright selection on the piano by Miss Callaghan. Then followed a wonderful performance of magic art and legerdemain. Mr. G. A. Weese, an eastwhile star in the professional field of vaudeville, contributed this pleasing feature of the program. Mr. Weese has retained his cleverness and his hand has the definess that gave to each act a character and distinguished finesse.

The specches of the evening were contributed by Mr. S. J. Fox, M.P.P, Judge McIntyre, of Whichy, and Mr. R. J. McLaughlin, of Lindsay. Mr. Fox referred to the origin of the county in the year 1858. Women's Tailor-made Suits, Skirts and Rain Coats

First Showing of Spring's Smartest Styles.

We'll have some cold days of course, but spring is peeping over the hedge, and Easter comes early. Everybody will be up to the eyes in the work of preparation very soon, or else be too late. So naturally women's thoughts have turned to the new things for spring. What will it be? Are the styles different? Where shall I get the best styles the cream of the new. At Wakely & Ford's. Wakely & Ford's styles are authoritave, and have best pleased the critical women of th's community, else why should we get the largest share of the business of this community?

The new styles are unfolding - fashion's book is full of interest. Although the full exhibit is not ready, there are enough here to make an interesting showing

We have exclusive control for Lindsay of the famous Novi Moda Garments for women. These garments are particularly high class and full of style. Exclusiveness and individuality is the key note—there's no dead level of uniformity. They are made to sell in their own Novi Moda stores in Toronto, Ottawa, Montreal and other large Canadian cities where styles must be ahead and prices below all competitors.

These are important advantages you have in selecting your new spring outfit here. Here are pen sketches of some of the new Suits, Skirts, Waists and Rain Coats.
