LINDSAY, FRIDAY, APRIL 25, '02.

HON. C. W. ROSS IN LINDSAY.

We are pleased to be able to announce that the Hon. Mr. Ross will address the electors of this town and section in the Academy of Music on Thursday evening next, the first of May. He may be accompanied by one of his colleagues—probably by Hon. Mr. Letchford.

Mr. Ross is no stranger in Lindsay, though this will be his first public appearance here at a political meeting as Premier of Ontario. The occasion will be one of great interest to electors of all classes and of all shades of opinion. The best way to get a seat will be to go early—and then vote early—for Ross.

Though Mr. Ross is admittedly one of the best public speakers of the day, he will have to deal with an audience upon too many subjects to be at his best as an orator merely. He will have to speak as a legislator, as an administrator, and as a progressive statesman. As Treasurer of the Province he will have to deal with some financial questions.

The Ontario Government has such a fine and successful record that Mr. Ross is not on the defensive. "We are," he says, "where you have placed us for the last twenty or thirty years. You have given us your support and confidence, and we have tried to deserve it. We have deserved it, or you would not have returned us again and again. The Opposition have no good reason to complain. You have returned them to opposition for the past thirty years, and you will do it again and again, no doubt."

With reference to the present political situation in Ontario Mr. Ross can say, with a great English statesman and orator, "the flowing tide is with us," and "the ebbing tide is with them"—the Opposition, for Mr. Ross, in the opinion of careful judges, stands to add considerably to his parliamentary majority, and the Opposition stand to lose.

Mr. Ross represents Progress and Prosperity. His watchword is to Build Up New Ontario and to give new life to Old Ontario. Mr. Ross will perhaps be on the defensive on one point. As we stated in a previous issue, he will have to defend and explain the tax on the "big corporations," which Mr. Whitney so vigorously condemned and so solemnly promised to sweep away. We fear the rich artisans of Lindsay, and the wealthy farmers of Ops and Emily, rolling in the lap of ease and luxury, have a deep and tender sympathy for the dust-begrimed and brow-sweating "big corporations," who, worn down to skin and bone with cutting off interest coupons and pecking away the "unearned increments," will have to contribute the tax imposed on them by the hard-hearted Ross administration. Like Daniel Webster or Moses, Mr. Whitney, when at Lindsay, smote the rock of popular sympathy with his good forefinger of scorn and copious streams of crocodile tears gushed forth: "We trust, therefore, Mr. Ross will have a clear and satisfactory explanation and defence of this tax, so odious to Mr. Whitney. If he has, would it be judicious to place the destinies of this province in the control of one pledged as Mr. Whitney is to subordinate the best interests of Ontario to those of the big corporations and to lighten the taxes on very rich men who enjoy enormous advantages in the often wholly unearned increment."

Those who are interested in this particular question should not fail to attend the Liberal meeting on Thursday evening, May 1st.

BUILD UP ONTARIO.

Hon. C. W. Ross, Premier of Ontario, and Mr. Newton Smaile, the Liberal candidate, will address a mass meeting in the Academy of Music, Lindsay, Thursday Evening, May 1st.

HONESTY, EFFICIENCY, PROGRESS.

In the din of political battle which will soon be raging there will be a good many secondary issues exploited to draw away the attention of the electors from the real, vital, fundamental factors which go to make up good government. No country or province in the world can point to a clearer, as faithful and as able a government for such a long period as the Liberal party has given Ontario the last thirty years. That, after all, is the Liberal party's claim for the renewal of the people's confidence; that, after all, is the vitally important consideration in this election.

First, the government has been honest. There has never been the slightest shadow of proof that any Minister profited financially in his discharge with the provincial affairs entrusted to him. There has never been any proof that in the sixty millions that has been expended, taking the past eighteen years only, one dollar of it has been expended for a corrupt purpose. In that sixty millions the Opposition has only divided the House on half a million, principally for new offices, or three quarters of a cent, at the dollar. The commission of inspectors appointed when Mr. Ross assumed office reported that the methods of bookkeeping were excellent, and exhibit the provincial transactions in as full details as those of an ordinary financial institution. The province has a surplus of two and a half millions, its rate of expenditure per head of population compares favorably with that of other provinces, and its financial position is the best in the Dominion. Compare the record of the Liberal Government with that of the Conservatives at Ottawa, who astounded the whole world by the corrupt revelations in 1891. Only one November the London News (that) felt called upon to protest against the squalid statements of the Mail-Emire and Mr. Whitney in comparing the Ross Government to Tammany, and a strict, honest examination and a strict, honest comparison and you will find that the administration of the best state in the world is corrupt and vile compared with the administration in Ontario. In all further, that in all other states, cities or provinces where public affairs are as clean as in our province. Is it a light thing that such a testimonial can be given Ontario's administration after thirty years' service?

Second, the government has been efficient. It is the complaint of both Progressives in the old country and the public departments here that the state of inefficiency in the Ontario Government is a disgrace. We do not need to go to the Ontario Agricultural Experiment Station for an example of the efficiency which characterizes the Agriculture and Public Works departments. The body of legislation which the province has drawn forth from the province by Sir John A. Macdonald and his successors has drawn forth from other countries; our educational and other systems and methods are made the basis of similar institutions in the newer provinces. The affairs of the province have been conducted in their several callings, and the business of the government has been conducted with ability and strength. Is it a light thing that efficiency has characterized Ontario's administration the past thirty years?

Third, the Government is progressive. A government that may possibly occupy the dangers of corruption and inefficiency incident to a long and non-progressive. That cannot be said of the Ontario Government. "Build up Ontario," the policy of the Government, has been shown to be something more than a mere catchword. Since Mr. Ross outlined his policy at Whyby in 1895, the Government have bent their energies to the development of the province along the lines indicated. The Government has been in advance of the people in some respects, but the good roads, sugar beet, cold storage, and their like legislation is beginning to bear fruit. The provisions governing railway subsidies, public contracts, pulp agreements, etc., have been recast in the interests of Canadian labor and Canadian material, and railway agreements have provisions for public control and re-buying. The Liberal Government has been the first among provincial governments to plan a government railway. It has opened the way, in the prohibition of rent-dum, for the voice of the people being taken on important social issues. Is it a light thing that the Government has shown itself responsive to the growth of the principle of public control, and ready to encourage development in Old as well as New Ontario?

Honesty, efficiency, progressiveness—these are the fundamentals of good government. Is the Liberal Government entitled to a renewal of your confidence on these essentials? We do not claim that the Liberal Government and its administrations have been perfect, nor that there is no room for differences of opinion as to some of their measures and details of their policy. We do not say either that the province would go to the dogs were Mr. Whitney returned to power; no party has a divine right to rule, nor does any party have a monopoly of the brains and patriotism of the country. But the Conservative record in Ontario has been a series of gray blunders—in provincial rights, Separate School legislation, on New Ontario development, on the O. A. College for instance, on the Conservative party in Ontario has not yet put forth the man and measures that afford the moderate people of Ontario warrant for expecting a clean, consistent, efficient policy at their hands. Mr. Whitney is not acceptable within his own ranks, though they have now closed up for the fight, while Mr. Ross carries the fullest confidence of his party.

Honesty, efficiency, progressiveness—these are the vital things in good government, no matter what side issues are dinned into your ears. And the Liberal party may well feel proud of the grand services the Liberal leaders and organization have given the people of Ontario the past thirty years in these respects, and may, with all confidence and justice, ask a renewal of the support of the great, determining, moderate force which rules elections.
