RUSSIAN DISCIPLINE.

A correspondent writing from Harbin, the chief city of Manchuria, to which place he was ordered after visiting Port Arthur and Newchwang in June, makes the most serious charge of immorality and lack of discipline among the Russian officers. Wine, women and gambling, he says, occupy the attention of the Russians to a degree which has disgusted and amazed the correspondents. Writing of Newchwang, which the Japanese recently captured, and which is a point of immense strategic importance, he gives a painful description of the town while it was still held by the Russians:

"At the moment when the town, which after its insufficient defence, was threatened by any of a half-dozen Japanese army divisions, the leading Russian merchant informed me that the consignment of military stores that had arrived recently contained quantities of perfume, scented soap, and ladies' toilet articles, bouquins, garters, fans, and other paraphernalia dear to the heart of the demi-mondaine. As for field necessities, such as pans, field glasses, kettles, picks, shovels, and other equipment for fortifying or for services in a rugged country, they, he added bitterly, had not even been requisitioned."

Things were the same at Port Arthur until the Japanese attacked; then the disorderly element retreated to Newchwang and later to Liao Yang and Harbin. He cites one surprising instance of the lack of even a pretence of morality or discipline among men high in command, saying that on one occasion a general of cavalry introduced his entire staff, in the dining room of the largest hotel in Harbin, to a woman (than whom there was no one more notorious in the Manchurian capital). "Indeed," he writes, "one needs no better proof than the state of affairs in Harbin for the assertion that the Russian army is at about the same stage of evolution as the armies of other so-called civilized nations a hundred years ago."

These conditions in an army in the field, the results of the campaign there for in Manchuria, and the state of affairs in St. Petersburg, go far to ensue the outsider that Russia may no longer escape that heroic oratory in extreme cases and which is known as a revolution.

A FRIEND TO LINDSAY.

When the Barleigh Falls mortgage matter was being discussed by Council last week, Mr. Culverwell said he had done and was doing a great deal for Lindsay for which he had not received any credit, and in proof of his statement referred to a number of articles on the Trent Valley Canal power development in which he had referred to Lindsay's fine location and distinct advantages as a centre for manufacturers. Not content with that he had entered into a contract with the Canadian Manufacturer to insert for one year a half-page advertisement describing the good points of Lindsay. "The Trent Valley Canal City."

Mr. Culverwell is a friend to Lindsay—no mistake about it.

EDITORIAL NOTES

The United States treasury is low just now. The deficit for the first month of the fiscal year is $17,399,615, even after calling in from the Pacific Railroad $2,886,555.

Hamilton Times: Anybody can sneer, but it is generally mean kind of people who do it. The other day Col. Hughes sneered at the Premier, and E. D. Smith may think it shows good breeding to sneer at the Minister of Agriculture because he is a farmer. To be able to sneer shows the possession of neither brains nor good manners.

GAMEY BOBS UP SERENELY.

(Chicago Western American.) Now that Lord Dundonald has temporarily disappeared from the theatre of political activity in Canada, the inevitable Gamey has emerged from under the barn and is again in evidence in the front ranks of the Ontario opposition, where he is, under the official authorization of Mr. Whitney, who presides over the 'cold political demagogues, why use the flag either to green their own racial, callities, or to stir up the prejudices of the unthinking.

The Russian troops are said to be losing heart. They have lost more than heart; they have lost prestige, strategic positions, artillery, and almost every skirmish that has taken place.

A contemporary points out that ten years ago, in the piano manufactories of Toronto and Toronto Junction, there were 405 hands employed; to-day there are 1120. The weekly output of these factories was 77 pianos, to-day it is 220. The factories making piano parts employed 121 hands in 1894, to-day they give employment to 365. That is a healthy growth.

Bishop Potter, of New York, has opened a model saloon, which is intended to "serve pure liquor and food at low prices under the best possible moral conditions." The church grog shop was opened with religious services, and the Bishop declared it to be "the greatest social movement New York had ever known."

