MERRY WEDDING BELLS.

O'Neill-Fox.
On Tuesday morning, June 18th, at St. Luke's church, Downeyville, a very pretty wedding was solemnized by Rev. Father McGuire, when Polly, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Fox, Downeyville, was united in marriage to Mr. John O'Neill, of King's Wharf. Precisely at eight o'clock the happy couple entered the church to the strains of Lohengrin's wedding march, played by the organist, Miss Mollie O'Brien. The bride looked charming in a beautiful gown of cream silk, eolienne, trimmings of silk lace and chiffon rousings. She wore a white picture hat and carried a prayer book, the gift of the groom. She was attended by her cousin, Miss Rose Fox, who also looked lovely in a dress of white Indian linen with lace and insect-trimmings and white hat. The groom was assisted by his brother, Mr. Herbert O'Neill.
After the ceremony the party drove to the home of the bride's parents, where a sumptuous wedding dinner awaited them. The day was spent in a pleasant manner, after which the happy couple left on the evening train for a short honeymoon to Toronto and other points west. The bride's going-away dress was a grey tweed, with hat to match.
Numerous and costly presents manifested the high esteem in which the bride was held by her many friends. The groom's gift to the bride was a handsome gold pin set

This is practically criminality, throwing such fruit rinds about is such a reprehensible one, it should have an educational penalty exacted against it, whenever detected. A Proper Step.
(Peterboro Review.)
The thanks of the citizens of Peterboro are due to Police Magistrate Dumble for resolving to put an end to young girls and boys strutting about the streets when they should be at home. In most cases it is due to the silly vanity of the girls that they fall victims to the youth who are ever in wait for their prey. Societies for the rescue and aiding of the young are useless unless backed up by a rigid enforcement of the law. A laxity of morals is something that cannot be permitted to exist for a moment. If good advice and timely hints are not appreciated by parents and children, then something else of a more effective nature must be substituted. The meanly-mouthed indolence of the last few years has pretty nearly ruined the country, and it is gratifying to find that it is to be put a stop to. It is not an exaggeration to say that five hundred boys and girls under thirteen have been roaming the streets of this city after dark this spring. Their conduct has been just what we would expect. Their language when spoken to has been uniformly vile.

HOCH DER KAISER.

Reat-Admiral Coughlan, of the United States navy, who has just retired, will be chiefly remembered because he recited "Hoch der Kaiser" at a dinner of the Union League club a couple of years ago, and almost created international complications by doing so. The verses, which were written by the late A. M. R. Gordon, known to many in Western Canada, and once editor of the Medicine Hat Times, appeared originally in the Montreal Herald, and are as follows:
Der Kaiser von das Fatherland
Und Gott and I all things command;
Ve two—ach! Don't you understand?
Meinself—und Gott!
Vile some men sing der bower divine,
Mein soldiers sing "Die Wacht am Rhein."
Eud drink der health in Rhenish wine
Of me—und Gott!
Dere's France, she swaggers all around,
She's saugspiedt—she's no agound;
Too much we think she don't amount.
Meinself—und Gott!
She will not dare to fight again;
But if she should, I'll show her plain
Dot Elias und (in French) Lorraine
Are mein—by Gott!
Dere's grandma dinks she's nicht schmal beer
Midt Boers und such she interfere;
She'll learn none owas dis hemisphere
But me—und Gott!
Ehe dinks, good Frau, from 'slap she's got
Und soldiers midt der scarlet coat:
Ach! We could knock dem, Point!
Like dot.
Meinself—midt Gott!
In dirces of peace beblare for wars,
I bear der helm und spear of Mars,
Und care not for ten thousand Csars
Meinself—midt Gott!
In fact, I humor efrv whim,
Mit aspect dark und visage grim;
Gott pulls mit me and I mit Him,
Meinself—und Gott!

THE MAPLE.

Oh, tenderly deepen the woodman's glooms,
And merrily sway the beeches;
Breathe delicately the willow blooms,
And the pines rehearse new speeches:
The elms toss high, till they brush the sky,
Pale catkins the yellow birch launches.
But the tree I love, all the green-wood above,
Is the maple of sunny branches.
Let who will sing of the hawthorne in spring,
Or the late-leaved linden in summer;
There's a word, may be, for the oldest tree,
That delicate new-comer:
But the maple, it glows with the tint of the rose
When pale are the springtime regions,
And its towers of flame from afar proclaim
The advance of winter's legions.
And a greener shade there never was made
Than its summer canopy afloat;
And many a day, as beneath it I lay,
Has my memory backward drifted
To a pleasant lane I may walk not again.
Leading over a fresh green hill,
(Where a maple stood just clear of the wood—
And oh, to be near it still.
—Charles G. D. Roberts.

RAIN IN SUMMER.

How beautiful is the rain!
After the dust and the heat,
In the broad fiery street,
In the narrow lane,
How beautiful is the rain!
How it clatters along the roofs,
Like the tramp of hoofs!
How it gushes and struggles out
From the throat of the overflowing spout!
Across the window pane
It pours and pours,
And swift and wide
With a muddy tide,
Like a river down the gutter roars
The rain, the welcome rain!
The sick man from his chamber looks
At the twisted brooks;
He can feel the cool
Breath of each little pool;
His fevered brain
Grows calm again,
And he breathes a blessing on the rain!
Near at hand,
From under the sheltering trees,
The farmer sees
His pastures and his fields of grain,
As they bend their tops
To the numberless beating drops
Of the incessant rain.
He counts it as no sin
That he sees therein
Only his own thrill and gain.

LEGAL FISHMAN NABBED.

Peterboro Examiner: John English, of Onemec, was arrested this (Thursday) afternoon by County Constable Mitchell, of Victoria County, for not having paid the fine that was made against him some time ago by F. D. Moore, County Magistrate. English, it seems, was arrested for a breach of the fishing laws several months ago and should have paid the ten dollars and three dollars and sixty cents costs. He had been working late in one of the city's manufacturing houses, and was arrested this afternoon by P. C. McDonald and Constable Mitchell.

QUESTIONABLE ETHICS.

(From the Canadian Courier.)
When a government calls for tenders on certain specifications, and afterwards changes the specifications, should fresh tenders be called for? This is a question which is now being discussed in certain quarters in the province of Ontario. The Education Department called for tenders for printing the Ontario Reader for a year and a half. Certain specifications were handed to those who proposed to tender and bids were put in on that basis. After the bids were received, the department changed the regulations and made an arrangement for the supply of readers with the Canada Publishing Co., one of the three firms which have had the contract for twenty years.

This is a question which is now being discussed in certain quarters in the province of Ontario. The Education Department called for tenders for printing the Ontario Reader for a year and a half. Certain specifications were handed to those who proposed to tender and bids were put in on that basis. After the bids were received, the department changed the regulations and made an arrangement for the supply of readers with the Canada Publishing Co., one of the three firms which have had the contract for twenty years.

Was this fair to the other tenderers?

Is this the practice followed by all governments? If it should be general, what would be the effect on the system of public tenders? These are the questions which people are asking.
Suppose, for example, in letting a contract for the construction of a section of the National Transcontinental Railway, the Dominion Government were to amend the specifications materially after all bids were in, and then make a contract with some political favorite without calling for fresh tenders, what would the public think? Would they not feel that there was something decidedly unfair in such a proceeding? Would there not be some other, and justifiably suspicious, that the Ottawa authorities had some ulterior motive? Would it not on its face look as if there had been a "deal" of some kind?
