

POULTRY RAISERS' CORNER

Devoted to the interests of those whose aim is the raising and production of first-class poultry and eggs.

Mrs. Jones' Turkey Talk.

Once I got a large order for turkeys after my turkeys had laid their first litter, and of course the season's work was just about ruined for the party. All turkeys are timid by nature; they should have time to become accustomed to their new home, before the breeding season commences. If one can, I think it is best to mate yearling hens with young toms, and pullets with yearling toms, but this is not possible at all times, as a surplus of yearling toms cannot be found, especially this year. I wrote to several prominent breeders last spring and they stated that they did not know where a young tom could be secured for love or money. One year, ago, I had a lot of fine toms that I did not sell and decided to keep them over. I sold some late, where parties had not taken their own living, and they were late fall came the turkey breeders nearly tumbled over each other to get those yearlings. A sharp business farmer who always told me what he thought, said he thought I was very much lacking in business ability to keep those toms over, but I doubled my money on them and they paid their way, eating bugs and grasshoppers, and although he has beaten me a long way as a financier, I think I made a good thing furnishing such a lot of yearling toms.

Young turkeys do well mated up in the breeding yard, and then you have the advantage that you keep toms two years and the hens several years. Line-breeding is what establishes a strain, but line-breeding is not inbreeding, as you get new blood from another branch of the same strain in another family. This is the way a flock is made to score high, not just one individual, but the whole flock with only one or two points of difference and only lacking a few points of perfection. For instance, the barring on wing and tail will not vary more than two or three degrees. When turkeys, or any kind of fowl, are mated up promiscuously, there will be almost as much diversity in markings as there would be in mixing thoroughbreds and scrubs.

NO IRISH NEED APPLY.

Shame on the lips that utter it,
Shame on the hand that writes,
Shame on the pages that publish
Such slander to the light
I feel my blood with lightning speed
Through all my veins fast fly,
At that old taunt forever new,
No Irish need apply,

Are not our hands as stout and strong,
Our hearts as warm and true,
As theirs who fling this mock at us
To cheat us of our due?
While 'neath our feet God's earth stands firm,
And 'bove us hangs His sky
Where there is honor to be won
The Irish need apply.

Oh, have not glorious things been done
By Irish hearts and hands?
Are not her deeds emblazoned
Over many seas and lands?
There may be tears - on Ireland's cheek,
But still her heart beats high,
And where there's valor to be shown -
The Irish need apply.

Wherever noble thoughts are nursed
And noble words are said,
Wherever patient faith endures,
Wherever itself seems dead -
Wherever wit and genius reign
And hopes tower high
Wherever manly toil prevails
The Irish will apply.

Wherever woman's love is pure
And soft, unselfish snow,
Wherever woman's cheek at tales
Of injury will glow -
Wherever pitying tears are shed
And breathed in feeling's sigh
Wherever kindness is sought -
The Irish need apply.

If there be aught of tenderness,
If there is aught of worth,
If there's a trace of heaven left
Upon our sinful earth;
If there are noble thoughts a-bear't
That uncomplaining die,
To tread like them life's thorny road -
The Irish will apply.

Till on Killarney's water blue
The soft stars cease to shine,
Till round the parent oak no more
The ivy loves to twine,
Till Nephin topples from his place
And Shannon's stream runs dry -
For all that's great and good and pure
The Irish will apply.

FIVE BOYS ESCAPE.

Mimico Industrial School Leaving Its Enforced Pupils—One of Them Assisted by His Mother.

Toronto, March 27.—Five boys escaped from the Mimico Industrial School within 24 hours from midnight Sunday. Of these two have been captured. The pair, who escaped in their nightgowns, are still at liberty.

The most sensational escape occurred yesterday afternoon, when five of the staff, George Cameron is only 14 years old.

Late yesterday Mrs. Ferguson, his mother, living at 63 Beatty avenue, Parkdale, called at the school and requested permission to see her son. She turned up in a buggy, and to all appearances looked the lady from the top of her expensive hat to the sole of her patent leather shoe. Mr. Ferrier granted the request readily.

After interviewing the son, the mother prepared to go away from the institution, and the son, convicted of housebreaking on Wilson avenue, returned to the ranks of the prisoners flung into the supper-room. Suddenly he broke away upon seeing his mother opening the front door of the institution. She hurried after him and followed him into a buggy, covering his head with a driving rug until beyond danger from pistol shot.

Before the startled officials could recover their wits she was down the roadway, driving the horse furiously, and her son with her. Her house, on Beatty avenue, was searched last night but without finding trace of either mother or son.

Failure of the Enterprise National Bank Gives Cause.

Pittsburg, Pa., March 27.—Five arrests were made yesterday as a result of the failure of the Enterprise National Bank of Allegheny last October, following the sensational suicide of its cashier, T. Lee Clark.

The charge against Menzemer is that he certified cheques drawn by persons who had not sufficient funds on deposit. Nichols is charged with conspiring with an officer to abstract and apply unlawfully funds of the bank. Ralston and McMillan are charged with making false entries to defraud the bank, while Cook is charged with conspiring to defraud by getting false credits.

"A TRUST" IS STANDARD OIL.

State of Missouri is Now in Position to Impose Full Penalties Under the Law.

New York, March 26.—Cornered by the decision of the court, Henry H. Rogers, the executive head of the gigantic Standard Oil Co., which Attorney-General Hadley of Missouri stigmatizes as the meanest combination on earth, inasmuch as it thrives on the necessities of the poor, Saturday admitted that the corporation was a trust within the meaning of the law.

That admission was made before Commissioner Sanborn, appointed by the State of Missouri to take testimony. Mr. Rogers' admission was in a long and carefully worded answer, prepared by the lawyers for the respondents. It means that Mr. Hadley can now return to his home state with evidence on which the courts must find the trust concerned guilty as charged and inflict the penalty which is either confiscation of the state, or a heavy fine to be repeated every time the offence is committed.

It was the first time in all the long years of litigation that the powerful aggregation has ever been forced to admit that it was a combination in violation of anti-trust laws.

FATHER GAPON'S OPEN LETTER.

Replies to Sundry Allegations of Personal Misconduct.

St. Petersburg, March 27.—Father Gapon in an open letter yesterday replies to the attacks on his public and private life, announces that he has instructed his lawyer to bring an action for defamation of character against his detractors, and denies the charge of betraying and abandoning a girl while he was a prison chaplain. Gapon explains that, refusing to follow the rule of the orthodox church prohibiting the marriage of priests he took as his wife a girl whom he loved and that she is still living with him.

Gapon declares that of the $15,000 which Premier Witte gave for the restoration of the Gapon labor organization, he received only $8,500, all of which was used to help the workmen. The remainder was stolen by Mathus-hensky, the press agent. Regarding the charge of gambling at Monte Carlo with "mysterious money," Gapon says: "During the bloody uprising at Moscow I received money for literary work and while abroad, out of simple curiosity, I played for small stakes."

When he returned to St. Petersburg Gapon admits that he communicated with Count Witte, who gave him permission to live here, considering that his work was "constructive and not destructive."

The letter made a good impression, but Gapon's sincerity is sneeringly attacked by the Russ, which calls Gapon a friend of General Fulon (former chief of police of St. Petersburg), and a pensioner of Count Witte.

It seemed that Perry got his work in New York and $2 more in this city.
