MISS ETTA MELVILLE ROBBED.

Knocked Down, Struck and Robbed on Aylmer-st., Peterboro.

Some time ago The Post re-published from the columns of the Peterboro Examiner an item stating that Miss Etta Melville, a former resident of Lindsay, had been knocked down and robbed while walking home one evening, and that a young man named Jesse Airries had been arrested on suspicion of being her assailant. Our readers will no doubt be interested in the following report of the trial, also taken from Tuesday's Examiner:

The Police Court was again crowded to overflowing this morning when Jesse Airries appeared before Magistrate Dumble on a second charge, that of assaulting and robbing Miss Melville on Tuesday evening, March 8th. The prisoner pleaded not guilty to the charge. Four witnesses were called and their evidence was such a nature as to result in Airries being committed for trial at the next sitting of the Court of competent Jurisdiction.

Miss Melville was the first witness. She stated that on the evening of the assault she left her home about 8.15 o'clock and went northwards on Aylmer-st. When nearing the crossing at Edinburg-st. she heard footsteps behind her and without the least warning, she was seized, her hands held to her sides and she was thrown to the ground, face downwards. Her assailant upon seizing her said, "Not a word out of you

COLOND SAM "CRAWFISHED" BREEZY LOCAL BREVITIES

HE NO LONGER INSISTS ON A CANADIAN FOR C. O. C.

His Remarkable Change of Base Astonished the House.

Some of the officers of our local Militia companies have an interesting subject for conversation these days in the remarkable stand taken by their former commander, Col. Sam Hughes, in connection with the eligibility of Canadian officers for the high position of Commander of the Canadian Forces, or G.O.C. There was a time when his sturdy championship of the claims of Canadian officers, and his denunciation of the practice of foisting upon us pompous Britishers who understood not the peculiarities of the Canadian volunteer, won for him great renown, but he was insincere, apparently, in all he said and wrote upon the subject. Since being admitted to the good graces of Lord Minto and General Dundonald he realizes how wrong it was of him to speak disparagingly of those occupying the seats of the mighty, and when Sir Frederick Borden, Minister of Militia, last week introduced to give Canadian officers a chance, Col. Sam did not manifest a tinge of his old enthusiasm and in fact offered opposition which must have been very grateful to General Dundonald.

The Ottawa representative of the Toronto Star referred to the incident as follows: "Forgotten were all the conspiracies to thwart his fame and his valor; forgotten all those machinations to prevent him striking shrewd blows for the Empire—forgetting, yes, and forgiven, and an active contention supplants the old grudge; that was so well advertised. The horror breach has been bridged. Colonel Sam and the victors are friends again, and the cause of empire breathes again. The first fruits of this reconciliation really comprise what may be called Col. Sam's second volte-face. It is still within the memory of man that Colonel Sam had Major-General Hutton, and had few good words in any event to say about British officers commanding in Canada. Last week Sir Fredk. Borden introduced perhaps the most Canadian measure that has been seen for a long while in the Green Chamber—the Militia bill to wit, which makes a militia of this country, and removes the restriction which tied us to British colonels of the regular army. This was obviously Colonel Sam's chance to exult and say, "I told you so," and scarily British military superciliousness generally. But a thoughtful pontance does away with resentment, just as perfect faith casteth out fear.

Much to the surprise of the House, Colonel Sam bogged at the provision which struck everybody else as the most satisfactory—the eligibility of Canadian officers for the highest positions in their own little army. He admitted that British G.O.C.s had been blunders or incompetents, that they had gone contrary to national impulses, that they had scorned native worth, that they had put in a bad word for the Canadian and Minister of Militia, that they had sought to hamper brave men who were only eager to do their duty according to their lights—that, in brief, they had sinned and fallen short in many things, BUT that the system was on the whole beneficial, able and the result better than that of the British major-general as complete as Mr. Gilbert's as complete as Penzance." There was none so stupid or overbearing that he might not be described so.