It seems, according to the War Secretary's reading of the law, that the regulations prohibited Lord Dundonald from "speaking publicly or attending public meetings." Let's hope in this case the error may be set down to our rough-riding Canadian ways, and not visited upon the General in a way to close his career as a soldier.

Toronto Star: Canada can get good advertising abroad by publishing to the world the facts that her trade has grown from $239,000,000 in 1896, to $470,000,000, in 1903, and the deposits in the bank from $183,000,000 to $423,000,000. No other country in the world can show the same rate of growth in the same period.

Toronto Star, Tuesday: Sir William Mulock handed one to Col. Sam. Hughes, when the latter said that the farmers could be depended on to detect fakirs. "The farmers of North Victoria seem slow at it," said the Postmaster-General. He meant his particular disrespect to Colonel Hughes, but the opening was too good to let pass.

When some seizures were made during the Boer war, Lord Salisbury thus stated Great Britain's position on the question of contraband of war: "Foodstuffs with a hostile destination can be considered contraband of war only if they are supplied for the enemy's forces. It is not sufficient that they are capable of being used; it must be shown that there was in fact their destination at the time of seizure."

Hamilton Times: The Toronto News discusses the question, "To what extent is an officer of militia free to discuss public matters when on or off duty?" And it adds, "If a militia officer is to wear a moustache it will be difficult to get officers." And likewise, if due courtesy and respect for superiors are disregarded it will be difficult to get officers. Every man who joins the militia gives up something for the good of the service. If he is not willing to do so he has no business there.

Sir Frederick Treves, the celebrated English surgeon, who has just returned from a tour round the world, is enthusiastic in his admiration for the Japanese. He found their medical equipment for the war excellent. He says they have taken the best they could find in England or Germany and have improved on it. "They are the originators, but give them something good and they will produce something better. That is what they have done in the case of medical equipment. At every turn I admired the neatness and ingenuity of the material—the neat, light, cleverly constructed stretchers; the way they pick their stores, and the completeness of their arrangements. Their medical field service is finely organized, their surgery admirable, and, thank goodness, they have no women in the field hospitals. All their nurses are trained men. Altogether the world can and will learn much from Japan in the handling of a big war."

An Advertising Pointer.

Newspaper advertising costs you too much when you start it today and stop it to-morrow. So would clerks cost you too much if you hired them for a day now and then. Same with delivery wagons. The wheel of your business must never stop; and the whole machinery is out of gear unless the big advertising wheel is always turning.

Rheumatism
Does not let go of you when you apply lotions or liniments. It simply loosens its hold for a while. Why? Because to get rid of it you must correct the acid condition of the blood on which it depends. Hood's Sarsaparilla has cured thousands.

DEATH OF SENATOR AIKINS.

Entered Politics in 1854. Was Secretary of State in 1869, and Later Was Lieutenant-Governor of Manitoba.

Toronto, Aug. 8.—The Hon. James Cox Aikins died at his residence in Wellesley street, Toronto, on Saturday at 6.30 p.m., after a lingering illness. Mr. Aikins was a son of James Aikins, who left the County of Monaghan, Ireland, in 1816, and after residing in Philadelphia for four years, came to Canada and settled in the Township of Toronto (now in the County of Peel), where Mr. Aikins was born on March 30, 1828. Mr. Aikins received his education at the local schools and at Victoria College, Cobourg, from which University he held the degree of B.A. After leaving college he became a successful farmer. He early entered politics, and sat for the County of Peel in the Canadian Assembly from 1854 until the general election in 1861, when he was defeated by the late Hon. John Hilliard Cameron. He was afterwards a member for the "home" division of the Legislative Council from 1862 until the union, and was called to the Senate by proclamation in May, 1867, and retired to assume the gubernatorial chair of the Province of Manitoba.

