AN AMUSING INCIDENT.

The opening of the lift lock Kirkfield last Saturday was not without some very amusing incidents. The chief fun, however, was the disposal of a quantity of Sam Hughes' campaign literature. The proceedings were intended to be non-political. Mr. R. J. McLaughlin, who had charge of the proceedings, had procured invitations for official and protrinent citizens of all parties, including Sam Hughes himself. The latder was exceedingly desirous of im- heart there is a yearning citer spiproving the occasion, and it seems ratual things, which transcends pulothat some twelve years ago, for elec- lie opinion, and even overfooks ide tion purposes, he published a special repellant in many sermons. Joing Haggart. There was also somereading matter setting forth the pedigree and exploits of Sam Hughes, and incidentally some about the canal, and who was the man who first suggested it, and how it would anyone who read any of it.

. Well Sam had kept a large stock of these on hands for more than ten years, waiting for an opportune time to use them, and now the time had come. An express waggon load was brought down and loaded on the bost. There were enough to go around the passengers and abundance left to distribute among the waitang crowd at Kirkfield. The boat had sharely started when Sam commenced distributing them. Mr. Lemieux's copy other most of the passengers let ing cry of "protection to American and there was gray stubble on his (presumably by accident) found its theirs follow that of the Postmaster-"General Some small boys, seeing orbis, and desiring to bulk the fun, wook advantage of the Col. when he was deeply engaged in reciting one of his exploits to Mr. Lemieux, and chucked the balance of the bundles into the sea. This was certainly un advantage, as there was considerably more deck room.

. We have been told that dead fish swith paper in their mouths, are being Jound daily around the lakes. We sincerely sympathize with Col-

Hughes in his great loss. . Why, if the literature had only reached Kirkfield and got distributed, the people might have cut out his rictures and used them for the same purpose as they did the last issued.

"Why do men go to church?" Tax as the question Rev. Dr. Coob, of Ethelburga's phurch, Bishopgate, London, has raised, and to which many gastors in Great Britain and Amerana have given varied answers, says The Hamilton Times. The reverence grentifemen has been forced to the conclusion that but few attend to fear the sermon. He thinks conven tionality, habit, has much to do with the church-going of many, Others go because of dread of public opinio.r. But, on the whole, Dr. Cobo is pleased to believe that the majority of regular church-goers are honestly in search of spiritual consodation.

One can hardly read over this list of motives for church attendance without being constrained to acknowledge that there is abandant cause for the classification.