It is all things animal, vegetable and mineral. He was the very model of a model major-general.

Colonel Sam went on to say that a British G.O.C. who knew his business, however, imperfectly, was much to be preferred to a harsh and superficial Canadian who might owe his job to a political pull. It was only when he was assured by the minister that the clause did not exclude British officers, and that, as a matter of fact, the custom of employing a British G.O.C. was not necessarily abolished, that Colonel Sam took his seat.

It was also noted that Colonel Sam's confidence in the great stories of a military general to be found in Canada had quite vanished. Of course modestly, he forbade him to mention the name of the honorable and gallant member from North Victoria, but of all the budding generals with whom he credited Canada not more than one year ago, he could remember only one, a Canadian, and that, but long ago, and now an officer in the nine and ten o'clock and he was not surprised if he were arrested for it. No defence was made and the prisoner was committed for trial.

The best wishes of a large circle of friends and acquaintances accompany them to their new home.

House Rents.

In the spring the gentle landlord is not feeling very strong; hardly ten hours' heavy lifting could be worked at right along. Though his labors may be many, yet he always has the muscle in the spring to raise the rent.

Stock Notes.

—Mr. J. J. McKinnon, lot 9, con. 8 Eldon, has manifested commendable enterprise in purchasing the fine Shorthorn site, "King William," registered No. 50589 in the Dominion Short Horn Herd Book. The farmers of the neighborhood will no doubt show appreciation of his effort to improve the stock of the township.

A GOOD DRESSER

A Good Dresser wants "life" in his clothes. Lots of men wear "dead" clothes and don't know it. The life of a Suit is that dash in the cut, curves and kinks of its make-up that at once stamps its wearer as a well-dressed man.

Our Suits are Full of Life.

We charge no more for our "Suit excellence" than other clothiers charge for "ordinary-made clothes." Our Spring Suits are now ready, and we trust you won't mind if we nudge you gently and say to you that it's high time you were thinking about yours.

We shall be pleased to assist you in making your selection and we shall be looking for you every day now.

Dependable Suits $5 to $19.

Our Spring Toppers and Rain Coats appeal strongly to the man who discriminates.

Spring Toppers $5 to $16 Raincoats $8 to $4

Everything in Toggery to go with the Suit.

OBITUARY.

Harry Daniel Lack, Winnepeg.

Relative in town on Monday received the sad news that Harry Daniel Lack, eldest son of Mr. Herbert Lack, and grandson of Mr. Daniel Lack, of the south ward, had died in Winnipeg on Saturday 26th, of typhoid fever.

Deceased attended the Cambridge-st. Methodist church and Sunday School for 17 or 18 years before leaving for the West, and was popular with a large circle of friends who will learn of his demise with deep regret and will tender their sympathy to the bereaved relatives.

SOME OTHER DAY.

There are wonderful things we are going to do
Some other day;
And harbors we hope to drift into
Some other day;
With folded hands, the oars that trail,
We watch and wait for the favoring gale
To fill the folds of an idle sail,
Some other day,
We know we must toil if ever we win,
Some other day;
But we say to ourselves, there's time to begin
Some other day;
And so, deferring, we loiter on,
Until at last we find withdrawn
The strength of the hope we leaned upon,
Some other day.

Our Young People.

Canadian young men and women who desire to reap the greatest possible benefit from the unprecedented prosperity now prevailing in this country, should not neglect that particularly helpful training offered by our own Canadian business colleges; and in this connection, we know of no better institutions than the Federal Colleges under the direction of Principal G. S. Houston. The Lindsay branch is just completing another prosperous term. The Spring term opens April 1st.—wld.

A World's Record.

At the games of the University of Ann Arbor, Mich., on Saturday last Ralph Rose broke the world's record for the 12-lb. shot, by sending the ball 56 feet 3.1-2 inches. This breaks the former world's record of G. E. Gray by 1 foot 1.1-2 inches. Rose is only 21 years of age.
