ODD-FELLOWS AT CHURCH.

THE 37TH ANNIVERSARY OF THE ORDER IN AMERICA

Fittingly Marked by Attending Service at St. Andrew's.

Sunday the brethren of Lindsay Lodge No. 100, I.O.O.F., celebrated the 37th anniversary of the institution of Oddfellowship in America by attending divine service at the Presbyterian church, being joined by a number of fellow craftsmen from Manila and Little Britain lodges. In all 130 Oddfellows were in line in the parade, and they filled the centre seats in the church, which had been reserved for them.

Rev. J. W. Wallace, chosen as his text the words found in 1st Samuel, 30th chap., 17th verse, "For he loved him as he loved his own soul." In opening he extended a hearty welcome to the members of the order, and assured that whether as individuals or as members of the Society they would always be welcome. Although their order might now be termed an old one it was showing no signs of decrepitude because young men were constantly joining and also because in the main the members were trying to live up to the principles of the order and practice brotherly love, in accordance with the command of Christ. So he would dwell on the meaning of true friendship—the basis of all fraternal orders and society at large. We can find no more admirable example of friendship in the old or new testaments, or in ancient or modern times, than the case of David and Jonathan. In classic history we have the story of Damon and Pythias, whose perfect friendship and trust excited the envy of the Greek tyrant Dionysius, and in later times we have many seasons, notably the friendship that existed between Tennyson, the poet, and Arthur Hallam. But the story of David and Jonathan typifies all that is admirable in friendship. Some old writers defined religion as friendship with God—they held that it had its consummation with man, and that it was a meritorious act, to withdraw from the world and live only in contemplation of God, but it is a fact that if we neglect our duty to our fellow men we invariably fall away from God. Our duty is summed up in two commandments—Love thine neighbor as thyself and Love the Lord thy God with thy whole heart, thy whole soul and thy whole mind, and "Love thy neighbor as thyself."

Emerson says that it is only in connection with society that man develops himself—it is man's attitude towards his fellow man that determines his usefulness. It is not the number of talents we possess, but the fact that we put our own talent out to usury. What does Christ say, "Inasmuch as ye have done it unto the least of these, my brethren, ye have done it unto me." Abraham, when he awakened and saw the angel writing in the Book of Life, asked that it be written of him that "he loved his fellow man," and lo! it transpired later that his name stood first. Abraham was "the friend of God." Wherever there is true friendship there is something of God—truth and tenderness, purity and joy, and usefulness. We speak and think and do not seem to be masked—we may tell all our troubles without fear of faithlessness. It is said society shows only its back—how restraining, then, in this age of hypocrisy and sham, to meet a true friend. David and Jonathan kept nothing back from each other—where there is true friendship there will always be candor—there is no need of subtlety and deceit. How glad we stand in need of this spirit in these days of sham, when even the goods we buy have to bear a mark to assure the buyer against adulteration.

The other quality of true friendship is tenderness. Dr. Estbrook says the kind man is not he who says what he feels like saying, but who says what he thinks his friends need. This does not mean that we are to be cringing in our manner—it is necessary at times to do some plain speaking. Emerson says we have a far to go as the nettle to our friend's back than to his face.

True friendship must have its roots embedded in character—you and I cannot be true friends to others unless we esteem that which is right—our "brother." We need the principles that make for righteousness—we need it in the labor world to solve the problems always confronting the tailors and employers; we need it in our everyday life to teach us to regard those about us as our friends, rather than enemies. There is nothing will so lighten a burden or make easy a task as the knowledge that we are serving a friend. Jacob wrought seven years for Rachel and they were as few days because of his deep seated friendship—his love for her. What induced Jonathan, the son of a King, to step aside and give the throne to a mere shepherd boy? Friendship.

"What do you need?" inquired a charitable visitor of a poor old woman discovered in dire want. "People," was the answer—"I am lonely." We need association with others—friendship where God is not—we need that friend who will assist our better nature. "I call ye not my friends," said Jesus, "but he that doeth the will of my Father who is in heaven, he shall be called my friend." There is no greater test of friendship than this, that a man shall lay down his life for a friend. Let us not forget that Christ laid down His life for us to become, as Abraham was, "the friend of God."

In closing the speaker referred to the great work carried on by the I.O.O.F. order for the uplift of members and the relief of widows and orphans, and reminded them that unless these good works were done with a proper motive—for the greater glory of God—the members were not achieving the best possible results.

FISH POACHER CAUGHT.

The Offender was Fined $10 and Warned as to the Future.

From Evening Post of April 28. On Sunday last Fishery Overseer Bradshaw and his assistant, Overseer Watson, of Casarsca, went on a little expedition down the river that was fraught with unpleasant consequences for one individual, and four or five others engaged literally by a hairbreadth. Paddling with caution to the mouth of McLaughlin's Creek—a well known spawning and breeding ground for muskellunge—they came upon Fisherman M. O'Leary in a canoe, in the bow of which lay two large fish not long out of the water. The presence of other canoeists in the drowned timber was looked upon by the inspectors with suspicion. But there was no evidence of wrongdoing. The fish were confiscated and we understand that a day or two later O'Leary was fined $10 by Inspector Bradshaw and warned that in case of a second offence he would be punished more severely.

