May Trace Port Credit Murderer By This Means.

NEW EVIDENCE TO-MORROW

Smells Bloodstained Shirt and Starts Off on Trail—Follows It Along Track and Down a Gully—Then Leaps a Stream—Police Were Dilatory—Fresh Story of Strange Italian.

Port Credit, April 2.—A pedigree bloodhound was yesterday put on the scent at the scene of the murder of Edward Elliott, after four days of fruitless inactivity on the part of the crown.

With a man's life to be legally saved, red tape and financial considerations are holding back those who might act.

The tracker, "Bob," the property of Joseph Ernest, Toronto, was sent in leash from the dog's kennel beside the railroad track, two miles west of Port Credit, where early Good Friday morning Elliott's body was discovered.

Despite the fact that the county constable and the dog's owner put him again on the trail, he did not pick up no other time. "If that dog had been here two days ago, we would have gone far to solve this case," said the constable.

The chief "evidence" so far—the bloodstained clothes of Elliott, lay yesterday on the plain ground, covered with a wooden soapbox. Any wide-awake murderer would abstract them at night. A heavy storm would probably soak all the blood out of them.

On Monday an attempt was made to give the vessel storage way in a ditch of open water, but the sails were blown away and the craft again became helpless. The gale dashed the broken propeller and shaft against the hull and forced open the stern, through which the water made its way to the hold.

On Tuesday more ice was encountered, and it was decided to abandon the Greenland and go on the ice floes. The boats which had escaped damage were provisioned and the vessel was about to leave the vessel when the steamer Newfoundland was sighted.

The Newfoundland bore down upon the sinking steamer and took off the men. The Greenland foundered shortly after the rescue.

HOSPITALS CROWDED

MAJORITY OF PATIENTS WOMEN

MUCH DAMAGE IS FEARED

It is a sad but true fact that every year brings an increase in the number of operations performed upon women in our hospitals.

Every one of these patients had plenty of warning in that bearing down feeling, pain at the left or right of the abdomen, nervous exhaustion, pain in the small of the back, pelvic catarrh, dizziness, flatulence, displacements or irregularities.

Just as surely as Mrs. Glenn was cured of the troubles enumerated in her letter, so will Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound cure other women who suffer from female troubles, inflammation, kidney troubles, nervous excitability and nervous prostration.
