hap hazard mixture. On the contrary it is the result of years of careful thought and experiment, having always the definite object in view of combining alterative herbs with a definite tonic for each organ in the body. Alteratives are medicines which assist the glands of the body to throw off waste and poisonous matter and absorb the nourishment provided by the food eaten. These glands are found in the stomach, kidneys, bowels, bladder and lungs. Besides these glands, each of these important organs is composed of more or less muscular matter, and it is upon this that tonic medicines act. A different tonic is required in almost each of these sets of muscles. After much observation the alterative mixture originated and prescribed by Walter S. McDade, of Philadelphia, and highly indorsed by Edwin F. Rush, of the Bellevue Medical College, of New York, and J. Marion Sims, of the Chicago University of Medicine, all medical men of the highest standing on the continent, was chosen. To this compound was added the different tonics above described.
