Commission's Decision Favors the British Cententions.

BRITISH PRESS IS PLEASED

Admiral Rojectvensky Was Not Justified in Firing Upon the British Fishermon-Fishing Fleet Had Committed No. Mostile Act, and There Was No Torpodo Beats Among Them -Bussian Admiral Lot Down Easy, However,

Paris, Feb. 27.-The decision of th International Commission of Enquiry into the North Sea incident was publicly announced at the closing session of the Commission Saturday afternoon The decision set forth at considerable length the circumstances and incidents, and gives the opinion of the Admirals on the various important points in-

The decision says the delay of the Russian transport Kamschatka following the breakdown of her machin ery was perhaps the cause of the incident. The commander of the Kamschatka signalled to Admiral Rojestvensky during the evening that he had been attacked by torpedo.

No Justification. The Admiral therefore had reason to believe he might be attacked and gave orders for strict vigilance against the possible approach of torpedo boats. The majority of the Commission considers | the squadron. This undoubtedly inthat Admiral Rojestvensky's orders spired an anxious, suspicious state of were not excessive in time of war, under the circumstances, and he had every reason to consider the situation very alarming.

"The Commissioners," the decision says, "recognize unanimously that the fishing fleet committed no hostile act. and the majority of the Commissioners are of the opinion that as there were not either among the fishing boats or in their vicinity any torpedo boats, the opening of fire by Admiral Rojestvensky was not justified."

The Russian Dissident. The decision further says the Russian Commissioner did not share in the

"In any event," the decision continues, "the Commissioners are glad to recognize unanimously that Admiral Rojestvensky personally did all he could from the commencement to the end to prevent the trawlers being the object of fire by the Rusisan squad-

Concerning the squadron's proceeding without assisting the damaged trawlers, the decision says;

"The Commissioners are unanimous that under the circumstances preceding and following the incident that there was such uncertainty concerning the danger to the squadron as to warrant Admiral Rojestvensky in continuing his route. However, the majority regrets that the Admiral did not inform the neighboring maritime powers of what had occurred."

Whitewash for Rejestvensky. The decision concludes as follows: "The Commissioners declare that their views as formulated are not of a nature to cast any disrespect upon the military valor nor upon the sentiments of humanity of Admiral Rojestvensky and the personnel of his squadron." The closing session of the Commission presented a brilliant scene. The Cambray, made our town a business spacious salon of the Foreign Office was crowded with prominent officials, -Mr D. A Compromise. Admiral Fournier (France), the Prespectators following minutely. The general impression among the audience was that the decision was in the nature of a compromise. Admiral Fournier closed the Commission with a speech of thanks to its members. events ever brought before an international court. All should feel gratified with the satisfactory results attained." Admiral Davis (United States) said concerning the decision: The conclusions seem to me to be equitable. They are formulated in a manner to satisfy the legitimate desire of the two parties, and mark an important step in the pation sales in this district. The session lasted half an hour.

Some Features. Other interesting features of the decision are as follows: "Admiral Rojestvensky, after leaving Reval, took the greatest precautions to prepare his vessels to repulse a torpedo attack during the night, whether sailing or at anchor. The reports of Russian agents regarding possible torpedo boat attacks seem to justify these. "The direction the Russian squadron followed was calculated to bring the last two divisions, as events proved, in proximity of the customary fishing about 30, and spreading over several miles. The evidence of the British witnesses proved that the trawlers carried regulation lights, followed the usual fishing rules, and were directed by their P. Dawley, counsel for Mrs. Cassie L. commodore by means of conventional miral Rojestvensky's division, the last, noticed green flares, really a fishing signal, which created alarm, and then observed a vessel topping the waves. Admiral Rojestvensky ordered his ships to open fire, on the result of which rests his responsibility."

Paris, Feb. 28.—According to Admiral Davis' view. Russa can take a fair measure of satisfaction from the finding, for although it holds that an error was committed, it was one which was not discreditable to the Rusisan navy. The fact must be considered that the Rusisan squadron was making a voyage of thousands of miles upon a war mission, and reports indicated that the Japanese might make attempts against mind upon the Rusisan ships. However, nothing in all the testimony reflected in the slightest on the discipline or efficiency of the Rusisan navy .

President Innis stated emphatically that there was no prospect of the company acceding to the request of the growers for a raise of 5 cents a bushel on tomatoes. The growers in turn told

Mr. Innis that there was absolutely no likelihood of them giving in, and if the company was satisfied to have no tomatoes this year they were quite agreeable not to grow any.