REV. DR. SUTHERLAND SPEAKS.

"Our Best Advertisement," says C. P. E. You have perhaps noticed more than once, when passing the local shop windows, a legend to the effect that "A satisfied customer is our best advertisement." As a rule the patrons of a great transportation company like the Canadian Pacific Railway do not express their satisfaction in as many words, but just occasionally a more appreciative traveller voices the opinions of the silent majority, and behold—"our best advertisement."

The following letter from Rev. Dr. Sutherland, the well known Toronto divine, speaks for itself: Vancouver, B.C., March 20. E. J. Coyle, esq., Passenger Dept., C.P.R., Vancouver. My Dear Sir,—Permit me, before embarking for the Orient, to express my high appreciation of the courteous attention extended to me by yourself and other officers of the Company. My room on the "Empress of Japan" is all that could be desired, and will contribute much to the comfort and satisfaction of my trip across the Pacific. It will always afford me pleasure not only to speak in the presence of the completion of the Company's travelling equipment, but to make any practical acknowledgment in my power of the kindness that has been shown me. With best wishes, believe me, Yours faithfully, A. SUTHERLAND.

TAKEN TO THE PENITENTIARY.

Prisoner Walker Began His Two Years Sentence Last Week. Among those who travelled east Friday, April 27, via the 7:20 train to Belleville were Sheriff McLeannan and County Constable John Wilson, who had in their custody George Walker, recently sentenced to two years' imprisonment in Kingston penitentiary. They kept a watchful eye on their charge during the journey, and he was handed over to the prison authorities without the occurrence of any nerve-shaking incident. The Sheriff and his assistant returned to town on the 10 o'clock train last night. It is not out of place to mention here that Mr. John Wilson is probably the senior County Constable on the list by some years, he having been sworn in by the late Sheriff George Kempt in the year 1889.

Ideal Hotel Man Dies.

William Sullivan, of the Lennon hotel, St. St. Catharines, who died suddenly Thursday was an Ideal Hotel-keeper. He would not sell a drink to a man who appeared to be the worse of liquor, refused to allow loafers around his house, whether they had money or not and closed up his bar at 10 o'clock every night, even though the regular hour is 11. He was never known to break the law.

Sea Story, See?

(Harper's Weekly.) A Glasgow steamer was laboring in a heavy sea the waves sometimes sweeping her decks, but the officers had assured the passengers that there was no danger, and all seemed reasonably calm with the exception of the meek appearing little man who every few minutes would approach an officer, and anxiously inquire if he thought the ship would founder.

"No, I tell you," said one of them finally, exclaiming with impatience, "What is the matter with you? Look at these other people—they are not scared to death." "Oh, I'm not scared," the man replied, "but if the ship is going to founder, I wanted to know a little ahead of time." "Oh, wanted to tell your friends goodbye, and all that?" "Well, not exactly," the man said hesitatingly. "The fact is, my mother-in-law is along with me, and the ship was quite sure to sink, I wanted to say a few things to her."

Don't Lose Your Temper.

It doesn't take much to make some people mad. They are what are called quick-tempered people. They are either all nerves, or their liver is not in proper working order, or they are just built that way—never pleased except when they are quarrelling and scolding. Now, you know that nobody scorns or in a factory, or in the home, a man of that kind will sometimes make everybody near him perfectly miserable by his ugly, snarling disposition, and readiness to fly into a passion on the slightest provocation. Not only does he make others miserable, but he makes himself miserable, as well. Of course, a man can't always be sweet tempered. Sometimes it does us good to let off a little steam in this way. But if you should find yourself growing cranky, easily angered, and prone to make a fuss with your neighbor, you had better try to find out what is the matter with yourself. Temper, unless subdued, grows upon a fellow, and before he knows it he becomes a nuisance to himself and everybody around him. Don't be a nuisance.

AT AN HOUR'S INTERVAL.

Two Quakes Monday, But No Alarm—Beginning to Reconstruct the City—Sickness Well Kept Down.

San Francisco, May 1.—Two slight earthquake shocks, at an interval of an hour, were felt here early yesterday. They were of the same nature as a dozen other shocks that have been felt since April 18. No damage was done and there was no alarm.

Yesterday marked the actual beginning of the disentangling of San Francisco from its deplorable condition of commencing the work of reconstruction. Gangs of men with teams were excavating for foundations in numerous vacant lots and in other places the removal of debris of burned buildings was well under way.

Yesterday's work of providing for the destitute and homeless was done under the plan devised by Gen. Greely and a check was put upon the waste, extravagance and deception that had prevailed to some extent in the past. Reports from the refuge camps and hospitals show an astonishingly small percentage of sickness. The water supply is increasing with every day.

