Two Ferces Closing. St. Petersburg, March 23.-The following despatch has been received from Viceroy Alexieff, dated Mukden. March 22:

"General Mistchenkow reports that on March 17 our scouts approached Anju and observed on the left bank of the Chengcheng River, opposite Anju, entrenchments made by the enemy. Up to that date the enemy had not appeared at Longoven (15 miles northeast of Anju).

'It is supposed that there is one Japanese division at Anju, and that the remainder of the First Army Corps is at Pingyang.

"In consequence of the report that two squadrons of the enemy had arrived at Pakchon (15 miles northwest of Anju), two hundred of our cavalry were despatched for the purpose of preventing the enemy from crossing the Pakchon River. Our cavalry found three Japanese squadrons'on the left bank of the river, but they withdrew towards Anju, on the arrival of our detachment without fighting.

The Japanese squadrons number 19 each.

"On the night of March 19 two despatch riders encountered a Japanese patrol between Kazan (about 50 miles north by west of Pingyang and Chenchu, about 12 miles of Kazan). The patrol opened fire, but our despatch riders escaped unhurt. "According to a report three thousand of the enemy's cavalry occupied Yongpyon, March 19, and ma-

On the first of July last at Huntingdon, Kilgour, the victim of the murder, was met by his companion, Toussaint Ouimei, and another man named Laberge. All three were indulging freely in liquor, when they met McCaig, and he and Kilgour stopped. Kilgour took off his coat and started to fight McCaig, striking him a heavy blow over the left eye, upon which McCaig drew a revolver and fired, the shot hitting Kilgour's watch and glancing off. He staggered back and McCaig fired, again, causing the fatal wound. He was carried to the side of the road and left in the care of Miss Lillie Caldwell, a trained nurse, who had witnessed the shooting from the house where she was visiting. Mc-Caig immediately made his escape, but was found at Trout River in a room in the Dolan Hotel, which is situated on the boundary between Canada and the United States. He was brought by force from the American to the Canadian side, where the warrant was served on him, They took him back to Huntingdon, thence to Valleysield, to await his trial on a charge of murder.
