BOBCAYGEON. (From Our Own Correspondent.) Mr. W. C. Moore is more than doub ling the capacity of his shop, and it will fairly class as a factory. The building whi be 40x60, two stories and a flat roof. The blacksmith shop will be 40x30, and the carpanter shop the same, the former having a cement floor. For the present the machinery will be in the carpenter shop, but laon it is likely that the carpenter shop will go to the upper floor, while the lower one will be occupied by the machinery. On the upper floor will be the paint shop and the store room. Mr. Moore's trade in wagons, sleighs and barrows for export has been growing beyond the capacity of the shop, and the increase of space will enable him to meet the requirements, and take contracts for the Northwest trede, which is making moreasingly heavy demands, as that country fills up with settlers. Mr. Moore's enlargement is probably only the beginning of a general collargement throughout the village.