KING EDWARD.

Pays Tribute to Matteucci on Site of Ruined Vesuvius Observatory.

Naples, May 1.—King Edward, Queen Alexandra and the Duke and Duchess of Aosta arrived at the observatory yesterday afternoon, where they were met by Prof. Matteucci and Frank Perret.

The King congratulated both the scientists on their work and drew from them a minute account of their experiences in the days they passed as prisoners in the observatory during the recent eruption of Vesuvius, a period in which the seismologists were exposed to momentary danger of a horrible death. The party also examined with keen interest the instruments in the observatory and the records which they had traced while the disturbance was in progress.

Afterward the royal party ascended above the observatory through two feet of volcanic ash, which had scarcely dried since the torrential rains of last week.

The fatigue of the walk was repaid by a view of the smoking volcano, beneath which spread the devastated plains and valleys.

GIRL SEES MAN MURDERED.

Winnipeg Italian Stabbed During Fight With Two Others.

Winnipeg, May 1.—Set upon by several fellow-countrymen as the outcome of a dispute following a drinking bout, Giovanni Romanelli, aged 34, was stabbed shortly after midnight Sunday night, and died a few minutes after being removed to the hospital. Six Italians were arrested. An Italian girl, ten years of age, said, "I saw the fight from the front window. There were three men fighting—two against Romanelli; one of the men was a little man and he fell down. After that Romanelli was stabbed. Then they brought the big knife into our kitchen and wiped off the blood with a red rag that they hid in the backyard. After that they washed the knife and were as frightened as anything!"

Can Remove Warships.

Ottawa, May 1.—A cable has been received by Earl Grey from Lord Elgin, stating that the Canadian Government had removed the two British vessels which are in the Thames River near Chatham, since the War of 1812. The Canadian Government asked the British Government what they wanted to do with these vessels.

King, Czar and Kaiser.

London, April 27.—King Edward, Emperor Nicholas and Emperor William will meet at Darmstadt, capital of the Grand Duchy of Hesse, during the first week in September, according to The Pall Mall Gazette, which adds that the Russian Emperor and Empress will accompany the Kaiser, and will leave Russia at the end of August for a long visit to the Grand Duke of Hesse.

Wedding Bells

In St. James' church, Fenelon Falls, at 7 o'clock on the morning of Saturday, April 21st, was solemnized the marriage of Miss Maudie Neilson, eldest daughter of Mr. J. J. Neilson, to Mr. William A. Bishop, of the Bank of British North America. The bride, who was unattended, was given away by her father, and was crowned in a handsome light gray travelling dress with Persian trimmings. Owing to a recent bereavement in the bride's family, the wedding was of the quietest description, only the immediate relatives being present. The Rev. C. H. Marsh, rector of St. Paul's church, Lindsay, performed the ceremony, and immediately afterward the happy couple drove to the G.T.R. station and boarded the train for Toronto, followed by the good wishes of a host of friends.

Muskoka Lakes New Steamer.

The new steel twin-screw steamer Sagamo, now being built for the Muskoka Lakes Navigation & Hotel Co., which will be of the style known as the day service observation type. It is 152 feet in length, 30 1/2 feet beam and will have a carrying capacity of 800 people. The machinery, is of the most modern type, consisting of two independent triple expansion engines which will guarantee the boat a speed of 16 miles an hour. The engines will take their steam from four Scotch boilers, each having a working pressure of 175 lbs. These boilers will also supply steam for electric light engines, steering gear, steam tables, etc. (The other appointments of the steamer will be first-class in every particular. The Company expect to have her in commission for the summer traffic.

STRANGE JUSTICE.

Chicago Man Embezzled $5,000 and Boy Who Stole 5 Cents, Each Got a Year. Chicago, April 27.—Appolis C. Emmell, fashionably dressed, pleaded guilty to embezzling $5,000 from the Union Foundry Works, of which he was paymaster, and was sentenced by Judge DePuy to one year's imprisonment. Emmell spent the money in riotous living, deserted his wife and family and was captured only after a long search. While Emmell was being sentenced, William Beckman, seventeen years of age, poorly clad and seemingly without friends, stood before Judge Kavanaugh. He had held up Eddie Dettloff, a boy, and taken a nickel away from him. He, too, pleaded guilty. "One year," said the judge. When the youth was told that a man who had stolen 150,000 times as much as he had received the same sentence he cried: "When I got out I'll do something big. I might as well go down hull limit."

Me Let Out a Link.

Casey, while walking past the Lindsay golf links the other evening, was struck by a golf ball. When he recovered, he saw a slight built, gruffly costumed young man running towards him who explained: "Why don't you get out of the way when I abouted 'fore'?" "From the ball?" "Yes, you to get away from Casey." "Well, when I say 'fore' 'tis a soigne that he'll get hit in the nose." "Fore" and he left the man of the plaid stockings sprawling on the ground.