Mr. Aikins entered Sir John A. Macdonald's administration as Secretary of State and Registrar General of Canada, on Dec. 9, 1869, and continued in these offices until the resignation of the Government on Nov. 5, 1873. On the return of the Conservative party to power, October, 1878, Mr. Aikins was again appointed Secretary of State. As a minister he framed and carried through Parliament the public lands act, 1872, and after the acquisition of the Northwest Territories by Canada, he organized the Dominion Land Bureau, now the Department of the Interior. Prior to 1869 Senator Aikins had been identified with the Liberal party. As Secretary of State he held office until he was appointed lieutenant-governor of Manitoba.

Mr. Aikins resigned from the Cabinet on May 23, 1882, and in December of the same year was sworn in as lieutenant-governor for the Province of Manitoba, and on the expiration of his term of service as such, returned to Toronto, and in January, 1886, was a second time called to the Senate.

Mr. Aikins had at various times during his business career, much to do with many important, financial, commercial and industrial undertakings. He was prominently identified with the prohibition movement, and held office as vice-president of the Ontario Prohibition Alliance. He married in 1845 Miss Mary Elizabeth Somerset, who died some years ago. His family consists of three sons and four daughters.

The late Senator put in an appearance this year at the Senate for a few days, but returned to Toronto much enfeebled, only to pass slowly away.

SPENT TOO MUCH MONEY.

Parliamentary Committee on Transvaal Railway Expenditure.

London, Aug. 8.—(C.A.P.)—A Parliamentary report just issued shows, with regard to the Transvaal and Orange River Colony railways, taken over and worked by the military authorities during the war and the first six months of 1902, that a million and a quarter pounds was spent upon them.

The committee on public accounts express their emphatic disapproval of the expenditure of this sum without Parliamentary sanction. Sir Percy Girouard, and the director of railways were signed by General Buller, but were never submitted to the treasury.

Invited to Come.

London, Aug. 8.—(C.A.P.)—Rev. J. H. Ritson, one of the secretaries of the Bible Society, at the invitation of the Canadian auxiliaries, tours the Dominion during September and October.

Horses Sold at Loss.

London, Aug. 8.—(C.A.P.)—A Parliamentary report issued by the War Office in connection with South Africa shows that a forfeit of £10 per animal had to be paid on 1,695 horses bought in Hungary at £3, and in New Zealand, while in Canada, the proceeds of a sale of 1,152 remounts, bought at an average of $140 a head, amounted to no more than an average of $42.

LORD DUNDONALD HOME.

Says Canadian People Are the Best in the World.

London, Aug. 8.—Lord Dundonald arrived here quietly. He was met by a few friends at Euston Station, and drove immediately home.

Canadian Associated Press cable says: Lord Dundonald, interviewed at Liverpool, said it was inadvisable to make any statement respecting the cause of his departure from Canada. He had decided not to say anything until he reported himself at the War Office. It was not a fact that he had expedited his return home owing to a message from the Secretary of State for War.

He added: "The Canadian people are the best in the world." "The Army and Navy Gazette says: "There are club rumors to the effect that Lord Dundonald will be provided with a home command. We are assured that the question of the employment of Lord Dundonald has not arisen in any form as yet, and that it is very doubtful whether Lord Dundonald will be active duties at present, as, notwithstanding the great value of the services he has rendered, there are others to be provided for whose claims may be ruled to be stronger than his."

Home Coming Time.

Victoria County, following the example of other communities, had a Home-Coming's Day on Monday last, when over 1000 of the Old Boys from Toronto and other parts of the Province revisited old scenes. That was fine and proper.

But we desire to speak of the old-fashioned, everyday kind of home-coming—the journey of the tired workman, farmer or business man to the home for meals. If the food is not of the best, that is the kind of home-coming that tells most rapidly on the health of the Old Boy and Girl, and in time on the stamina of the younger members of the home circle.

In order that the home-coming of the different members of the family may be joyous and regular it is necessary that the groceries and provisions for the household shall be selected from our fresh and always complete stock.
